WIVES SEE HUSBANDS AND A BOY DROWN

Charles N. Doudera, His Son, and Louis J. Edling Lost in the Tide of Jamaica Bay.

RELATIVES SIT HELPLESS

Captain of Ferryboat Tries to Save Swimmers, but Last One Sinks as Boat Nears Him.

"Elmo's overboard!" cried Mrs. Charles N. Doudera, who, with her husband and two children, and Louis J. Edling, a friend of the family, and his wife were anchored in Jamaica Bay off the southeast end of Barren Island, fishing yesterday from the launch Idle Hour, owned by the two men. Seven-year-old Elmo was the youngest of the Doudera children, and the father dived overboard for him as soon as the mother's cry attracted his attention.

Already the youngster had floated many yards from the boat, carried along by the tide. Mr. Doudera, a strong swimmer, overtook the frightened, struggling child in a few strokes and turned to swim back to the boat.

It was only then that he realized the strength of the tide against which he must strive. It tossed him back and prevailed against his hardest swimming, sending him momentarily further and further away from the launch. His boy clutched beneath one arm, he struggled with all his strength, and from the boat his wife and son, with Mr. and Mrs. Edling, watched him.

At last Edling could stand it no longer. He saw his friend getting further and further away, and suddenly he pulled off his coat, kicked off his shoes, and sprang into the water. As Doudera had done, he swam the distance between the launch and those he would rescue with almost no effort, shouting to Doudera to keep up his courage.

Once at their side, however, and with one arm helping to support young Elmo, Edling found that even his fresh strength was no match for the tide. He and Doudera together could make no headway, and inch by inch were swept further and further from the boat in which sat their wives crying in terror and wringing their hands, yet helpless to aid the drowning men and boy.

Then the ferryboat Frank and Helen McAvoy, in command of Capt. James McAvoy, hove in sight on her trip from Rockaway Beach to Barren Island. The Captain saw the three in the water and the woman helpless in the launch. He spun his wheel around until his craft was headed directly for the men and the boy and then signaled to the engine room for top speed.

Before the boat could reach the swimmers Edling's arms rose above his head and he sank from sight. Doudera still clung to his son. But the free arm with which he beat the waves in his efforts to keep himself and his son afloat struck the water with less and less force. When the ferryboat was almost upon him the father's strength gave out.

With his eyes upon the approaching boat, he gave up the struggle and sank beneath the waves, carrying his boy with him. An instant later the McAvoy swept over the spot and the Captain rang for the engines to stop. For an hour or more he searched around the place, hoping that Doudera or Edling might rise; then, despairing of getting them alive, he strove to recover the bodies.

At last Capt. McAvoy steamed back to where the launch was anchored. Aboard it were two women almost insane from grief and from the shock of the spectacle they had witnessed. They were helped aboard the McAvoy, and with the launch in tow the steamer put into the Canarsie landing. There Mrs. Doudera and Mrs. Edling were taken in charge by friends of their husbands, both of whom were members of the Canarsie and Jamaica Bay Yacht Clubs.

Sergt. Hall and a crew of Harbor Squad police spent most of last night cruising over Jamaica Bay in a police launch looking for the bodies, but did not find them.

OARSMAN DROWNS AT RACE.

Edward Morley Lost After Shell Sinks in Boston Regatta.

BOSTON, July 5.—The climax of an eventful championship regatta of the New England Amateur Rowing Association on the Charles River came late this afternoon when Edward Morley, 18 years old, rowing 3 in the St. Alphonsus eight-oared junior crew of Roxbury, was drowned while clinging to a tow-rope to which he had been attached by two of his mates after their shell had capsized. At the same time the five other crews which had been contesting in the junior eight-oared race, the last event of the regatta, were also struggling in the water, two others swamping before reaching the line, and the other three after reaching it. In the excitement little interest was taken in the fact that the Jeffries Point crew of Boston had won. The six crews which were in the race, and which were flooded by the waves, were the St. Alphonsus Association of Roxbury, the West Lynn Boat Club of Lynn, the Riverside Boat Club of Cambridge, the Columbia Rowing Association, the Jeffries Point Rowing Association of East Boston, and the Kalumet Boat Club of Worcester.

During the day's events, extending over six hours, a dozen boats were swamped, and while the drowning of young Morley was the only fatality, others were barely averted through the vigilance of power boats.

The race of the junior eights promised to be a most interesting one. It is seldom that six boats start in such an event. They had covered a mile or more of the mile and a half course with the Kalumet crew leading, when the Columbia crew was swamped, and the committee boat went to its assistance. About the same time the St. Alphonsus and Kalumet crews were thrown into the water, the latter being in the lead at the time. Running to the assistance of the St. Alphonsus shell, a steam launch struck her amidships, cutting the shell in two. Morley, at No. 3, was unable to swim, as was the coxswain, John Troy. R. Crossen and J. Kelliher in the forward section, went to Morley's assistance and supported him to the launch, where he caught hold of a tow line. Then they returned for Troy and helped him aboard. In the meantime Morley gasped at the end of the rope and drowned.

Except for a single entry from Springfield and the junior eight from the Kalumet Club of Worcester, the regatta was virtually a duel meet between New York and Boston and vicinity. Of the six matches in which New York was represented, the Gothamites won four, the Metropolitan Rowing Club of New York taking the junior and senior four-oared shell events in real contests, and the junior and intermediate doubles by default.

BROKER THEBAUD KILLED.

Wife Sees Him Hit by a Train at Lynbrook Crossing.

Special to The New York Times.

LYNBROOK, L. I., July 5.—The Earle Avenue crossing of the Long Island Railroad added another to the long list of fatalities at this point when Halsey H. Thebaud, an insurance broker of 54 Cathedral Parkway, Manhattan, was instantly killed by the east-bound express shortly before 5 o'clock this afternoon. The broker and his wife, a bride of six months, had been the guests over the Fourth at the home of Capt. Nugent, in Lynwood Avenue.

The village Fire Department was called out late in the afternoon by a fire in Earle Avenue, about a quarter of a mile beyond the railroad tracks from the Nugent house. Accompanied by his wife and a number of his fellow-guests Mr. Thebaud went to see the blaze, which was in a small bungalow owned by Thomas Johnson, a brakeman on the Long Island Railroad.

The light wooden structure made a quick blaze, which was burning itself out when the Lynbrook firemen arrived, and the Nugent guests turned back almost as soon as they had crossed the tracks. A long freight train switching west across the Earle Avenue crossing held up the crowd for several minutes, and when the last car passed Mr. Thebaud and William Riley, who also lives at 54 Cathedral Parkway, and had accompanied the Thebauds to Lynbrook, pressed ahead on to the track. They did not see Express No. 22 coming at full speed on the other track.

As Mr. Thebaud stepped around the end of the passing freight he was right in the track of the oncoming express. Mr. Riley threw his arm across Mr. Thebaud's shoulders and pulled him back, but the end of the running board above the cylinder of the express locomotive caught him in the back of the head, killing him instantly.

The wrench dislocated Mr. Riley's shoulder, but he staggered back, still keeping his grip on his friend, out of the suction of the rapidly moving train, and sank with the body on to the westbound track, almost at the feet of Mrs. Thebaud and the other Nugent guests. Mrs. Thebaud fainted, and was carried to a near-by house until she was sufficiently recovered to be taken to the Nugent home.

The body was removed to Reynold's morgue, and it was decided to hold the funeral services there on Wednesday. The body will be cremated at the West Pond Crematory.

The Earle Avenue crossing is one of the most dangerous in this section, and only a few weeks ago the Board of Trade petitioned the railroad authorities to remedy conditions. The freight station is only a few yards down the track from the crossing, and the spurs on both sides of the main tracks are always lined with boxcars, which make it impossible for any one approaching from the north or south to see up and down the main tracks.

ITALIAN FLAG SHOT DOWN.

Patriotic Citizen Pays $25 for Firing on It at Port Chester.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., July 5.—"I don't care a damn what flag it was, you had no right to shoot it down, and I will fine you $25 for doing it," said Police Judge Arthur R. Wilcox, when Harold Conant, a patriotic grocer, was arraigned before him to-day on a charge of shooting down an Italian flag.

"I'll pay the fine, but under protest, and as an American citizen I'll appeal this case to a higher court," said Conant, as he paid over the $25 and left the courtroom.

The trouble was caused when Giuseppe Maduro of South Regent Street put up an Italian flag in front of his home today. Several citizens took notice of it and remonstrated with the Italian, telling him he should also display the Stars and Stripes, but he said one flag was good enough for him.

Mr. Conant, who is the senior member of the grocery firm of Conant & Flint, happened along and espied the flag. He demanded that the Stars and Stripes be run up on top of the Italian flag, and when the Italian again refused, Mr. Conant went to his home, some blocks away, and returned with a shotgun. Taking careful aim, he shot away the halyards supporting the flag, and down it came. By this time a throng of Italians was gathered about the scene, and it looked as though Conant might be injured, but he pulled out a revolver, and managed to keep the crowd away by threatening to shoot.

The enraged Maduro, on seeing his flag shot down, ran to the police court and swore out a warrant for Conant, and the latter was taken before Judge Wilcox. Conant said that the action of the Italian in hoisting the Italian flag on the Fourth of July was treason, when the latter refused to run up the Stars and Stripes above it, and he decided that no flag should float there.

Judge Wilcox surprised every one in the courtroom by fining Conant $25.

There was a big crowd of Italians in the place, and, lest trouble might occur, the Miller Hose Company was summoned and they attached two lines of hose to a nearby hydrant, ready to turn the water into the courtroom should a riot begin. However, no water was needed to keep order.

PEACE MEMORIAL PROPOSAL.

Canada and United States May Commemorate 100 Years of Peace.

OTTAWA, Ontario, July 5.—The suggestion made by MacKenzie H. King at the Harvard commencement last week that Canada and the United States should commemorate the hundred years of peace between the two countries by the erection and dedication of some striking international monument is likely to bear fruit.

It is known that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is thoroughly in accord with the suggestion of the Minister of Labor, and it is not at all improbable that steps will be taken by the Canadian Government to invite the co-operation of the United States Government in arranging for a celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the close of the war of 1812-14.

It is felt that the time is opportune for the new world, with its hundred years of peace and its 3,000 miles of international boundary without a gun or fortification, to point in some effective way the moral to the armed camp of Europe.

TIME-SAVING PLAN FOR CUNARD LINE

Directors Decide to Land Passengers and Mail at Fishguard, Wales.

WILL CUT OFF SIX HOURS

Passengers Can Be Landed in New York on Thursdays in Time for Dinner—In London Monday Nights.

After giving the matter their consideration for the last three months, the Directors of the Cunard Line have decided to make the experiment of having their mail and passenger steamships call at Fishguard, on the coast of Pembrokeshire, South Wales, to save time on the outward and homeward voyages.

Fishguard is 32 miles nearer to Queenstown than Holyhead, and 102 miles nearer than Liverpool. This means a saving of at least six hours against Liverpool, and would enable passengers on the big liners Lusitania and Mauretania to be certain of reaching London at a reasonable hour on Monday nights, and those on the Lucania and Campania on Tuesday nights, sailing from New York on the preceding Wednesdays. Westbound, the liners should land their passengers here on Thursdays and Fridays respectively, according to the speed of the ship. It is understood that the first experiment of landing passengers at Fishguard will be made by the Lusitania, sailing from this side on July 28.

Passengers desiring to go on to Liverpool will be permitted to do so.

The railroad service from London to Fishguard is operated by the Great Western Railroad, which has spent $15,000,000 in erecting long piers and deepening the harbor, so that there is plenty of water there for the largest ships. A fleet of 23-knot turbine steamships makes the passage across from Fishguard to Rosslare, Ireland, in two hours and forty-five minutes. The American boat train specials will make the journey to London in five hours, either way.

One of the officials of the Cunard Line said yesterday:

"The question is not so much cutting out Queenstown as a port of call for passengers and the Irish mails, but where the delay comes in is in the waiting three and four hours for the late mails from London.

"On the eastward run the Lusitania and Mauretania generally reach Queenstown early enough on Mondays to get away before noon. The distance is 86 miles to the Tuskar Light and 54 miles from there to Fishguard, a total of 140 miles. Allowing for an hour's delay the train should get away at 5 P. M. and land passengers and mails in London by 10 P. M.

On the short run from Aug. 23 to Jan. 15 there is a difference of 130 miles in the course, and this should land passengers on the two big ships in Fishguard at 11 A. M. and London at 5 P. M. on Mondays. The Lucania and Campania should be able to land their passengers at Fishguard on Tuesday in ample time to arrive in London the same night.

"The distance from the Tuskar Light to the South Stacks Light off Holyhead is 86 miles, and from that to the bar outside Liverpool is 70 miles.

"The Cunard Company has had surveyors at Fishguard making a thorough examination of the harbor to see if there was enough depth of water and if the piers were long enough for the Lusitania and Mauretania. Owing to the consumption of coal and water on the voyage across the two larger steamships have five feet and the two smaller ships three feet less draught then when they leave New York. The westbound cargoes are light, which equalizes matters when sailing from the other side.

"One of the most important features in the liners calling at Fishguard on the west-bound trip will be the saving of time with the mails," said the official. "At Queenstown now the ships often have to wait three or four hours, but by taking the late London mails on at Fishguard the call can be made at Queenstown for the Irish mails and passengers on Sunday morning and the ships get away at 6 or 7 A. M., instead of 10 or 11 A. M., as at present. This would insure, especially over the short route, passengers landing in New York on Thursdays in time for dinner.

"Instead of passengers leaving London at noon, as they do now, they could leave at 6 P. M., dine on the train, and arrive at Fishguard at 11 P. M. This would enable passengers from Paris to leave by the fast French mail via Calais for London at 9 A. M. on Saturdays and catch the boat train that night.

"The late mails, which now leave London at 4 P. M. for Queenstown, could run down to Fishguard ahead of the passenger train at 5 P. M. The Great Western roadbed is considered one of the best in England, and the journey would be made without stop except at Newport, to change locomotives."

The Cunard officers are all in favor of the ships calling at Fishguard, as it will, no doubt, be a great saving in time, especially in the Winter, when the Mersey is full of fog, and is a decided improvement until the time comes when the British Postmaster General will allow the company to cut out Queenstown altogether and go to the Channel ports.

The bar at the mouth of the River Mersey has been the great drawback to Liverpool as a port for steamships of over 20,000 tons. On one of her recent trips the Mauretania arrived there at 6 P. M., when it was dead low water, and in consequence the passengers did not land until the next morning. The heavy cost of coal and the extra wages for more than 500 firemen were thus entirely wasted.

FRENCH REWARD SCIENTISTS.

One of Academy Prizes Comes to E. W. Brown of Yale.

PARIS, July 5.—The Academy of Sciences has awarded a prize amounting to $140 to Prof. E. W. Brown of Yale University for his researches relative to the theory of the moon.

The Academy also has awarded $200 to Lieuts. Jeance and Colin of the French Navy for their improved apparatus for wireless telephony. The Academy has allotted $800 of the annuity of $20,000 settled upon the institution by Prince Roland Bonaparte for the encouragement of research to Prof. Cayeux of the School of Mines, University of Paris, to enable him to proceed to the United States to continue his remarkable researches with reference to deposits of ancient minerals.

MORGAN STEEL PLAN REJECTED IN PARIS

The Finance Minister Refuses to Accept Interpretation of Law Which Allows Listing Stock.

NEW LEGISLATION NEEDED

Commission Appointed to Inquire Just What Legislation, with View to Use as Card in Tariff Negotiations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 5.—J. Pierpont Morgan has failed in his personal effort to persuade M. Caillaux, Minister of Finance, to accept the interpretation of the law of abonnements under which Steel common might be admitted to the Bourse. Mr. Morgan, two days after his arrival in Paris, as stated in these dispatches to THE NEW YORK TIMES June 25, "induced M. Caillaux to withhold the announcement of his decision for the present and to listen to the views of M. Sergent, Under Controller of the Currency, who believes he has found a means of reaching the legal difficulties through a new decree interpretative of the abonnement law, without waiting for new legislation."

Yesterday M. Sergent, after an extended study of the technicalities involved, submitted a report to this effect. M. Caillaux, however, failed to act on this favorable opinion as Mr. Morgan expected he would. Instead he has proceeded to the action which I stated in my dispatch of June 18 he would shortly take.

To-day he appointed the commission I then stated he would appoint for the purpose of inquiring into the legislative changes necessary to clear the way for the admission of all foreign securities seeking admission to the Bourse. The real purpose of this commission is that stated in the second paragraph of the dispatch of June 18, viz.: "to inform the Government of the possibility of using the promise of such legislation as a card in the negotiations on the tariff soon to be begun with the United States."

Thus the situation reverts to precisely what it was a fortnight ago. Steel will get no favors from the French Government, will not be listed on the Bourse on Mr. Morgan's plan, and can hope to be listed only under conditions prescribed by new legislation, if any is ever enacted.

Mr. Morgan, who, like his subordinates, was misled by the French reluctance to speak out a downright "No," is deeply disappointed now that the clear case is what these dispatches to THE NEW YORK TIMES since June 8 have consistently stated it to be.

PARACHUTIST LEAPS TO DEATH

Performer at Portland, Me., Jumps from Balloon Before It Is High Enough

PORTLAND, Me., July 5.—Mistaking the firing of revolvers by the crowd at the July 4 celebration here to-day as a signal for the climax of his aerial act, James Corcoran, an aeronaut, of Lowell, Mass., cut loose with his parachute when but a few hundred feet from the earth and was dashed to the ground. He met almost instant death at the feet of 5,000 horrified spectators.

Corcoran was employed by Prof. Joseph Laroux of this city. Shortly after 4 o'clock he had his arrangements all complete for ascending from the Eastern Promenade. Three parachutes were attached to the hot-air balloon, and it was arranged that he should drop with his parachutes when he heard a certain number of revolver shots from Prof. Laroux. These were not to be fired till the balloon had reached a height sufficient to make the triple jumps safe, approximately 5,000 feet.

Cocoran had barely left the ground before promiscuous firing of revolvers began, but Prof. Laroux called to him to keep on up. About a few hundred feet it is hard for an aeronaut to judge correctly his exact height as he swings on the bar. So it is believed that when Corcoran heard a second fusilade he was certain that it was the signal for him to cut loose. He dropped from the balloon, although he was barely 500 feet in the air.

The distance was too short for the parachute to open properly and the man dropped like a plummet, gaining speed as he neared the earth. He struck the ground on the site of a proposed monument to the late Thomas B. Reed, about 1,000 feet from where the ascension was made.

Corcoran was still alive when he was picked up, but he was unconscious, and died in a short time. He leaves a widow and one child.

Abandon Lease of Vanderbilt Forest.

Special to The New York Times.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 5.—The Biltmore Rod and Gun Club, formed by Chicago capitalists, to enjoy what would have been the largest game preserve in America, the 85,000 acres of Pisgah forest, near here, have yielded to George W. Vanderbilt's insistence that the ten-year lease at $5,000 a year, made by Dr. C. A. Schenck, former head of the Vanderbilt forestry department, was made without authority. They have agreed to cancel the lease, but are negotiating direct with Mr. Vanderbilt for a new lease.

FATHER SURPRISES YOUNG ELOPERS HERE

Meets Them at Hotel Desk, Where They Had Asked to be Directed to a Minister.

BUT THEY HAD NO LICENSE

Florida Planter at Last Relents and the Three Go to Atlantic City to Have Ceremony Performed.

Shortly after Assistant Manager Ryan went on duty at the Hotel Gotham yesterday morning, a messenger boy handed him a telegram addressed to the management, which read:

"Reserve suite for self and bride. Arrive Monday morning."

It was signed George C. Montreville, who designated Jacksonville, Fla., as his home.

As Mr. Ryan finished reading the telegram he looked up, and there passed in front of the desk, apparently on his way to the writing room, a handsome, well-dressed man, evidently a Southerner, but having the appearance of a man of Spanish descent. This man continued on his way and took a seat at one of the desks and picked up some writing paper.

Soon afterward there came to the desk a young man and a young girl, who looked as if she were not out of her teens.

"I am Mr. Montreville of Jacksonville," he said, "Did you get my telegram?"

"Yes, the telegram was received," Mr. Ryan said.

Then the young man explained: "We are not married yet, but we are going to be to-day, and we want your help. They told us down South that anything could be done in New York, so, as our parents objected to our being married on account of our being too young, we decided to run away. Now we want you to get us a minister and we will be married right away."

"Have you a license?" asked Mr. Ryan.

When he confessed they had not obtained a license and Mr. Ryan explained that it was necessary, the young woman, who said she was Mabel Wager of Jacksonville, began to sob.

Then the strange man in the writing-room who had been watching the proceedings with intense interest, got up from the desk and walked quietly around to where the young couple were asking the manager if there was not some way he could help them out.

"Perhaps I can be of some assistance," he said as he came into view.

"Papa!" screamed the girl as she promptly swooned and slipped to the floor before Montreville could catch her.

"Mr. Wager!" said Montreville in a trembling voice as he turned to assist his bride-to-be. She was quickly revived.

She and the young man faced the father.

"Yes, I am here to see that the best is made of a bad bargain. Now, what do you propose to do?" said Mr. Wager, who didn't appear to be angry.

"We want to get married, so we concluded that as you had given Mabel permission to visit her Aunt Mary in Baltimore, that I should come along too, and we would come all the way to New York and get married, as we felt we could not wait any longer."

"Well, you see you cannot do that. This is a holiday and you cannot get a license, so you have put my daughter in a very embarrassing position," said Mr. Wager. The young woman pleaded with her father to find a way out, and then Mr. Ryan suggested that a license is not needed in New Jersey for a legal marriage.

"If that is so we will go to New Jersey," said Mr. Wager. "I will take you there and see the ceremony performed, as long as you are determined to be married."

"But, papa, how did you happen to be here?" asked the young girl.

"You talked too much at home, so I learned of your intentions and got here ahead of you. I thought you were too young to get married, but when I found you were determined to do so, I made up my mind to be there when it happened. That is all there is to it."

Mr. Wager said afterward that his daughter had taken several of her former school friends into her confidence. She had heard from friends of the Hotel Gotham, so she and Montreville determined to come to New York and get married here.

All three left for Atlantic City on the midday train, and after the young people are married they will stay at the shore resort for a honeymoon, after which they will return to Florida and take up their residence at the home of the bride's father.

$75,000 FIRE AT OSSINING.

Nearly a Block of Buildings Destroyed in the Main Business Street.

OSSINING, N. Y., July 5.—Fire which started shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon, and was not under control until five hours later, practically destroyed a block of buildings in Main Street, the principal business thoroughfore of the city. Fireworks, indiscriminately fired off, are supposed to have caused the blaze. The damage is estimated at $75,000.

The fire first started on the premises of Elsworth Grant, a varnish and oil dealer, at 195 and 197 Main Street, and just across the street from the Presbyterian Church. The flames had got a good hold when first discovered, and the varnish and paint made fine fuel. On the upper floor of the first house lived William Washburn and his aged and infirm wife. So quickly did the flames spread that their retreat by the stairway was cut off. However, they managed to get to a front window and were rescued in the nick of time by firemen.

The Grant building, Terhune Building, Palmer Hall, Eagle Hotel, and an office building owned by St. Paul's Episcopal Church, were damaged. The village fire engine was called out for the first time, and did good service.

SUFFRAGETTES TURN TO KING.

Failing to See Asquith, Determined on Audience at Buckingham Palace.

LONDON, July 5.—A deputation from the Women's Freedom League presented itself at the entrance to Parliament to-night and renewed the demand for an audience with Premier Asquith to discuss the suffrage question, claiming the right to such an interview under a statute of Charles II.

The Premier again declined to receive the deputation, and the league is now determined to seek an audience with the King at Buckingham Palace on Thursday.

BINGHAM ARRIVES IN HALIFAX.

Deposed Police Commissioner Refuses to Discuss New York Politics.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 5.—Gen. Theodore A. Bingham, the deposed Police Commissioner of New York City, arrived here to-day and proceeded at once to his Summer home at Chester, where his family have been staying.

Gen. Bingham refused to discuss either New York police or New York politics. He intimated that he would remain in Chester for about two months.

REVOLUTION IN COLOMBIA.

Report of Outbreak Against Holguin, Acting President in Reyes's Absence.

GUAYQUIL, Ecuador, July 5.—A private cablegram from Buenaventura, Colombia, states that a revolution has broken out at Barranquilla, the most important commercial city of Colombia.

The movement, it is said, is directed against Gen. Jorge Holguin, who is Acting President in the absence of President Reyes, and in favor of Gonzalez Valencia.

KILLED AT AUTO RACE.

Former California Mayor Struck by Racer While Crossing the Track.

OAKLAND, Cal., July 5.—C. G. Stafford, formerly Mayor of Eureka, Cal., was run down by N. E. Silva and instantly killed in the seventh race of an automobile meet at the Emeryville race track to-day. Silva's car was upset, turning over twice, falling on the driver, and breaking his nose.

Stafford's neck was broken. He attempted to cross the track in front of the racers. His companion, unidentified, was knocked unconscious.

5 CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH

South Boston, Va., Fire Kills Hamlett Children and a Confederate Veteran.

RICHMOND, Va., July 5.—H. F. Strange, aged 74, a Confederate veteran, and five children—Vernie, aged 14; Beatrice, aged 7; Violet, aged 6; Cecil, aged 4, and Henry, 18 months old, the children of S. E. Hamlett, were burned to death early to-day in the Hamlett home at South Boston.

Mr. Hamlett, his wife, and two children escaped. One child was thrown from a window and so badly hurt that he will die.

SCARE SHIP WAS DR. BOYD'S.

Not German War Balloon—Boyd Says He Crossed Irish Channel.

LONDON, July 6.—According to The Daily News the airship seen flying about various parts of Great Britain last May was a craft 120 feet long, of 300 horse power, which was invented and built by Dr. M. B. Boyd. The inventor, it is stated, asserts that in his experimental flights he crossed the Irish Channel at a speed of thirty-two miles an hour, covering a total distance of ninety miles.

On another occasion, Dr. Boyd says, he traveled 350 miles, making only one descent.

BATTLE IN PHILIPPINES.

Moro Jikiri and Band Exterminated—Our Loss 1 Dead, 23 Wounded.

MANILA, July 6.—In a desperate fight near Patian, on Jolo Island, yesterday, Jikiri, the famous Moro outlaw chief, was killed and his entire band exterminated by detachments of regulars and constabulary under Capt. George L. Byram of the Sixth United States Cavalry, operating in conjunction with a naval flotilla of the mosquito fleet under Lieut. Commander Signor.

The American loss was one private killed and three officers and twenty enlisted men and one sailor wounded.

Private O'Connell of Troop A, Sixth Cavalry, was the one man killed among the Americans. The officers wounded are Lieuts. Kennedy, Miller, and Arthur H. Wilson of the Sixth.

Capt. Byram's cavalry, with a few scouts and constabulary and a detachment of sailors under Lieut. Commander Signor, discovered and attacked the outlaws in the mountains not far from the coast. The Moros fled and took refuge in a large cave. The column of troops and sailors surrounded the place, but Jikiri refused to surrender. A concerted attack was made, the Moros fighting desperately from the mouth of the cave until the last member of the band was dead.

Few details of the fight have been received. The division headquarters of the army accounts for the large number of wounded among the troops on the theory that the cave was mined, and that some of the Americans were wounded by an explosion.

In his brief report Capt. Byram warmly commends Lieut. Miller for bravery and gallantry in action. Capt. Byram gave no details as to the condition of the wounded.

MINISTER, PEACEMAKER, SHOT

E. L. Langley Mortally Wounded Trying to Separate Son and Another in Duel

GRAYSON, Ga., July 5.—Much excitement prevails in this community over the fatal injury of the Rev. E. L. Langley, who was to-day shot while trying to separate his son, Bose Langley, and J. E. Webb, who were engaged in a fight. Webb and young Langley fought a desperate duel with pistols. Each received two wounds of a serious nature.

The minister, in attempting to act as peacemaker, came within the range of the flying bullets, and fell at his son's feet, mortally wounded.

Balloon Control with Ballast.

BERLIN, July 5.—An invention by means of which dirigible balloons may ascend perpendicularly without throwing out ballast has undergone the most severe tests in miniature form at the War Office. The invention is regarded as most practical and important, as extensive manoeuvring in a field will be no longer necessary. An engineer named Von Boeder of Düsseldorf is the inventor.

NATION'S DEATH ROLL ONLY 32 THIS FOURTH

FOUR DIE IN NEW YORK

Four Are Dying and Over 350 Injured—Cities with Laws Against Firecrackers' Use Show Best Records.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 5.—More rigid laws and the growth of public sentiment for a sane celebration of the Fourth have had their result all over the country in reducing the number of killed and wounded on the annual holiday.

Full returns of the two-day celebration from all over the country this year show a falling off in the number of killed of twenty-four from the record of 1908.

There were thirty-two fatalities reported at midnight to-night, as against fifty-six at the close of Independence Day last year.

Chicago and its suburbs gave strong evidence of the progress which has been made in stopping the slaughter in the path of the rejoicing over the Nation's freedom. The staggering statistics of twelve dead and 114 injured a year ago were revolutionized. Not a single death had been reported in this city at midnight, and the total number of injured was less than thirty.

Of the accidents which were placed on the police records only a half dozen were serious, and it was estimated the fatalities would not by any chance be more than two.

It was the quietest and sanest Fourth Chicago has had since the city was a village, and the din of previous years was almost totally squelched by police regulations and the awakening of public sentiment.

Cleveland, Ohio, probably made the best record of any city of its size in the country in the fight against the noise and perils of the day. While there were ten persons killed and sixty-two injured during the one-day celebration in 1908, the two-day festivity in 1909 was passed without a single death or injury serious enough to require the attention of a physician. This was due to the fact that the firing, and even the sale of fireworks or crackers was forbidden within the city limits.

Milwaukee, another leader in the sane Fourth movement, reported only twenty-two persons injured during the two days this year, as against one killed and sixty-seven injured in 1908.

Washington, D. C., escaped this year without an accident, where forty-one persons were seriously injured in the previous year, and Los Angeles, Cal., and Providence, R. I., cut in half the list of victims of the day by the enforcement of their laws.

The Nation's losses for the two days are shown in the following table:

It will be seen by the foregoing table that in the cities where the movement against the careless celebrant was not enforced fully the lists of victims continued to be as large, if not larger than in the recent years. New York, St. Louis, and Philadelphia, where there has been no real action taken against the dangerous explosives, suffered their usual losses in deaths, injuries, and fires.

Not only have the larger cities of the country taken up the effort to stop the heavy death roll, but in many of the smaller cities there was practical quiet during the whole of Sunday and yesterday. In Racine, Wis., the use of fireworks, except under the guidance of experts, was prohibited, and, despite the fact that there were 15,000 visitors in the city, there was not an accident reported.

Jackson, Mich., also had the quietest day on record. There were no fireworks allowed within the city limits, and there were no accidents. In Tacoma, Wash., the anti-fireworks ordinance was fully carried out, and no injuries followed the celebration. Providence, R. I., which also forbade the use of fireworks or firearms, had only one serious accident, and ten minor ones as the result of the day's work.

CASUALTIES IN NEW YORK.

Two Killed and 384 Injured in Celebration Here Yesterday.

New York never had a quieter Independence Day celebration than that of yesterday. The Weather Bureau congratulated itself on correctly forecasting as pleasant a holiday, from the weather standpoint, as the city has enjoyed in many years. It was neither too warm nor too cold. The day broke so clear and cool, with such a delightful breeze thrown in, that the stay-at-homes had no reason to envy in point of bodily comfort those who had left town.

Everybody who stayed at home, and judging by the size of the theatre and baseball crowds and that other multitude which hied itself to nearby pleasure resorts, a goodly portion of the 4,000,000 were still here, commented on the absence of noise that marked the official Fourth of 1909. From every Borough came the same comfortable report of unwonted peace and quiet.

There were many notable celebrations throughout the city, the one chief in interest being the ground breaking for the Henry Hudson Memorial Monument, marking the tercentenary of the explorer's discovery of the Hudson River, which is to be celebrated fittingly in the Fall. Then there was Tammany Hall's usual celebration of the day, and the exercises in Van Cortlandt Park, where the Second Battery, N. G. N. Y., fired a salute of a gun for every State and school children sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" and a number of well-known persons made speeches.

In the afternoon 100 boys, comprising the military corps of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, decorated Grant's Tomb. At the Catholic Protectory the boys there began the day with the raising of the National flag while all the little girls stood at attention and saluted it as it wafted forth to the breeze.

Last night the celebration was somewhat noisier than in the day, or perhaps the cessation of traffic made it appear so, but even as it was the racket was notably less than on preceding Fourths. There were many elaborate fireworks displays, some of them being very beautiful.

The behavior of the celebrating crowds was as a rule exemplary, and the police had few rowdies or drunken irresponsibles to handle. But they kept a keen eye for violators of the law against carrying concealed weapons, and all the Magistrates' courts had many such cases to dispose of. The Magistrates on duty yesterday evidently did not think, as did Magistrate Finn in the Night Court on Sunday, that it was justifiable to carry a pistol to "celebrate the trimming of England," and the result was that fines of $1 and $2 were numerous, and in some cases as much as $5 was levied.

As the reports of accidents piled up last night the police said that the total number of accidents was likely to be on a par with previous years. From all parts of the city came reports of children hurt, and the list included many grown-ups. In many instances the injuries were severe, including some cases of blinding. In one case a boy had his ear torn off. In other cases fingers and hands were blown off. Scores were powder-burned, and the hospital ambulance forces were busy treating these to stave off the dreaded after result—lockjaw.

Five-year-old Dorothy Di Martini of 341 East 115th Street, whose dress caught fire while she was igniting a bunch of firecrackers on Sunday, died early yesterday morning of her burns in the Sydenham Hospital.

Joseph Kurtz, the seventeen-year-old boy who owned the toy cannon that exploded in East 153d Street Sunday morning, causing the death of four-year-old Edith Brown of 328 East 153d Street, was arraigned in the Morrisania Court yesterday and remanded to the Coroner. A blood-stained nail was found near the place where the little girl fell. Kurtz told the Magistrate that he had not put the nail in the cannon.

A third accident which will probably result in death befell Agnes Hessling, 5 years old, of 516 West 152d Street, who was playing in front of her home last night with several other little girls, when some person unknown to the police threw a firecracker among them. The cracker exploded under the Hessling child and set fire to her dress. Her clothing was burned from her body before help came, and the child was said to be dying last night in the Washington Heights Hospital.

While playing in the backyard of her home last night with several other little girls, six-year-old Ella Keeler of 442 West Nineteenth Street was shot in the head, the bullet apparently falling from the sky. The victim of the peculiar accident was hurried to the New York Hospital, the father, George Keeler, believing at first that his daughter had injured herself by falling.

Ella's playmates told, however, of hearing the report of a pistol, and Keeler told the surgeons that his daughter might have been shot. The surgeons had already located a fracture of the skull, and when they probed they located a bullet and extracted it.

The girl was unconscious when taken to the hospital, but late last night the surgeons thought she would live. The police think the girl was struck by a spent bullet.

Thirteen-year-old Emil Mosbacher of 454 East 136th Street was shot in the stomach last night and was taken to the Lincoln Hospital in a dying condition. He was passing a bakery in the basement of 132 Brown Place, the Bronx, at about 9 o'clock, when Peter Klopproph, a baker of that address, who was celebrating with real bullets in his revolver in the basement areaway, fired his revolver through the grating. The bullet hit young Mosbacher and he dropped with a scream.

A big crowd of men, women, and children stormed the bakery, and the police reserves were called out and had to use their clubs to keep the crowd away from the baker.

The boy was rushed to the hospital and Coroner Schwannecke was notified to take the boy's ante-mortem statement, as the surgeons thought he could not live.

One of the most serious accidents reported was due to the bursting of a toy cannon at Walton Avenue and 152d Street, in the Bronx. Hugh McGee and Adolph Bruder were both seriously injured. McGee, who lives at 1,561 Jerome Avenue, had the left side of his face terribly lacerated, and a piece of metal was imbedded in his ankle. Bruder suffered many lacerations of the face and body, and had three fingers on his left hand blown off. Both boys were taken to the Fordham Hospital, where it was said that young McGee is in a critical condition.

Policeman Arthur Hensler of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station saw some young men discharging revolvers in front of 410 West Forty-seventh Street. He made an attempt to arrest them. When he chased them they ran, and at Eighth Avenue Hensler slipped and fell, breaking his right leg. He was taken to Flower Hospital.

Capt. James Shevlin of the Ralph Avenue Police Station, in Brooklyn, and his wife and their six-year-old son, Joseph, were all badly burned yesterday afternoon at their home, 193 Monroe Street, Manhattan, as a result of a firecracker exploding in the boy's pocket. The boy, who had been playing in the street, started into the house, when a playmate dropped a lighted firecracker into his pocket. Capt. and Mrs. Shevlin were at dinner when the boy came into the room. A moment later the cracker exploded. The boy's clothing caught fire, and the parents had hard work putting out the flames. The boy was somewhat burned and his parents quite seriously, but all will recover.

Many cases were reported in which persons had been shot by pistols loaded with real cartridges instead of blanks. In nearly all cases the persons who fired the pistols were able to hide their identity. None of these cases was serious.

The Fire Department was kept busy, as usual, on the Fourth. Every man able to be on duty was at his post all day. About sixty fires, most of them due to Fourth of July celebration, were reported in Manhattan and the Bronx alone, and this total was appreciably augmented by reports from other boroughs. The damage in most instances was only trivial.

Early yesterday morning a pier at 136th Street and the Harlem River, owned by J. Sargent Cram, was endangered when some person threw a firecracker into some rubbish under it. The fire was extinguished in a few minutes. The awning in front of the Walton Clothing Company store, at 439 West 125th Street, blazed up after a smoldering firecracker had been thrown on it, but the flames were soon extinguished.

Additional steamers were put on the Coney Island and Rockaway Lines of steamboats to handle the holiday crowds returning to the city last night. Extra boats were also running on the lines from the New Jersey resorts. Every boat coming in to the city up to late last night was packed to the rails.

It was after midnight when the last boats of the Patten and Coney Island Lines started for the city on their final trips. No accidents were reported on any of the boats.

There were several lively fires in the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western yards in Hoboken, N. J., and on Piers 3, 4, and 5 last night, caused by fire balloons taking fire in the air and dropping on the cars and piers. Chief McGrath of the railroad fire department was in the yards all night with a force of fire fighters.

At one time all three piers were on fire, but the flames were quickly put out. Then the poultry house and round house caught, and, finally, two freight cars caught fire and the roof of one of them was burned off.

Over in Brooklyn the annual observance of Independence Day by the Knights of Columbus was held in Prospect Park yesterday morning in the grove surrounding the music stand. Register William A. Prendergast presided. There was a concert by the Letter Carriers' Band and singing by Mrs. Jennie Campbell Keough. The exercises ended with the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Neighborhood celebrations were held in various parts of that borough. There were carnivals in Flatbush and Bensonhurst. The cottagers in Westminster Road, between Beverly and Cortelyou Roads, joined in celebrating.

A like programme was carried out by the people living in Marlborough Road, between Dorchester Road and Ditmas Avenue. At this celebration the Forty-seventh Regiment Band played concert and dance music in the afternoon and evening.

There was an unusually large number of accidents in Brooklyn, due to reckless firing of pistols. In the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn 6-year old Mary Accaboni of 2,084 Dean Street was shot through the head while playing in the rear yard of her home last night. The doctors said she would die before morning. Anthony Lamagne, 15 years old, of 154 Rockaway Avenue was arrested on suspicion of firing the shot, but protested his innocence.

The principal celebration on Staten Island yesterday was that of the Democratic Club of Richmond Borough, held at New Brighton. The artillerymen from Fort Wadsworth fired a salute and school children sang patriotic songs. Lewis Nixon was master of ceremonies.

There was one serious accident reported from that borough. Edmund W. Egbert, 7 years, of 150 South Avenue, Mariner's Harbor, a grandson of George T. Egbert, Secretary and Treasurer of the Consolidated Fireworks Company, got a piece of wadding from a blank cartridge imbedded in his face. A playmate was said to have handled the pistol, but the shooting was purely accidental. The boy was taken to the Smith Infirmary.

In New Jersey the celebration in Newark was conspicuous in that no salute was fired in honor of the day. There were several athletic meets and six band concerts in the city parks.

Mrs. Eleanor Hatfield of 8 Columbus Street, Newark, was arrested for shooting 15-year-old William Crane in the leg. She said she thought the pistol was loaded with blanks. Albert Merriam of 152 Springfield Avenue will lose an eye as a result of holding a roman candle until it exploded, while Louis Kordatsky, a sailor on the U. S. battleship Nebraska, lost his right hand by the premature explosion of a cannon cracker.

Genevieve Heffron, 4 years old, of 293 New Street, is dying in the Newark City Hospital from burns due to her dress catching fire from a cannon cracker. There were forty-three minor accidents reported from Newark.

In Jersey City Clarence Lane, 11 years old, was badly injured by the explosion of a dynamite cartridge. Nobody seemed to know how he got hold of it. Walter Bugle of the same city lost an eye, and a stable at 104 Lexington Avenue was destroyed as a result of the careless use of firecrackers.

There were big celebrations all through the Oranges and other New Jersey towns, and a number of accidents were reported. The celebration at Plainfield was one of the most pretentious in the State. At Tower Hill, the Summer home of Andrew Freedman, near Red Bank, many prominent men were the guests of Mr. Freedman.

Supreme Court Justice Gildersleeve and Dr. Gil Wiley made speeches. Judge Gildersleeve was a Union soldier and Dr. Wiley a Confederate soldier. They first met on the battlefield at Fayetteville, N. C., in 1865.

Fire Chief Croker expressed himself as well satisfied last night with the way things had gone with the Fire Department. There were fewer big fires this year, Croker said, than on the Fourth in any reecnt year. He thought the people of the city were learning more and more of the danger of fireworks. There were no really big fires in either Manhattan or the Bronx, which is unusual for the Fourth.

Every man in the department, Croker said, except a few who are sick, was on duty.

The total number of arrests in Manhattan and the Bronx yesterday for carrying concealed weapons and unlawfully discharging firearms was estimated by the police as in the neighborhood of 300. Something less than 100 of these cases were taken to the Night Court, where Magistrate Finn held some fifty-odd for trial, and discharged many.

In the Harlem section forty-nine arrests were recorded, and in the precincts bordering on Police Headquarters seventy-two arrests were made. The Bronx had twenty-odd and other sections showed a large number of arrests. Many of these cases will be taken into the Magistrates' Courts to-day.

Two Killed, 384 Injured In New York's Celebration Yesterday.

The record of casualties for the celebration yesterday, in the city, was two dead, two dying, and 384 less seriously injured, credited to Manhattan and the Bronx. Two persons were killed on Sunday, making four deaths altogether for the two days' celebration.

Most of the injuries were due to powder burns, those due to cannon and firecrackers being responsible for a majority of the other cases. The list made up from the police and hospital reports follows.

Twenty-eight cases among the less seriously injured went to Roosevelt Hospital and were treated. The Superintendent refused to make their names public:

THE DEAD.

MANHATTAN AND BRONX.

BROWN, EDITH, 4 years old, of 328 East 153d Street; hit in the head by a heavy nail discharged from a toy cannon; died in Lebanon Hospital.

BURSTING CANNON KILLS TWO.

Mother and Baby the Victims—Two Others Mortally Wounded.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—A woman and a baby in her arms were killed, the top of a boy's head was blown off, and a man was probably mortally wounded by the explosion of a cannon at a fireworks display attended by 5,000 people at Reservoir Park, East Side, Camden, N. J., to-night.

Mrs. Anna Hebel, 450 Liberty Street, Camden, and her six-weeks-old child, were the two killed. Charles Muilion, 17 years old, 1,201 North Eighteenth Street, Camden, is the boy who was fatally injured, and George Hauser, who fired the cannon, was badly hurt.

The celebration was being given under the auspices of the East Side Patriotic Association. The cannon shooting had been planned as a surprise. It was a three-pounder, with a barrel three feet long, and a bore of three inches, and was loaded with three pounds of gunpowder. It stood in a roped-off space in front of the crowd.

Mrs. Hebel sat, with hundreds of others, just behind the rope, and Hauser was standing in front of it. Back of her sat Muilion.

Everybody was watching the ascent of a fire-balloon when the cannon burst. It threw pieces of iron weighing a pound for half a mile.

QUIET DAY AT CONEY ISLAND.

250,000 Persons Visited the Resort—No Work for Police.

Although there were 250,000 people at Coney Island yesterday, the day was a quiet one at the resort. The crowd was good natured and orderly though it filled Surf Avenue and the Bowery to overflowing as well as all the sidewalks. Every amusement enterprise and resort in the place did a rushing business from early morning until late at night. Many people went swimming, although there was chill in the wind.

The Manhattan and Brighton Beach hotels were crowded with guests. At the former place tables were set on the lawns to accomodate the large number of diners. The bands at both hotels were kept busy all day responding to the applause of the crowds which thronged the verandas to hear them play.

In Dreamland, the Igorottes celebrated the Fourth early in the morning by tribal dances and songs. Two youngsters, who have learned to speak English, sang patriotic American songs to the surprise of the crowd that watched them.

INDEPENDENCE DAY OBSERVED IN LONDON

Shackelton, Fresh from Antarctic, Praises Peary at American Society Dinner.

REID RECEPTION THRONGED

Capt. Cloman Entertains Sixty—Ranger Cadets Ashore for Day Cheer Stars and Stripes in Victoria Street.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 5.—An American who is lost to sight in the frozen North was recalled to the minds of some hundreds of his compatriots to-night at the Independence Day dinner of the American Society in London. The dinner was held at the Hotel Cecil. Lieut. E. H. Shackelton, lately returned from the antarctic, was one of the guests of honor, and the chief subject of his discourse was Robert E. Peary.

The antarctic explorer paid a very eloquent because evidently a most sincere tribute to the achievements of the American explorer in the arctic, and was plainly of the opinion that Commander Peary will create a new record in the north, as he (Shackelton) has done in the south, even if he does not actually carry the Stars and Stripes to the pole. He was heartily applauded.

The Japanese Ambassador to Great Britain, Count Takahira Kato, was the other guest of honor at the dinner. Count Kato's theme was the desire of his countrymen for the sincere friendship of the Nation which has been Japan's earliest friend among foreign nations, and his remarks also aroused the enthusiasm of his American hearers. Postmaster General Sydney C. Buxton was another speaker.

The American Ambassador, Whitelaw Reid, sat at the right of the Chairman, George A. Mower, President of the society, and the Japanese Ambassador at the left. The Duke of Argyll proposed a toast to "the President," and a second toast to "the American Ambassador," to which Mr. Reid made a fitting response.

Among the numerous guests were the Earl of Euston, the Earl of Kintore, the Bishop of Ely, the Bishop of Winchester, and the Bishop of Chichester, Anthony Hope Hawkins, Lindon W. Bates, Rear Admiral Thomas a Selfridge, U. S. N., retired, and Lord Fairfax. The Americans present numbered 350.

Ambassador Reid's Independence Day reception at Dorchester House was less largely attended than that of last year, but for upward of an hour the Ambassador and Mrs. Reid stood at the top of the grand staircase shaking hands with the visitors, who mounted four abreast in unbroken succession.

A great marquee had been put up in the garden of the Reid house, where refreshments were served to about 1,500 persons while two orchestras played American airs at intervals.

Among the well-known persons present were the Duchess of Marlborough, J. Pierpont Morgan, Lady Granard, Lady Playfair, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Lewis Harcourt, Lady Strathcona, and Samuel Gompers.

Prior to the Ambassador's reception Capt. Sidney A. Cloman, Military Attaché of the embassy, and Mrs. Cloman gave a luncheon at their house in Great Stanhope Street to sixty guests, all of whom went on to the Dorchester House affair.

The Clomans' guests included D. O. Mills and Creighton Webb, Baroness Rosencranz, Lord Fairfax, Baron Athlumney, the Earl of Munster, Gen. Haldane, Commander Edward Simpson, the American Naval Attaché, and Mrs. Simpson, Commander J. A. Dougherty, U. S. N.; Surgeon E. S. Bogert, U. S. N.; Col. Winn, U. S. A., and Miss Winn.

The cadets of the American training ship Ranger, who were celebrating the patriotic anniversary in London by a tour of the city, gathered in front of the American Embassy on Victoria Street this afternoon and stirred the neighborhood by rousing cheers for the Stars and Stripes.

ARTHUR G. LANGHAM KILLED.

Giant Cracker Bursts in Hand of ex-President of Provident Life.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 5.—Arthur Granville Langham, ex-President of the Provident Life Assurance Society, died in Seymour, Ind., to-day from the effects of having had his right hand shattered by the explosion of a cannon cracker late last night in the celebration of Independence Day.

Mr. Langham was one of a party of fashionable Louisville folk who were spending the week-end at the home, near Seymour, of John K. Peter, Mr. Langham's brother-in-law. A cannon cracker thrown lighted upon the lawn failed to explode, and Mr. Langham took it in his hand and relighted it. The cracker burst in his grasp, mangling the hand frightfully. He was operated upon at once, but never regained consciousness.

Mr. Langham was carried into Mr. Peter's home and Drs. Lucky and Cresser of Seymour were summoned to the residence. They immediately put Mr. Langham under the influence of ether. The operation on the right hand was then performed with seeming success. The wounds were dressed with care and no immediate apprehension was felt until after the physicians had finished their work. Then it was seen that Mr. Langham was sinking. Every effort to bring him back to consciousness failed. He sank slowly until the end came at 1:30 o'clock this morning.

Arthur Granville Langham was born near Birmingham, England. He was about 55 years old, and came to this country when a very young man. He secured employment with Gen. John B. Castleman of the firm of Barbee & Castleman, then Southern managers of the Royal Insurance Company of Liverpool, and later became a partner. He had been with the firm thirty-six years.

Mr. Langham sprang into prominence last year when after a long financial battle he gained control of the Provident Life Assurance Company of New York. After a long struggle for a majority of the stock he was elected President of the company. Although Mr. Langham had secured sufficient money to swing the deal for the control of the company he was unable to maintain it, and resigned a month or two after being elected its head. All New York and Wall Street were talking for months of the financier who came out of the West and captured the big insurance company.

Mr. Langham was the uncle of the Baroness Speck von Sternburg, wife of a former German Ambasador to the United States, and of the Comtesse de Fairamont, wife of the Naval Attaché of the French Embassy at Washington. His widow, formerly Miss Stella Pater of Louisville, is at present with Baroness von Sternburg in Europe.

TAFT PLAN WON'T DO.

Florida's Governor Thinks South Will Stay Solid While Race Question Exists

There were fewer orators at the Tammany Society celebration yesterday than at any Independence Day rally there for years back. This was due entirely to the fact that Gov. Gilchrist of Florida, who was down for the "Long Talk," took the text of the programme so literally that there was little time left for any of the other speakers.

If the Tammany Society was short on orators, it was long on regrets. Nearly every Democrat of first magnitude in the country with the exception of William J. Bryan, had sent word that he could not attend. Mr. Bryan had not been invited.

Tammany Hall was three-quarters filled at the exercises. Tammany leader Murphy sat among the other Sachems on the stage, but left before the meeting was over.

The plan of President Taft to break the "solid South" was taken up and condemned by Gov. Gilchrist of Florida in his long talk.

"President Taft is undoubtedly a good man and worthy of the high office of President of the United States," said Gov. Gilchrist. "In a speech in Philadelphia on April 26 he said that he is looking forward to a division in the parties of the South so that there shall be tolerance of political opinion there, and in State and National affairs more than one political creed to be subscribed to and supported. I believe that generally through the South the men who are not actually engaged in politics would recognize that end as one devoutly to be wished.

"In this connection it will be well to remember that we have a racial question which permeates the political affiliations of the Southland. Instead of discussing the race question as it exists in the South, I will invite your attention to it as it now exists in neutral territory—the far-Western States. Suppose this element—Chinese and Japanese—would, as the negroes in the South, vote practically as a unit. Don't you suppose that the white people of California would combine to preserve their very civilization?

"Suppose this condition existed throughout the entire Pacific Coast and the States bordering thereon—don't you suppose that Mr. Taft would have his hands full in showing these people that there should be more than one creed to be subscribed to and supported? Don't you suppose these people would consider it in a light different from any that might show it to be 'patriotic desire'? Don't you suppose we would hear of a 'solid' Pacific Coast?

"I believe in the 'patriotic desire' of Mr. Taft where such desire can be properly asserted. I want it to become an important plank in the next National Republican platform. Patriotism should begin at home. I want the Republican Party to 'patriotically' break the solidity of the solid New England States and of solid Pennsylvania."

There were eleven orators down for "short talks." Only three of these spoke, however. They were Congressman George F. Burgess of Texas and ex-Congressman Robert ("No Pass") Baker of Brooklyn, and former Corporation Counsel John J. Delany.

"I believe in going back to the ground on which we fought our battles during the days of Tilden and Cleveland when we won National victories," said Mr. Burgess. "Our issues should be low taxation and economy in Federal expenditures."

Former Congressman Baker pleaded with the party to redeem the United States Senate from the rule of plutocracy. Former Corporation Counsel Delany, who was the last speaker, quoted James Russell Lowell on "Democracy."

Govs. Judson Harmon of Ohio, John A. Johnson of Minnesota, Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, T. M. Campbell of Texas, Malcolm R. Patterson of Tennessee, John F. Shafroth of Colorado, ex-Gov. Claude Swanson of Virginia, W. W. Kitchin of North Carolina, M. F. Ansel of South Carolina, George W. Donaghey of Arkansas, and E. R. Crothers of Maryland sent their regrets.

So did minority leader Champ Clark of the House of Representatives, United States Senators Chamberlain, Tillman, Daniel, Bacon, Simmons, McLaurin, Bankhead, Overman, and Taylor; Senator-elect John Sharp Williams, and Congressmen Clayton, Adamson, De Armond, Underwood, and Hobson.

TAFT FOR A SANE FOURTH.

Wrote Approving of Plans Which Were Carried Out in Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—With the young American as subdued and quiet as on a Sunday, Washington to-day experienced the first "safe and sane" Independence Day celebration in its history. Not a firecracker was exploded, as it was not possible to buy a cent's worth of fireworks in the city.

The official celebration of the day consisted of both daylight and night time features. During the forenoon the most extensive exercises were held at the new statue unveiled on Saturday to Stephenson, the founder of the Grand Army of the Republic. Patriotic music, in which the United States Marine Band figured prominently, and an address by Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma were heard by a large crowd. There were also daylight fireworks.

The programme was concluded to-night with a pyrotechnic display on the elipse south of the White House. One of the most interesting features of the day was an auto floral parade under the auspices of a local newspaper through Pennsylvania Avenue and Potomac Drive. Nearly 100 cars, beautifully decorated in all sorts of designs, made up a beautiful pageant. Much interest was manifested in this event.

The following letter was received today by District Commissioner McFarland from President Taft, written before his departure for Beverly, expressing his hearty accord in the "safe and sane" Fourth idea:

> The White House,
> Washington, July 3, 1909.
>
> My Dear Mr. MacFarland:
> I have your letter of July 1 with respect to the celebration of the Fourth of July. I am very sorry that I shall not be in the city on that day, because of a previous engagement; but I am heartily in sympathy with the movement to rid the celebration of our country's natal day of these distressing accidents that might be avoided and are merely due to a recklessness against which the public protest cannot be too emphatic. Very sincerely yours,
>
> WILLIAM H. TAFT.

The Fourth celebration was brought to a close to-night with the illumination of broad Pennsylvania Avenue with red fire torches. The avenue was thronged by thousands of people, but there was no disorder of any kind, and no accidents.

REVOLUTION'S SON CELEBRATES AT 87

Dr. C. L. Morehouse the Only Man Alive Whose Father Fought in the War for Independence.

ON GUARD AT BLOCK HOUSE

Offers a Prayer for the Washington Continental Guards, While His Wife Reads the Declaration.

The only real surviving son of the American Revolution, a gray-bearded man, 87 years old, appeared, as usual, at the exercises in front of the Block House at the Northern End of Central Park on Sunday, the 4th of July. Dr. C. L. Morehouse is not a member of the society known as the Sons of the Revolution, but his father was an aid de camp of Gen. Washington, and the War Department assures him that he is the last surviving son of a man who fought in the Revolutionary War.

Yesterday the doctor, who lives at 304 West Thirtieth Street, talked to a TIMES reporter about himself and his patriotism.

"It has been nearly twenty years now that I haven't missed one Fourth of July. Every year I have gone to the Block House and offered a prayer, after the flag has been raised, and for very many years now, my wife, who is a pure patriot also, has read the Declaration of Independence."

Mrs. Morehouse is a German woman some thirty years younger than her husband. She was born in Güttingen, Germany, in 1848, during a revolution, and she says that this accounts for her patriotism.

"I am equally patriotic in Germany and America," she said, "in my own and my adopted country patriotism is my first thought."

The Washington Continental Guards, of which Dr. Morehouse is Chaplain, dates back to the time of Washington's second inauguration, when it was composed of three regiments under the command of Gen. Sebastian Bowman. On the date of his birthday each year and on each Fourth of July they would march far out into the country to what is now the region just south of 110th Street and reach the Block House in time to raise the flag at sunrise.

This custom has been carried out since the time of Washington, and it is this custom which Dr. and Mrs. Morehouse are now keeping alive. The Washington Continental Guards is the oldest organization of its kind in existence. For a time it consisted only of veterans of the Revolution, then it took in those of the wars of 1812 and the civil war and sons of the veterans of the Revolution, and now it also embraces the soldiers of the Spanish-American war.

"We meet at 840 Seventh Avenue, and Col. Ward is now our commandant," said Dr. Morehouse. "Before that there were many famous men commandants of the order. One of them, Capt. Norman, gave Mrs. Morehouse many famous souvenirs of the Revolution.

"He gave her this sword, which has been carried by all the commandants of the order, and he gave her these medals which were worn by him. One of them is the original medal of the order.

"In the big Centennial parade of 1889 Capt. Norman rode in Gen. Washington's carriage, which for years was in the care of the Washington Continental Guards. It was afterward sold and sent to Mount Vernon by the purchaser. Mrs. Morehouse thought it was a shame to let it go out of New York, so she went to the man who owned it and asked him to let her have it. When he found out who she was and what she had done for the patriotism of America he said he was sorry that he had sent it away."

"I should have used that carriage to instill patriotism in young America. I should have used it in parades in New York until it was as well known as the flag," said Mrs. Morehouse, with her eye flashing.

"My father," continued the doctor, "was born in 1745 and died in 1847, at the age of 102. For a time he was Washington's aide de camp, and he was sent on many dangerous expeditions with messages. My mother for a long time followed the army, and when she was living at home at one time she had only twenty minutes in which to leave her house before the British appeared to burn it. She gathered up a few articles in her apron and escaped."

Dr. Morehouse has a picture which represents Washington and several of his officers, and John Morehouse, his father, known in the army as "Jet" Morehouse, appears in the background. He also preserves with great care a splendid picture of his mother.

These are but a few of the relics which Dr. Morehouse possesses. He still preserves his father's sword, a wonderful old weapon, and many curious old portraits and photographs. He has in his possession most of the relics in connection with the history of the Washington Continental Guards. Among these are two banners which were presented to Capt. Norman after his appearance in the Centennial parade of 1889 by Gen. Daniel Butterfield, who had charge of that parade.

Capt. Norman had asked Mr. Harrison, then President of the United States, to ride in Washington's carriage in the parade, but the President replied that he preferred to ride in a more modern vehicle. Mrs. Morehouse still preserves that letter.

Mrs. Morehouse has been reading the Declaration of Independence at the Block House on the Fourth of July for several years now. She also holds service on Memorial Day at Mount Victory, Cypress Hills, at the grave of Hyram Cronk, the last of the 1812 veterans to die. Abraham S. Dally, one of the commandants of the Washington Continental Guards, lies there near him.

Dr. Morehouse was born on Sept. 16, 1822, at Cazenovia, N. Y. Later he moved to Cleveland, and then to New York. Mrs. Morehouse, who is his second wife, he married in 1882.

At the celebration in front of the Block House on Independence Day there were about 150 people. Mrs. Morehouse read the Declaration of Independence. She introduced Dr. Morehouse, who said a prayer. Then she made an address, and after the people had sung some hymns and "America," Dr. Morehouse made a speech.

NAVY IN BOSTON CELEBRATION

Warships Surround Historic Frigate Constitution—5,000 Sailors Ashore.

BOSTON, Mass., July 5.—Five thousand men of Uncle Sam's Navy, jingling in their pockets $500,000 of the coin of the realm fresh from the Boston Sub-Treasury doled out to them yesterday by Fleet Paymaster McGowan, helped Boston celebrate Independence Day to-day, while nearly a score of warships, including some of the heaviest battleships of the navy, lean-looking cruisers, and smart little torpedo boats, riding at their chains in the harbor around the historic frigate Constitution, formed a picturesque and patriotic foreground for the day's observance with towering Bunker Hill waving its Stars and Stripes high overhead in the background.

Bonfires in every section of the city ushered in the day at midnight, and the revelry began at 4 A. M., when the police restrictions were lifted.

Through an appropriation of $10,000 by the city, various public sporting events, band concerts, and fireworks displays were provided for in different parts of the city.

The annual regatta of the New England Amateur Rowing Association was held on the Charles River in the morning.

Official exercises were held in Faneuil Hall, where Mayor George A. Hibbard presided. The orator of the day was Assistant Corporation Counsel Arthur L. Spring.

The battleship fleet, probably the largest ever seen in Boston Harbor, proved the great attraction of the day, and thousands went out into the harbor in small boats to pass among the battleships and go on board.

TAKAHIRA AT PHILADELPHIA.

Japan, He Says, Will Help Other Nations as America Helped Her.

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—Baron Kogoro Takahira, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, took the leading part here to-day in the Fourth of July exercises at Independence Hall. He received an enthusiastic greeting when he was introduced by Mayor Reyburn to the great crowd that participated in the exercises.

The Ambassador reviewed the struggles of the War of Independence, and referred to the civil war as "the touchstone to test the quality of the national character and strength."

Speaking of the great powers of the world and their responsibilities, he said:

"Japan was introduced into the comity of nations and has been always encouraged in her progress by American diplomacy. This country applied the same principle of equality to nations that it has to individuals when we are still in a modest position.

"In 1878 the United States recognized Japan's tariff autonomy before any other power. She was only second to Great Britain, our honored ally, in taking the initiative in 1894 in surrendering her exterritorial jurisdiction, formed a picturjurisdiction,, which might be called our international emancipation.

"We are using every effort in our power to help the countries near to us to improve themselves and acquire the benefits of modern civilization. We shall, therefore, be happy to see the United States act toward them as she has already acted toward us.

In the room in Independence Hall where the Declaration was signed 133 years ago several scores of descendants of the signers gathered to-day, participating in the city's celebration. Dr. Henry Morris of Philadelphia, the new President, commented on the remarks of Bishop Charles D. Williams of the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan characterizing some patriotic societies as "organisations for mutual admiration, which indulge in harmless patriotic buncombe."

"I agree with Bishop Williams," said Dr. Morris, "that some societies merit that rebuke—in fact, some of which I am a member. But this society is organized for work, not pride, and as long as we follow that motto I do not consider that we are included in the Bishop's remarks."

The officers elected are Dr. Henry Morris of Philadelphia, President; Braxton D. Gibson, Charlestown, West Va., Treasurer; William S. McKean, Washington, Secretary; the Rev. George Washington Dame, Baltimore, Chaplain, and Judge Elbert McC. Mathewson, New Haven, Conn., Historian.

PEACH WINS BOAT RACE.

He's 72 and Beat Andy Keyser in Row Around Robbin's Reef.

The twenty-fifth annual race of the veteran watermen of the Battery front—Bob Peach and Andy Keyser—was pulled off before a large crowd at the Battery yesterday afternoon, and a remarkable record was made by the oarsmen.

Bob Peach was the winner, and the 72-year-old waterman received the congratulations of his friends, while the Batteryites sympathized with Keyser—six years the junior of the winner—because he could not cover the ten-mile course around Robbin's Reef Light in two hours and ten minutes, as did Peach.

It was 3:20 o'clock when the two old men started from the Battery wall in seventeen-foot Whitehall boats. Peach got the start, and held his advantage until he had rounded the reef light and brought his boat back to the basin at the Battery. The record time—better than any ever made by "Honest Bill" Quigley—for the ten miles was two hours and ten minutes.

Keyser finished fifteen minutes later.

The indispensable Suit of blue serge
Have you ever tried the experiment of laying away for a few days the fancy suit you liked so well but which, from continuous wearing, has palled on your taste?
If not, try it! The change to a blue serge will rest your eyes—and when the "fancy" suit is worn again it will seem entirely new.
One cannot live upon relishes alone—and the suit of fancy pattern is like the relish—it does not suffice for "steady diet."
But also must you realize that there are serges of varying degree—not with reference to the quality of the cloth—because only good serges are used by reputable clothes-makers—but concerning the attractiveness of modelling and finish.
Even so familiar an article of dress as the suit of blue serge may attain unwonted distinction. At the hands of our tailormen it always does.

MANY BIDS COME IN FOR THOSE OVER 50

Eighteen Answers Received Yesterday, Though It Was a Holiday.

ONE APPLICANT FROM OHIO

An "Old Man" There Wants to Get in Touch with Employers—Plight of the Worn-Out in Verse.

In spite of the fact that yesterday was a holiday, with every business office and factory closed as tight as a drum, and with few mail deliveries, eighteen replies to the advertisements from men and women over fifty published in SUNDAY'S TIMES had been received up to last night. Two of these came to the Downtown Office by the early morning mail delivery, the only one of the day down there, the remaining sixteen coming to the Main Office in Times Square. These replies were all addressed directly to the advertisers. Many other replies are expected by to-day's mails, and still more to-morrow, by which time the business men will have had an opportunity to get out their letters.

Among yesterday's letters was one from a man over fifty living in Canton, Ohio, who wanted to get in touch with one of the business firms which had notified THE TIMES, as published, that they had been touched by the appeals of the old men and would give such a man employment. Another letter was from Lewis Parodi, General Delivery, City. It said:

> Excuse me for writing, but I am 54 years old, a North Italian born in Turin. Twenty-seven years I have been in America, always in New York, and not in America nor in Italy have I ever been arrested, nor have I ever had any trouble with anybody.
>
> I wish a little job to work a few hours every day, in some hotel, if possible, as driver, waiter, lunch assistant, and so on, or any other kind of work. Please help me if possible. I am hoping for success.

Another correspondent sends in three stanzas of verse taken from his scrapbook. He clipped it some years ago, but is confident it fits the case exactly in describing the seeming attitude of the world, until its sympathies are aroused toward the man of 50 and over. It is given here:

The New Old Man.

Wave him aside—ay, show him the door;
He is just an old man who has seen his best day!
The world has no use for his kind any more—
Why, the hair on his temples is sprinkled with gray!
Who cares for the story he lingers to tell?
You have heard it before—it has often been told;
He is fifty—squeezed out like a lemon, and—well,
He's old!

Tell him to go and sit down in the street
And beg from the people who hurry along;
Throw him a crust—if he still has to eat—
But let him make room for the young and the strong!
His work has been done, and the mold's on his brow,
So push him away—send him out in the cold;
He must turn to his children or charity now—
He's old!

His senses are dulled, and his nerves are worn out,
And he helplessly lags in the heart-breaking race;
Send him forth in the world to be jostled about,
And summon a boy to step into his place!
He has had all the chances he ever may claim;
There is nothing for him that the future can hold—
He is fifty, poor fossil, so cross out his name—
He's old!

Advertisements from those over 50 are already coming in for next Sunday, but they cannot be received later than Thursday noon. Those which were left out last Sunday will also be printed on next Sunday.

PIRATES' VICTIM UNIDENTIFIED

Report of Capture of American Off Borneo Gives No Name.

LONDON, July 5.—Dispatches received by the British Government relative to the capture of an American by pirates off Borneo, give no information concerning the circumstances of the case or the identity of the man.

The latest dispatch received by the Amiralty states that the warship Merlin has resumed her ordinary duty, as her services are no longer required. It had previously been reported that the Merlin was proceeding along the east coast of that territory to render aid to the captured American.

GERMANS NOT FOR WAR.

Bishop of Salisbury Says They Only Want Power to Dictate to World.

LONDON, July 5.—The Bishop of Salisbury, who was one of a deputation of clergymen who recently made a tour of Germany, addressing the Anglican and Foreign Church Society to-day, said that he did not think that there was any real desire for war among the Germans.

At the same time, he found a considerable desire for the power of making war and for the possession of such naval and military supremacy as would enable that country to dictate to Europe in a crisis, or, if necessary, to dictate to the United States.

MARTIAL LAW SUSPENDED.

Czar Restores Civil Regime in Caucasus Except at Tiflis.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 5.—By an imperial ukase, which was issued to-day, martial law has been raised throughout the Caucasus, excepting in the Tiflis district, where there is great insecurity of life, and robberies and kidnappings are still prevalent.

M. Poklewski-Koziell, Councilor of the Russian Embassy at London, has been gazetted Minister at Teheran.

WOMAN'S FIGHT TO COME IN.

Mrs. De Noie to Summon Congressmen to Prove She's Not an Alien.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 5.—Counsel for Mrs. Vera De Noie to-day said that Senators and Congressmen would be called to testify when the woman, who is held in the immigrant detention pen for investigation on the charge that she is an alien and lacking qualifications to enter this country, has a hearing in court.

Mrs. De Noie says she is a native of Iowa, where she lived until seventeen years old. She said that she formerly lived at Long Branch, N. J., where she has relatives. She arrived recently from Hongkong.

FRENCH BISHOP FINED.

Gieure Must Pay $100 for Excommunicating Municipal Councils.

BAYONNE, France, July 5.—Mgr. Gieure, Bishop of Bayonne, who was cited to appear before the Correctional Court for pronouncing ispe facto excommunication against municipal councils, charitable, and other associations, which in any way indorsed the acquisition of property formerly held by the Church, was to-day convicted by default and sentenced to pay a fine of $100.

Two priests, who read the Bishop's pastoral letter from the pulpit, were sentenced to pay fines of $5 each.

SEWER WAR IN QUEENS.

Citizens' Association Expects to Disclose Irregularities in the Department.

Two accountants, backed by funds furnished by the Corona Citizens' Association, and with an order issued by Justice Kelly of the Brooklyn Supreme Court, will begin an attack to-day on the records of the Bureau of Sewers of the Borough of Queens. These records are kept in the Borough Hall in Long Island City, and five weeks ago, when Alderman Joseph Flanagan of the Corona district in Queens, put a resolution through the Queens local board directing the Borough authorities to furnish the records of that department for inspection, he was met with a refusal on the part of President Lawrence Gresser. The latter said he was willing to permit any individual taxpayer to examine the records, but declined to submit them for the examination of accountants employed by Alderman Flanagan.

Following this refusal, Frank Mittenzwie, a resident of Corona and prominent in the Corona Association, made a personal demand on President Gresser for permission to examine the records of the Sewer Department, and met with the answer that he could examine the records himself, but that accountants would not be allowed to make the inspection.

It was then that an appeal was made to the courts, and in his decision Justice Kelly directs that two accountants in the employ of the Corona Association be allowed to examine the records and take notes necessary, but they were not privileged to make complete copies of the records. This examination is an entering wedge for the unearthing of scandals which it is said lie buried in the records of the department.

Sewers costing several million dollars have been built in different parts of Queens since consolidation, and it is said that in some districts sewers have been laid through streets owned by land owners which have never been turned over to the city, and in consequence the city can never collected an assessment against the property benefited. In other instances sewers have been laid through the woods, and it is also charged that in many instances the work was not up to specifications.

PORTO RICO TEACHERS BACK.

Fifty Return from the Island, Reporting Unpleasant Experiences There.

The steamship Caroline, arriving yesterday from Porto Rico, brought about fifty teachers, mostly women, from the island. They were glad to get in because the salaries of the teachers there were held up by the failure of the Porto Rico Legislature to pass the Appropriation bill, and they expected to stay on the island during the Summer waiting for their pay. Dr. E. G. Baxter, the Commissioner of Education, came to their rescue, and the pay question was satisfactorily adjusted.

The life of an American teacher there is not altogether pleasant, according to some of those who arrived. There is an anti-American sentiment. They complain of the cost of living, and as their salaries are lower than in this country, they are confined to a continual menu of rice and beans. Meats and most vegetables are beyond their means.

Some of the young women teachers said they were not going back to Porto Rico because of the hostile feeling, especially in the eastern end of the island, and some because they were tired of teaching the young idea to sprout in the rural districts.

WORLD TRAVELERS AT 75.

Mrs. W. C. Grant and Her Sister Back from a 30,000-Mile Trip.

Mrs. William C. Grant and her sister, Miss Catherine A. Baker of Chicago, who have been on a world-round trip, during which they covered some 30,000 miles, got home yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm.

Mrs. Grant, who is 75 years old, and her sister, two years her senior, sailed from San Francisco on Nov. 5 on the steamship Manchuria for Yokohama. On the way they stopped at Honolulu. Their journey lay through Japan and China to Ceylon.

They visited a number of cities in India, and from there traveled to Morocco. They entered Continental Europe at Marseilles, and spent many weeks in France, Italy, Switzerland, and Germany. On June 26 they embarked at Bremen on the Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm. One of the most interesting trips they made, according to Mrs. Grant, was the ascent of Mount Everett in time to see the sun rise.

Mrs. Grant's son met them at the pier, and the sisters left to spend a few days with him in New Hampshire before going back to Chicago.

WYLLIE MURDER CAUSES RIOT.

Student Interrupts Meeting of Indians Held to Protest Against Assassination.

LONDON, July 5.—An indignation meeting held by the Indian residents to-day to protest against the murder July 1 of Lieut. Col. Sir William Hitt Curzon Wyllie, political aid to Lord Morley, Secretary of State for India, by an Indian student, Madarlal Dhinagri, broke up with a serious disturbance. When a resolution was offered, expressing horror at the crime, an Indian student objected. Immediately there was an uproar. Chairs were thrown and sticks were used freely.

The dissenting student was severely beaten, and was rescued by the police with the greatest difficulty. The disturbance continued for a considerable time, and after quiet was restored the resolution was adopted.

Dhinagri's younger brother made a statement, repudiating his brother and expressing horror at the crime. A verdict of willful murder has been rendered in the case.

That the student had contemplated an attempt at assassination for some time was indicated by records found in his room showing that he had been practicing steadily with a pistol since last January. The notebook gave the results of his shots at varying distances.

GERMAN OUTS HOLD MEETINGS

Radical and Liberal Groups Talk of Forming Composite Opposition Party.

BERLIN, July 5.—Two groups of the Radical Party, and also the National Liberals, held extraordinary conventions in Berlin to-day to discuss action with reference to the finance reform question. The welding of the various Liberal factions into a great united Parliamentary party found support at all the conventions, but no definite steps were taken to carry out the proposition.

All of the conventions, which were held separately, adopted resolutions approving the position taken by the respective parties in the Reichstag and affirming opposition to the new coalition of Conservatives, Centrists, and Poles.

CHINA LOAN CONFERENCE.

Americans to Meet European Bankers in London To-day.

LONDON, July 5.—The first meeting of European and American bankers to arrange for the participation of the latter in the loan of $27,500,000 for the construction of the Hankow—Sze-chuen Railroad, in China, will probably be held in London to-morrow.

In the meantime preliminary negotiations are in progress here between American and English financiers, and a member of the firm of J. S. Morgan & Co. of London has been in Paris arranging for the attendance of French bankers.

Failed to Shout "Votes for Women!"

Several militant suffragettes went to American League Park yesterday afternoon with the intent to shout "Votes for women!" on the field just before or after the close of the New York-Philadelphia game. They contented themselves with seats in the bleachers, and when the ninth inning ended the 14,000 other spectators surged toward the Subway so swiftly that the suffragettes either lost heart or had no chance to carry out their purpose.

FRANCE IS OPPOSED TO TARIFF REPRISALS

Minister Cruppi Says Policy Would Jeopardize Trade and React Upon Its Authors.

FOR BUSINESS AGREEMENTS

Good Ground for Equitable and Reciprocal Concessions to the United States, Minister Declares.

PARIS, July 5.—M. Cruppi, Minister of Commerce, as the Government's spokesman, defined the Government's position toward the proposed tariff revision, in an important speech in the Chamber of Deputies to-day. The French Government, he said, favored a policy of commercial agreements, which pure protectionists, as well as free traders rejected, and consequently opposed any except a moderate and prudent revision, which would not compromise economic relations abroad.

Talk of reprisals should be avoided, he declared, as they often reacted upon the authors. France could not afford to jeopardize her export trade of $1,000,000,000 with customers in England, Belgium, Germany, United States, Russia, Italy, and Spain, and he called attention to the protestations not only from abroad, but from the French export interests against many of the proposed schedules.

M. Cruppi spoke in particularly sympathetic terms of the United States, saying that the French Government fully indorsed the words of M. Barthou, the Minister of Public Works, when he declared that there was good ground for equitable and reciprocal concessions.

For the purpose of negotiations the Government, he said, needed a wider divergence between the maximum and minimum rates than the present tariff afforded, but he thought that the proposed 50 per cent. in many cases was too high. The Government indorsed the proposed rates on turbines, sewing machines, electric lamps, phonographs, and automobiles, which protected new industries. Upon 173 articles, the Government and the Tariff Commission are now in accord, but upon the remainder the Government and the commission disagree, especially on those schedules which threaten friendly relations with Great Britain, Belgium, and Switzerland, and relate to oils and other articles in which the United States is deeply interested. M. Cruppi appealed to the commission to recede from its advanced position upon these schedules.

Several motions were offered to refer the bill back to the Government, but M. Klotz, Chairman of the commission, protested against any action being taken until an opportuity was given to reply to the criticisms on the work of the commission.

TO BAR PRESIDENCY COURSE.

E. G. Cooley Says Education of 30,000,000 Boys Is Misdirected.

DENVER, Col., July 5.—A preparatory course to the Presidency is not the object of the public school system of the United States, or rather it should not be, in the opinion of leaders of the National Council of Education, who spent to-day in a discussion of conditions that must rule the twentieth century. The meeting was one of many to be held during the National Educational Association Convention.

The first session of the council took place this afternoon. Edwin G. Cooley, formerly Superintendent of the Chicago Public Schools, now the President of a Boston book concern, led the discussion of what the American schoolboy needs.

"While it is the privilege of every American boy to try to become President of the United States," said Mr. Cooley, "it does not follow that it becomes the business of the public school system to fit him for that position. Some of these boys are going to be laborers, mechanics, artisans, something besides President, and right now they are neglected.

"It has come to pass that we are educating about 2,000,000 boys for the Presidency, and about 30,000,000 for nothing, because our schools are cramming things into their heads which will be of no use to them when they begin work in the factory or on the farm."

To-night President Nicholas M. Butler of Columbia University was the principal speaker before the general session of the National Educational Association in the Denver Auditorium. John W. Abercrombie, President of the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Ala., spoke on "Ethics in Civil Life." Wilbur F. Gordon of Springfield, Mass., made an address on education and its reference to international peace.

Joseph Swain, President of Swarthmore College, was the principal speaker before the religious education association this afternoon.

HAITI'S PRESIDENT IN WRECK.

Gen. Simon's Train Runs Into Freight—Rides Horseback to Capital.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, July 5.—Gen. Antoine Simon, the President of Haiti, had a narrow escape in a serious railroad accident near Beudet last night. The Presidential train collided with a freight train. A number of cars were wrecked and ten soldiers were killed, while a number of others sustained injuries.

The President was not hurt, and after giving orders for the clearing away of the wreckage and caring for the injured, he mounted a horse and rode back into Port au Prince.

LEMOINE SENT TO PRISON.

Pretended Diamond Maker Gets Sentence of Six Years Besides Fine.

PARIS, July 5.—Henri Lemoine, who, on pretense of being able to make diamonds, defrauded Sir Julius Wernher, head of the De Beers Mining Company, of a large sum of money, was to-day sentenced to six years' imprisonment and a fine of $600 after a lengthy trial.

The court pronounced Lemoine "a vulgar fakir, whose pretensions lacked the semblance of scientific procedure."

STEAMER BURNS, 149 DEAD.

Entire Crew of Japanese Nihoukaimaru Among Those Who Perished.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 5.—When the Japanese steamship Nihoukaimaru was burned to the water's edge six miles off Aomori, on the Chinese coast, on June 14, 149 lives were lost, according to advices received here yesterday.

Of the crew of 16 men not one, it is reported, was saved.

CARD GAME IN THE STREET.

Three Men Accused of Running the "Monte" Swindle Near the Astor.

Charged with operating a three card monte game on the street, three men, describing themselves as Joseph Curtis, 28, of 149 West Twenty-seventh Street; Irving Jeannett, 21, of 221 West Houston Street, and Lewis Grego, 35, of 232 West Thirty-ninth Street, were locked up in the West Forty-seventh Street Station yesterday by Patrolman Bierken.

Bierken said that Curtis, the dealer, and the other two men acting as "cappers," took their stand in Forty-fourth Street, near the Hotel Astor, yesterday morning, and attracted some laborers to their table. Bierken waited for a chance to see money pass hands, he said, and then arrested the trio.

Bierken says poor men have been victimized by men working similar games in the neighborhood.

HEAD HUNTING LOSES FAVOR.

Dean Worcester Introduces Luzonese to Inter-Tribal Athletics as Substitute.

MANILA, July 5.—Insular Secretary of the Interior Dean C. Worcester, returned to-day from his annual tour of inspection among the wild tribes of Northern Luzon. He reports that excellent results have thus far attended the efforts of the Philippine Commission to stop head hunting among the mountaineers and to bring to an end the inter-tribal wars which have kept the interior in a constant state of ferment and uneasiness.

The Ifugaos, the wildest and most turbulent of the mountain tribes, who number over 100,000, have not taken a head for the last twenty-one months, according to the Secretary's report, although they were among the frequent offenders before the present campaign was undertaken.

Secretary Worcester discovered that the mountain men were exceedingly fond of athletic competitions. In furtherance of his desire to bring the tribes into more friendly relations with each other he held a series of fiestas and field meets, encouraging the natives to enter the contests. His plan was well received, and members of tribes that have been at war with each other for centuries engaged in races and strength contests on friendly terms.

The tribes now are engaged in constructing mountain trails between their settlements, the larger towns planning to build high roads for this purpose. The mountain men, too, are engaging more generally in farming and weaving and other peaceful pursuits of the country, and the whole section is more orderly and less turbulent than it has been known to be before.

STRIKEBREAKER KIDNAPPED.

Sunoda Says Striking Japanese Countrymen in Hawaii Put Him on Trial.

HONOLULU, July 5.—Some excitement was created to-day by the arrest of two more leaders of the striking Japanese plantation laborers on a charge of kidnapping and falsely imprisoning T. Sunoda, a Japanese strikebreaker employed on the Waipahua plantation on a profit-sharing basis. Following the arrests, an investigation disclosed the fact that the 2,500 Japanese still on strike have picketed the portion of the city about their quarters, and prevent any person not in sympathy with the movement from entering the camp of the strikers.

Sunoda was seized yesterday near the strikers' camp. He alleges that his captors took him to a room in a Japanese hotel, where he was kept by force while his "case" was "put on trial" before certain officers of the Waipahua Branch of the Japanese Higher Wage Association. At the time of his capture Sunoda declares that he was seeking to procure the services of several Japanese laborers to help him in carrying out his contract on the Waipahua plantation. He told the police that he believed his life would have been in danger if the police had not interrupted the "trial" of his "case" by his countrymen.

The attitude taken by the Japanese Consul and Admiral Ijichi of the Japanese training squadron now in the harbor in regard to this new development is believed to eliminate any possible international complications.

EMPEROR OPENS RAILWAY.

Thirty-Mile Tauern Line in Austria Cost $62,500,000.

GASTEIN, Austria, July 5.—The Tauern Railroad, the new Alpine line connecting Gastein and Spittal, was officially opened by Emperor Francis Joseph to-day in the presence of a large gathering of the Austrian Archdukes, the Ministers of the empire, Members of Parliament, and the public.

So great were the engineering difficulties that had to be overcome in the construction of this line, that although it is only thirty miles long it cost $62,500,000. Eight years were required for the completion of the Tauern tunnel. The railroad greatly shortens the distance between Central Europe and the Adriatic.

BLOCK RUSSIA IN CHINA.

United States, Britain, and Austria Do Not Recognize Manchurian Agreement.

PEKING, July 5.—Great Britain, Austria-Hungary, and the United States have notified China that they do not recognize the preliminary agreement between Russia and China, devised for the administration of the Russian Railroad area in Manchuria.

The three powers declare also that laws affecting the right to reside in the international settlements in China must originate with the treaty powers. The negotiations on this latter subject, which were opend last month and which contemplated detailed regulations, are now blocked indefinitely.

KAISER ARMOUR'S GUEST.

Dined with American on Fourth Aboard Yacht Utowana.

TRAVEMUENDE, Germany, July 5.—Emperor William was entertained at dinner last night by Allison V. Armour of New York.

The dinner took place on board the American's yacht Utowana.

BUELOW'S AID ON TRIAL.

Dr. Hammann, Head of Press Bureau, Charged with Perjury in Divorce Case.

BERLIN, July 5.—The trial began here to-day of Privy Councilor Dr. Hammann on charges of perjury, alleged to have been committed in connection with the divorce of the woman who now is his wife. Dr. Hammann is well known as the Director of the Press Bureau of the Foreign Office, and his relations with Chancellor von Bülow are intimate and confidential.

The former husband of the present Frau Hammann, Prof. Schmitz, publicly accused Dr. Hammann of perjury, whereupon the doctor requested the State Prosecutor to bring the matter to trial. The case is attracting much local attention, owing to the position of the principals. The hearing is to be in private.

LADY GREY IS STRICKEN.

Catches Scarlet Fever at Toronto—Capt. Newton, A. D. C., Is Ill Also.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, July 5.—Lady Grey is ill with scarlet fever at Government House. She is reported this evening as not being in a serious condition. Capt. Newton, aid de camp to the Governor General, has been removed to the Isolation Hospital more seriously ill with the same disease. Lord Grey will return from England as soon as possible.

The Greys, since they came to Canada, have been unfortunate in the matter of illness. Some time ago they suffered from an acute attack of measles, and it will be remembered that Lady Victoria Grenfell, their eldest daughter, died of typhoid fever at Rideau Hall.

Lady Grey is supposed to have contracted her present illness during her recent visit to Toronto to attend the International Congress of Women's Councils. Capt. Newton was in attendance upon her.

GOV. HUGHES HONORS CHAMPLAIN HEROES

Praises Valor of English, French, and Americans in Address at Tercentenary Celebration.

MONUMENT TO DISCOVERER

Judge Barnes's Appeal Cheered by Celebrators at Crown Point—Indians Present "Hiawatha."

PORT HENRY, July 5.—At historic old Crown Point, where three centuries ago Samuel de Champlain, with his Algonquin allies, engaged in battle against the Iroquois, a struggle which has been described as one of the cardinal events of American history, there were begun to-day the ceremonies of a week, undertaken by the States of New York and Vermont in celebration of the tercentenary of Champlain's discovery of the lake that bears his name.

Within the inclosure marked by the majestic ruins of old Fort St. Frederic and in the presence of a holiday throng, Gov. Charles E. Hughes of New York sketched briefly the objects of the celebration. Historical addresses were delivered by ex-Mayor Seth Low of New York and Judge Albert C. Barnes of Chicago, and Clinton Scollard of Clinton, N. Y., read an original poem.

The occasion took on a dual significance, in that it celebrated the 300th anniversary of the discovery of the lake and the 133d anniversary of the independence of the United States.

Gov. Hughes and the other speakers were presented by Walter C. Witherbee, Treasurer of the New York Lake Champlain Tercentenary Committee and a resident of Port Henry.

Gov. Hughes's Address.

Gov. Hughes said, in part:

"Three nations join to-day in common recognition of the sons who here displayed valor and heroism worthy of the highest standards of each. Without taunt or bitterness, without vain regret for the inevitable, without the suspicions of ill-will or the boastings of ill-natured rivalry, we retrace the paths of early strife.

"Champlain and Montcalm, Lords Howe and Amherst, Ethan Allen, Seth Warner, Israel Putnam, Philip Schuyler, and Richard Montgomery forever invest this beautiful valley with the charm of heroic deeds and chivalric loyalty. Here Frenchman, Englishman, and American may find their heroes, and in examples of bravery, of high resolve, and of fearless and unselfish devotion, no one of them need yield the palm to others.

"For more than a century after Champlain passed below this point to aid his savage friends in the contest with their hated enemies, the Iroquois, no permanent settlement along the borders of this lake was effected. It was the scene of warlike expedition, but not until 1731 was this strategic point, a key to the control of this great highway of war, fortified. Fort St. Frederic was then established by the French, and within a few years was made a fortress of first importance. Later, in 1759, the English Commander Amherst, at whose approach the fort was evacuated by the French, undertook the construction, at a cost of many millions, of new and extensive fortifications which were to ensure the permanency of the British control.

"The French, destroying their own work, abandoned their fort to the English. Only a few years later, in 1775, the Green Mountain boy, Seth Warner, with his little band, took possession without a blow. The next year, retreating from Canada, the Americans regarded Crown Point as indefensible, and burying here hundreds of their comrades, pushed on in distress and destitution, to Ticonderoga. It was from Crown Point, later in the year 1776, that Arnold set forth with his little fleet to check the designs of the English General, Carleton, and in defeat, in the battle of Valcour Island, won lasting laurels for the American name by his military skill and indomitable courage. Hither, by rare strategy, he succeeded in returning, but not to stay, and Crown Point again came into possession of the British.

"The next year arrived Burgoyne with his great army, spreading terror and confusion, issuing grandiloquent and insolent proclamation, sweeping with resistless force to Fort Edward, holding Crown Point and reducing Ticonderoga, only to meet the appalling disaster of Saratoga, where the success of the American arms destroyed the basis for British hope of dominion over the Colonies, and assured the final success of the cause of independence."

Seth Low's Speech.

Seth Low, former Mayor of New York, spoke after the Governor. He said in part:

"It is the happiest feature of this celebration that representatives of France, of England, of Canada, and of the United States, and of the Indian aborigines, are met here on terms of amity and concord, on this spot where so often in the olden days they met as enemies under contending banners. Surely the enduring lesson of such a gathering as this is not only that the plough gives a securer title to the land than the rifle, but also that 'peace hath her victories no less renowned than war.' The nations that used to be constantly at war on both sides of the Atlantic are knit together now by ties of mutual respect and mutual esteem. Out of this happy concord may there continually develop a spirit of good-feeling, which more and more, as the centuries roll on, shall grow into an all-embracing brotherhood of men."

Judge Barnes, who was born on the opposite shore of Lake Champlain, at Chimney Point, where he was surrounded with the traditions and history of the lake in early childhood, pointed out that the occasion ought not to pass without a reassertion of Crown Point's claim to the site of the battle of Champlain. He caught the approval of the crowd when he said that "here, then, of all places on this lake, should be erected a monument to the memory of the great explorer, who more than any other of his time was actuated by a worthy zeal for State and religion."

It will be recalled with reference to the remarks of Judge Barnes that the New York and Vermont commissioners contemplate the erection of a memorial to the discoverer, but its location has been a source of discussion and has not yet been selected.

Judge Barnes was also applauded when he referred to the crumbling ruins of Amherst's fort, erected at a cost of £2,000,000 by the English in years gone by.

"This era ought not to go by," he said, "without the suggestion that a grateful people should protect from further ruin this best-preserved relic of the 'times that stirred men's souls.'"

Clinton Scollard's Poem.

Clinton Scollard then read an original poem. The first four stanzas follow:

Midsummer! and the world a full-blown flower,
  This wide new world as virgin as its sod;
As wondrous seemed it that unfolding hour
  As did the blossoms upon Aaron's rod!

That distant hour when first his falcon eyes
  Gazed on this far out-rolling inland main—
A flawless jewel under flawless skies—
  The knightly-hearted, valorous De Champlain.

No man of pomp, no silken courtier he,
  No selfish grasper after Glory's star,
But one who wore undimmed the fleur de lis
  Like his brave patron, Henry of Navarre:

Bred where Biscayan gales fling up the brine,
  His look was level as a couch-ed lance,
A valiant son of that intrepid line
  That gave fair lustre to the fame of France.

Gov. and Mrs. Hughes and members of the New York Commission came down the lake from Plattsburg early in the day on ex-Representative J. C. Sibley's yacht Valcour, reaching Port Henry shortly before noon. As the yacht, flying the State flag, drew alongside the dock, they were welcomed by Commissioner Witherbee and driven to his home, where they were entertained at luncheon, as were several of the Vermont Commissioners.

The Witherbee family is also entertaining Robert Taft and Miss Helen Taft, children of the President. They attended to-day's celebration.

After luncheon the Gubernatorial party boarded the Valcour for Crown Point, where they viewed the first production of the Indian pageants given on a huge floating island. Scores of Indians from the Canadian reservation, in their savage toggery of plumes and war paint, gave an interesting production of the Indian version of Hiawatha, concluding with Champlain's battle. The addresses were delivered later in the old fort.

Swinging at her anchor a short distance from the site of the pageant was a reproduction of Champlain's carval, Don de Dieu, which was used last Summer at the Quebec tercentenary. The Tenth Regiment, N. Y. N. G., which had been encamped at Crown Point for more than a week, was reviewed by the Governor during the afternoon, and to-night he and the Commissioners and guests left for Fort Ticonderoga, the scene of to-morrow's celebration. The Indian pageants were repeated to-night and there was an elaborate display of fireworks at Crown Point.

President Taft, Vice-President Sherman, Ambassadors Bryce of Great Britain and Jusserand of France, Gov. Prouty of Vermont and members of the New York State Legislature are to attend the ceremonies at Fort Ticonderoga to-morrow.

Plattsburg Celebrates.

At Plattsburg there was a military and civic parade, followed by Independence Day addresses by Dean L. H. Bailey of the Cornell College of Agriculture; Dr. A. C. Love of the United States Department of Agriculture, and E. B. Norris, Past Master of the State Grange. During the afternoon there were athletic sports and fireworks and band concerts to-night.

To-morrow's celebration is in charge of the Franco-Americans and will open with high mass at St. Peter's Church, with companies of the Pontifical Zouaves and a large number of troops attending. There will be a parade, including a series of historical floats, illustrating the sequence of events in the life of Champlain and in the history of the city.

Under the auspices of the Ticonderoga Historical Society at Fort Ticonderoga a reproduction of the cross raised by Gen. Montcalm on July 9, 1758, in honor of his victory over the British General, Abercrombie, was raised with impressive ceremonies by representatives of the French-American societies and French-Canadian societies.

The religious ceremony was conducted by the venerable Father F. X. Chagnon, Chaplain Emeritus of the Union of the St. Jeanne Baptiste of America. Delegates from Boston, Chicago, Quebec, Montreal, Fall River, and other points were present.

An address was delivered by Dr. Hugo Du Buque, ex-President of the Franco-American Historical Society of New England.

A paper on Montcalm was read by J. Arthur Favreau, the society's Secretary.

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 5.—The tercentenary celebration of the discovery of Lake Champlain began at 6 A. M. with a sunrise salute of cannon and the ringing of the church bells. Band concerts in City Hall Park were arranged for morning, afternoon, and evening. There were civic and military parades.

During the forenoon special tercentenary exercises were held in City Hall Park. Congressman D. J. Foster of Burlington presided, and the speakers included Gov. George H. Prouty, the Right Rev. A. C. A. Hall, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Vermont, and the Rev. Dr. G. G. Atkins of Detroit, Mich.

AIRSHIP FLIGHTS A FIZZLE.

10,000 People Indignant at Failure of Aeronautic Exhibit at Morris Park.

There was great disappointment among 10,000 people at the old Morris Park track yesterday afternoon when the proposed aeronautic exhibition failed to take place and some half a dozen impromptu motor cycle races were provided to amuse the crowd while Glenn S. Curtiss, the aviator, was waiting for the wind to die down sufficiently to allow him to make two short flights with the aeroplane of his invention, which is now the property of the Aeronautic Society.

Advertisements had announced balloon flights with parachute jumps, dirigible balloon races, wind wagon races, and glider flights, and in anticipation of an afternoon of excitement fully 10,000 people went to the park. By 4 o'clock, the hour scheduled for the first event, the grand stand was filled and the lawns were crowded with people.

Then it was that the first event was announced as a motor cycle race. This was for ten miles, but on account of a misunderstanding of the contestants it ended in a fluke. Then it was decided to run it over for five miles, and this, too, was just as bad from the point of view of the spectators. Then another motor cycle race of twenty-five miles started. By this time the crowd was furiously angry, and shouts of "Get something in the air" were heard on all sides.

Then a glider was taken out and Snyder's aeroplane was rolled from its shed in view of the spectators, but that was all there was to it. In a few minutes a man named Green came out with a dirigible balloon, but there was not gas enough to lift it from the ground more than a few feet, and this, too, proved a fiasco, and the balloon was carried back to its quarters. One glider was hooked to an automobile and towed at a height of ten feet a distance of 100 yards.

There were cries of "Where is Curtiss?" and this aviator brought his machine to the track. "The wind is not just right," he said. "We must wait a while."

The minutes rolled into hours and it was not until 8 o'clock, when more than three-quarters of the crowd had become disgusted and gone home, that Mr. Curtiss decided to make two short flights. This he did and succeeded in the last one in partially circling the mile track in an effort to win the President Bishop Prize of $250.

BALLOON PITTSFIELD WINS.

North Adams, Defeated in Race Over Berkshires, Has Thrilling Landing.

CHESTER, Mass., July 5.—In an interesting twenty-mile point-to-point balloon race from Pittsfield over the Berkshire Mountains to this town to-day, the balloon Pittsfield, piloted by William Van Sleet, defeated the North Adams No. 1, with N. H. Arnold as pilot, by about five miles, the former landing close to the town line here, while the latter came down in Southampton.

The two airships left Pittsfield at 11:30 A. M. with a strong northwest breeze blowing. At noon both were over the mountains, and at 12:20 P. M. the Pittsfield came down in the adjoining town of Huntington, but close to the Chester line.

The North Adams No. 1 landed ten minutes later in Southampton under circumstances which were rather thrilling, as the drag ropes and anchor caught in trees and swung the balloon down so that the netting also caught, nearly throwing the three men out of the basket.

Those in the North Adams besides the pilot were Carl A. Grout and E. L. Snyder of Pittsfield, while with Mr. Van Sleet in the Pittsfield were Miss Mildred Hill and Daniel Cullen, also of Pittsfield.

AMERICANS UP IN BALLOON.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Bishop and Mr. and Mrs. Griscom Take Trip Over Paris.

PARIS, July 5.—Cortlandt Field Bishop, foreign representative of the Aero Club of America, and Mrs. Bishop, Lloyd C. Griscom, the former American Ambassador at Rome, and Mrs. Griscom celebrated the Fourth of July by a balloon trip aboard the St. Louis, the defender of the Gordon Bennett Cup at St. Louis in 1907.

Wright Works on New Aeroplane Cover

DAYTON, Ohio, July 5.—Orville Wright, who arrived here yesterday, is hard at work in the shop to-day making a new cloth cover for the lower plane of the machine that was injured by collision with a tree in the last flight at Fort Myer. He does not expect to resume flights until next week.

PRESIDENT PRAISES RELIGIOUS LIBERTY

Mr. Taft Rejoices That America Has Outgrown Intolerance of Its First Settlers.

NORWICH GIVES A PAGEANT

To Celebrate Its 250th Anniversary It Represents the Leading Events in the History of the City.

NORWICH, Conn., July 5.—President Taft was the chief figure to-day in the celebration of the 250th anniversary of this old New England town. In the address he delivered, after the military parade and civic display, he found a theme in the influence religion had in the growth of Norwich, and took occasion to express his pleasure at the liberty of religious belief.

The President urged that every man should be allowed to worship God in his own way, and declared, amid laughter, that though the first settlers in America professed to come to escape religious intolerance, as a matter of fact they were determined to follow their own religious ideas in their own way, and had a large degree of intolerance toward any other form of belief.

"We have passed beyond that now," Mr. Taft went on, "and are coming more and more to realize the right of the individual to worship God as he may choose."

The programme of the day was given up almost entirely to the commemoration of historic incidents, but it opened with a very modern item, the flight over the city of "The California Arrow," Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin's airship.

At 10 o'clock the President, accompanied by Capt. Butt, his aid, and Assistant Secretary Mischler, arrived on a special train from Boston. He was greeted by Mayor Costello Lippitt, Winslow T. Williams, President of the Celebration Committee, and his brother, Horace D. Taft. As he alighted from the train a battery on Geers Hill fired the salute of twenty-one guns.

He was cheered enthusiastically by the crowd outside the station and was driven immediately to Rockwell Terrace to witness an open-air pageant depicting the life of Norwich from its foundation.

First there were the wars between the Mohican and Narragansett tribes of Indians and the purchase of the site of Norwich town from Uncas. Revolutionary days and the welcome to Washington were next represented, and then came the return of the soldiers from the civil war, the dawn of peace, the present day, and the hope of the future.

After luncheon the President reviewed a parade, and rode for a time at its head, immediately in advance of the battalion of midshipmen from Annapolis, who had left their ships at New London to attend the celebration. When the parade was over Mr. Taft addressed the people from the reviewing stand, held a reception in the Buckingham Memorial, and witnessed a display of fireworks.

In his address the President referred to the wonderful history of Norwich, the "Rose of New England," and dwelt particularly on the influence in its earliest days of the Rev. James Fitch.

"The State was behind him, and the men and women of the community were obliged to conform to rules of morality and life which he laid down," he said. "We speak with great satisfaction of the fact that our ancestors came to this country to establish freedom of religion. Well, if you are to be exact, they came to establish freedom of their own religion, and not the freedom of anybody else's religion. The truth is that in those days such a thing as freedom of religion was not understood. We look with considerable horror on these particular denominations that punished our ancestors, because they wished to have a different kind of religion, but when our ancestors got here in this country and ruled they intended to have their own religion and no other.

"But we have passed beyond that. We have developed a freedom of religion that came naturally as we went on to free institutions. The Rev. James Fitch could not look upon any other religion in this community with any degree of patience, but his descendants, as firm in the faith as he was, now see that the best way to promote Christianity and the worship of God is to let every man worship as he chooses."

The President also spoke of the difficulties of self-government, and said:

"Some people so construe the Declaration of Independence that they would make it mean that any body of men is born with the instinct of self-government. That is not true. Self-government has been fought out in the history of this world, and by certain races has been hammered out by a thousand years of struggle.

"What was true with respect to our ancestors is also true with respect to many races in this world to-day. They have to be led on and taught the principle and lesson of self-government. Our ancestors by a wise negligence in the home government for nearly 200 years came to be the best prepared people there were in the world for self-government."

Later in the evening Mr. Taft left for Albany, where he will be joined to-morrow by other distinguished guests, en route to the tercentenary celebration at Lake Champlain.

On the way from Boston to Norwich the President's train stopped for a few minutes at Putnam. Mayor McGarry and Postmaster F. Z. Letters were introduced to the President. Mr. Taft declared he thought that Mr. Letters ought to make "a mighty good postmaster." The President appeared on the rear platform of the train and addressed the crowd:

"I want to say," he began, "that I am very much in favor of the weather of Massachusetts to-day."

"This is Connecticut," interrupted a gruff voice from the crowd.

"I'll have to study up my geography," rejoined the President, laughing heartily.

The train slowed down almost to a stop at [illegible], a few miles out of Norwich. Practically all of the residents were at the little depot to cheer the President's train as it went by.

For a time to-day there promised to be a hitch in the announced programme of the parade, for there was something of a controversy as to which one of the citizens of Norwich, who had been prominent in arranging the celebration, should ride in the President's carriage. Some thought that Mayor Lippitt should be the one selected, while others adhered to the right of a town representative to the honor. The matter was settled without the President's knowledge, and Mr. Williams, who had been his host, and who was President of the Celebration Committee, was accorded the privilege. Capt. Butt, the President's military aid, also was in the envied equipage.

THE CINCINNATI IN NEWPORT.

Rhode Island Society Elects Col. Asa Bird Gardiner President.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 5.—The annual meeting of the Society of the Cincinnati in Rhode Island and the Providence Plantations was held in the old State House to-day. The officers elected for the year were:

President—Col. Asa Bird Gardiner, New York.
Vice President—Charles Warren Lippitt, Providence.
Secretary—George Washington Olney, New York.
Assistant Secretary—Charles L. F. Robinson, Newport.
Treasurer—Brig. Gen. Hazard Stevens, U. S. A., Boston.
Assistant Treasurer—Thomas Arnold Peirce, East Greenwich, R. I.
Chaplain—The Rev. Henry Barton Chapin, D. D., Ph. D., of New York.

At the conclusion of the morning exercises the members were entertained with a luncheon at the residence of former Governor Charles Warren Lippitt. Public exercises were held in the Senate Chamber of the State House this afternoon which included the address of Prof. George P. Baker of Harvard on "A Rhode Islander of the Revolution." The "Sword of Bunker Hill" was sung by Augustus Franklin Arnold to the accompaniment of Albert Ross Parsons, the President of the American College of Musicians.

The annual dinner of the society was held to-night in the Casino Club. The room was decorated with the American flag and the colors of the society. The French flag also occupied a conspicuous place.

VIRGINIA'S STATUES READY.

Commission Will Insist That Both Washington and Lee Must Be Accepted

Ex-Judge George L. Christian of Richmond, Va., and State Senators Don P. Halsey of Lynchburg, Va., a nephew of United States Senator John W. Daniel, and R. B. Davis of Petersburg passed through the city yesterday on their way home from Providence, R. I., where as members of a special Virginia commission they inspected the bronze reproduction of Houdon's statue of Washington to be presented to the National Government.

This statue, together with that of Gen. Robert E. Lee, already completed, will constitute Virginia's representation in Statuary Hall in the National Capitol, provided the Federal Government will take Lee's with Washington's, otherwise Virginia will not be represented at all, according to members of the commission.

"It is both or none," said a member of the commission yesterday. "The Legislature felt, and its commission heartily agrees with it, that Virginia in offering Washington and Lee has selected two of her sons without peers in the history of the country for elevation of character and ability, and if the Government should reject the statue of Lee because he was the commander of the Confederate armies the commission is empowered by the Legislature to withdraw the offer of the Washington statue. A second offer at some future time either of these two or of any others by Virginia is unthinkable."

The two statues are now in the Gorham foundry at Providence. Ex-Judge Christian, an ex-Confederate soldier who left a leg on the battlefield of Chancellorsville, said before sailing by the Old Dominion Line for Richmond that the commission regarded the Gorham cast of the Houdon marble well-nigh perfect and wholly satisfactory. The model was made from the Washington statue in the Capitol at Richmond by a new process, and the effort was regarded in some quarters as an experiment. Every precaution was taken at the time to protect the Houdon statue, the only one of Washington made from life in existence.

The statue of Gen. Lee, designed by Edward V. Valentine of Richmond, was cast earlier, and the presentation of both will take place early in the coming Winter.

NOT SO MANY STRAP-HANGERS

Public Service Commission Reports a Considerable Reduction on Surface Lines.

The Public Service Commission has completed an inspection of the surface lines of this city to discover to what extent its orders against the overcrowding of cars has been observed, and the report to the commission of its Bureau of Transit Inspection reveals that improvement to the extent of 11 to 57 per cent. has been noted on nine lines in Manhattan. The one exception is the Kingsbridge line.

The Madison Avenue line, which formerly had averaged 59 passengers to the northbound car and 45.5 to the southbound, 163 and 136 per cent., respectively, of the seating capacity of 36, showed a reduction of 31 and 11 per cent. for the north and south bound cars, respectively.

The Grand Street crosstown line showed a reduction of 37 and 25 per cent. from 185 and 153 for west and east bound cars; the Third and Amsterdam Avenue line changed from 163 and 103 per cent., north and south bound, to 113 and 62. The Lexington Avenue line, which formerly loaded to 121 and 122 per cent. of its seating capacity for north and south bound traffic, respectively, showed a reduction of 16 and 23 per cent.

The Eighth Street line to Brooklyn was reduced from 164 per cent. westbound and 203 eastbound to 103 and 87. The Christopher Street line, formerly loading 124 and 121 per cent. of its seating capacity, was reduced to 68 and 87 per cent. The Fourteenth Street cars, formerly loaded to 198 per cent. eastbound and 157 westbound, now carry 113 and 130, respectively.

Wisconsin Sanitarium Destroyed.

FOX LAKE, Wis., July 5.—The Peerless Hotel and sanitarium was destroyed by fire early to-day, entailing a loss estimated at from $50,000 to $75,000, with little insurance. The entire equipment of electric bath system was lost, together with part of the valuable library and appliances of Dr. McKinley.

GROUND BROKEN FOR HUDSON MONUMENT

Justice Giegerich Presides at Ceremonies on Spuyten Duyvil Hill.

LITTLE GIRLS TURN THE SOD

Column to be 100 Feet High on Site 200 Feet Above Tidewater—Boys Wanted to Dig Instead of Girls.

Four dainty little maidens, dressed in white, with red, white and blue ribbon in their hair, and wearing orange and blue sashes, broke ground yesterday afternoon for the monument that is to be erected on Spuyten Duyvil Hill, 227th Street and Independence Avenue, to the memory of Henry Hudson, the first white navigator of the river which bears his name.

The exercises were under the auspices of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission, and marked the first of a series of ceremonies to be observed between now and the Fall. The monument, which is to cost about $100,000, is to be erected by private subscription and will represent Hudson standing on the top of a hundred-foot column. The details of the enterprise are in the hands of a special committee consisting of Dr. James Douglas, George W. Perkins, J. J. McKelvey, Cleveland H. Dodge, and William C. Muschenheim.

Supreme Court Justice Giegerich presided at yesterday's function. Among those present were the Rev. David Baines Griffiths of Edgehill Church, Spuyten Duyvil; Congressman J. A. Goulden, Louis F. Haffen, President of the Borough of the Bronx; Gen. Delafield, Edward Hagaman Hall, and the Rev. Father M. J. Murray of Riverdale Catholic Church.

Justice Giegerich said the monument, when in place, due to its high elevation, will be seen for miles around; to the west from the river and the Palisades on the opposite shore, to the east from the Sound, while it will be in plain view for miles both north and south.

After addresses by Congressman Goulden and Edward Hagaman Hall, the latter being one of the Secretaries of the Hudson-Fulton Commission, Justice Giegerich called on the Misses Hope Johnson, Dorothy Radley, Helena Cox, and Jane McKelvey, daughters of residents of the district, to turn the sod. They were supplied with silver trowels and pails, the latter painted red, white, and blue.

Mr. Hall in his address said:

"We turn this sod in the name of Henry Hudson and in memory of those people who first lived here and who gave him such a hospitable welcome.

"In the name of the Hudson-Fulton Commission," said Mr. Hall, "I pronounce the work of the erection of the Hudson Monument begun."

Loud applause greeted the little misses as they vigorously turned to and soon had the turf off and their pails full of dirt. The exercises then closed with the benediction by Father Murray.

After the exercises refreshments were served in the ground of Mr. Muschenheim's house near by. It was said that the small boys in the neighborhood were indignant because girls were selected to turn the sod instead of themselves and in consequence they stayed away from the ceremony.

A reporter who wished for some excitement threw a lighted match into some dry grass in a field adjoining the place where the crowd was standing. A mounted policeman saw the smoke and fire and quickly put out the blaze. No one else seemed to notice the fire.

PUBLISH PAPERS JUST FOR FUN

Amateur Journalists Who Do It Now in Session Here.

The thirty-fourth annual convention of the Amateur Press Association is on. It opened on Sunday with an informal reception and dinner at the Broadway Central Hotel. Then there was another dinner yesterday, and a couple of automobile trips to the principal points of interest thereabout. To-day there will be a third and final dinner and a couple of other automobile trips, including a visit to the Bowery and the Chinese Joss temple in Chinatown.

This association was started in Philadelphia in 1876 by James M. Beck, then a boy, but since an Assistant United States Attorney General, and now a New York lawyer. It has chapters all over the country, many of them being in this city, and it has many hundreds of members. One hundred and fifty of them, representing all parts of the continent, especially Boston, are here now.

As one of these members explained yesterday, the association appeals to those men and women who have got printer's ink in their veins and a certain mercenary shrewdness in their heads which keeps them out of journalism proper. So they print their own little papers on their own little printing presses, and circulate them free among the members of the association.

From among their numbers, stimulated by the atmosphere of the association, have come some authors, notably Frank R. Bachelder, Edwin Markham, Minna B. Irving, and the single taxer, Joseph Dana Miller.

The most prominent amateur papers in this city are The Gothamite and The Brooklynite.

To-day will be election day with the amateur journalists, and there promises to be a fight, for woman's suffrage has got into the blood of some of the members. The Boston people have the firm intention of electing for President Mrs. Edith Miniter of that city.

NAVY WANTS MORE MEN.

Believes It Can Enlist Them Now if Congress Will Extend Limit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Congress is to be asked in December to authorize a substantial increase in the number of enlisted men permitted to the navy. This became known to-day when the Navy Department discovered that it was within 200 of the complete enlisted strength it is permitted to recruit.

Recruiting is progressing better than it has for years, in spite of the urgent demand for farm labor in the Middle West and South, and the material that is being taken into the naval service is better than it has been for years. The department is anxious not to disturb this condition of affairs, for it has spent large sums in interesting the substantial youth of the country in the service, and now that it is reaping the results of this missionary work it hopes its reward will not be taken from it. There is actual necessity also that the number of men to equip the warships be increased. A number of new battleships are rapidly nearing completion and there will not be men enough to handle them under present conditions.

TO CUT FORT APPROPRIATIONS

That Will Be One Result of Dickinson's Tour of Inspection.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Secretary Dickinson returned to Washington to-day after an extended trip of inspection of the Atlantic Coast fortifications, from New York to Portland, Me. This trip, which was acclaimed by the Coast Artillery Corps, may yet cause consternation in that branch of the service, for it developed to-day that the Secretary of War undertook the journey in an attempt to discover wherein the appropriations for the army establishment may best be cut. The coast fortifications up to this time practically have escaped the pruning inflicted on all the other branches, but as a result of Mr. Dickinson's investigation, it is now expected that there will be cuts in the amounts set aside for the protection of the coast cities and ports.

The Secretary is well satisfied with the results of his trip, so far as his observance of the fortifications is concerned. He praises the discipline of the men behind the big guns and the manner in which the latter are served.

The inspection of the forts will enable the Secretary to make certain reductions in the appropriations for them, and will aid in getting within the $20,000,000 cut that President Taft expects the army budget to stand. This reduction is to be below the high mark set by the Army Appropriation bill passed at the last session.

Annual July Mill and Factory Sale

Commences this morning. We have been preparing for this sale for months, as is our invariable custom, and have most carefully sifted and resifted the lots of goods offered us. We rejected there and selected here, until the mountains of goods for personal wear and household use reached the height we deemed necessary to meet the requirements of the thousands of patrons of the sale.

It is needless to say that buying in such quantities from manufacturers would in itself bring prices down to an extremely low point, but the pressure that we brought to bear, the outlet we afford makers in their usually dull month, were factors that worked for the good of your purse. Brief instances of the large savings possible follow:

THE DAY WE CELEBRATED.

In the Autumn, when all the deaths from tetanus in the hospitals caused by Independence Day gunpowder wounds are recorded, we shall know, better than we know now, how much nearer this year's celebration was to the sane ideal than others of recent years. The annual protest against marking the anniversary of our National birthday by mutilation and destruction has been growing more articulate and emphatic recently. This year the newspapers throughout the land have joined vigorously in the protest. Yet the lists of fires caused by fireworks, and the casualties incident to the ancient manner of celebrating the day, are formidable enough, and when a count is taken of the killed and wounded, the average record of the past may be equaled. More than an ordinary lifetime of earnest effort will be required to abolish the use of gunpowder on the Fourth of July.

The Fourth this year was not the day we celebrated. Yet fireworks blazed in all directions Sunday night, and the noise of explosions was heard throughout the day. At least fifteen persons were killed in various towns and cities that off day, and the number of the wounded by fireworks on Sunday, according to The Chicago Tribune, was 123. This, in spite of the fact that in many cities the use of fireworks on Sunday was expressly forbidden. For the two days the list of casualties in this city alone numbers 200 or more.

The movement for a "sane Fourth" extends all over the country. Celebrations by parades and pageants are favored. The best judgment of the country discountenances alike the firecracker, the rocket, and the decorative colored fire. The burning of gunpowder for fun ought to be stopped. Yet we must make up our minds that it will persist with more or less force while the present generation lasts. The boys want to do as their fathers did, and too many of the fathers, still unenlightened, take pleasure in having them do so. But concerted action, intelligent argument, good judgment will prevail in time, and Independence Day will cease to be the day of gunpowder blindness, conflagration, torn limbs, and lockjaw.

A FREE-TRADE ORGANIZATION.

A movement was started on the anniversary of National independence to promote "absolute and unconditioned freedom of trade between the peoples of the earth." The gentlemen who have begun this movement are thirteen in number, and are from eight of the States, viz., New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, California, and Louisiana. The veteran JOHN BIGELOW heads the list, and among the others are CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, ex-Gov. TOM L. JOHNSON, Prof. SUMNER, President DAVID STARR JORDAN, GEORGE FOSTER PEABODY.

The halfscore arguments these gentlemen present against protection are all familiar, and, for the most part, sound. There is no denying that protection, in theory, is sheer State Socialism, or that in practice it brings about the exploitation of the many by the few, which State Socialism is bound to produce. Any system that makes political control a rich money prize must, soon or late, concentrate organized pecuniary interests on the task of gaining and keeping that control. And it is inevitable that in this process the interests will get to be more and more greedy. As their growing greed excites resentment, the unthinking turn to some other form of Socialism for relief. Mr. ALDRICH is to-day the most effective and dangerous Socialist propagandist in the United States.

Logically, the remedy for the evils of protection is free trade. Our own experience proves that it is an effective remedy and a good preventive. The United States maintain "absolute and unconditioned free trade" over a greater territory, among more millions of people, in greater and richer markets, than are to be found elsewhere on the face of the earth. It was the most signal evidence of wisdom the framers of our Constitution showed, that they established permanent freedom of commerce everywhere within the actual, or future, boundaries of the Republic. This has offset many of the ill-effects of the restrictions on foreign commerce, and has enabled us steadily to grow in wealth and power despite those restrictions. Indeed, it is now probable that the breaking down of those restrictions will come through the advance of the country in productiveness, through the glutting of the home market, and the need of markets abroad. Meanwhile it is a good thing for the country that the principles underlying the conflicting policies shall be systematically discussed. Free exchange in thought, in argument, in political action, Mr. ALDRICH and his clients cannot suppress.

THE JAPANESE AMBASSADOR.

Japanese rumors we have always with us, and their abundant supply, by a stern economic law, tends to reduce their value. The latest, which receives some credence among diplomatists at Washington, is to the effect that the Japanese Ambassador is to be recalled because he is not "stiff" enough in his demeanor toward our Government, and that he will be replaced by a gentleman of less ingratiating manners, who will take up the question of renewing the pending treaty in a different spirit.

It may turn out that way. Japan, like the United States, has home politics to consider in its foreign policy, and the so-called military party is reported to be gaining in influence. But it is very unlikely that not only the Ambassador, but the distinguished Annapolis graduate who recently had such a cordial reception here, should have been allowed to give emphatic and unqualified expression of the most friendly sentiments, and to take so confident a view of the future relations of the two countries, if the Ambassador was on the eve of recall for the reason current in Washington. It is perfectly well understood by the statesmen of both countries that the question of the immigration of Japanese laborers to this country is a difficult and delicate one and requires the utmost tact and goodwill on both sides for successful adjustment. The Japanese Government has repeatedly expressed its desire to restrain and gradually to put a stop to such immigration. It has taken practical steps in that direction, and these have had as much effect as could be expected up to the present time. At the same time our own Government has striven to avoid all unnecessary friction and to respect Japanese sensibilities. In other words, the two Governments are quite in agreement as to the substance of the policies which they respectively desire to apply. It would be a pity if their common purpose were to be defeated by an error, on the one hand or on the other, as to the form and manner of negotiation.

PROHIBITORY BURDENS.

Evidently the Senate is tired out, and, as in a wrestling bout, the stronger stands to win, in time. So the majority has gained its advantage at every stage, and, in the latest stages, with little effective opposition. The provision for levying taxes on American prices where there is no open market for the goods abroad, will prove, if finally adopted, practically prohibitory in many lines.

Frequently foreign manufacturers place their product for several years in the hands of one jobber, and it is in turn sold to a single American purchaser. In such cases a fair duty will be levied on actual price, with proper penalties for misrepresentation. A duty levied on the current price of like goods in America is a heavy and unjust burden on useful lines of trade. But it is in the Senate bill, and will probably be in the bill sent to the President.

THE ENDOWING OF INDIVIDUALS.

Who has not felt that, with relief from the drudgery of winning his daily bread, he might do illustrious things? A correspondent asked in THE TIMES yesterday: "How can a man whose every moment is occupied in earning enough to pay the weekly board bill and attendant expenses ever produce his best work?"

Well, he can't. But the remedy is not to endow the breadwinner, even though he be an artist, or, like our correspondent, a writer now engaged in producing "pot-boilers." Publishers in this city have been known to complain that artists and literary men are not easily kept "up to time" in their promised works, especially if they have no need of the emolument which good work invariably brings. SHAKESPEARE'S plays, if not "pot-boilers," were written under pressure to meet the needs of the theatre which he managed. Had he been born a wealthy nobleman he might have been less of a poet. But his case was not unique.

What our correspondent wants is rivalry, not an endowment. The great schools of art and literature were composed of men, some of them prosperous, but many who felt the additional spur of poverty, while every one of them strove for distinction above his fellows. SHAKESPEARE was possible because MARLOWE, BEN JONSON, BEAUMONT and FLETCHER, KYD, LYLY, NASH, PEELE, LODGE, DEKKER, and WEBSTER were his companions at the Mermaid. ADDISON, POPE, STEELE, SWIFT, BOSWELL, and Dr. JOHNSON formed another society of mutual admiration, and of jealousy. SCHILLER had his GOETHE, WORDSWORTH his COLERIDGE, BYRON his SCOTT. The different schools of painters, sculptors, philosophers, and scholars rose through the rivalry of their members, whose material circumstances were not the essential elements of their success.

We advise our "pot-boiling" correspondent to cease bewailing his hard fate, and to seek out and consort with some more famous member of his craft.

CHRYSOSTOM'S REBUKE.

That was an unusual Fourth of July sermon of Bishop WILLIAMS'S at St. Bartholomew's on Sunday. No extolling of the fathers of the Republic, no laudation of the glorious day, no rhetorical fireworks, but the mirror held up to us that we may see ourselves. Is the mirror true, or does it distort the features of the American body politic? Are we as crassly materialistic, as inhumane, as uncultivated, as grossly "individualistic" as the Bishop of Michigan declares? We lack ideals, we fear being called sentimental, we are dishonest, the Bishop says, and, of course, he thinks what he says. In spite of his bad opinion of his fellow-countrymen, the Bishop has hopes that, if they will stop in their mad race for wealth long enough to consider whither they are going, they may yet escape the fate of Rome.

We fear there will be no stopping. The ferment of democracy will continue for many years. The Bishop does not read all or nearly all of the signs aright. Individually we are not so materialistic, so inhumane, so dishonest as he infers. After all, there are very few wealthy men in this country, and there are not nearly so many discontented ones as appears from surface indications. The millionaires and the malcontents combined do not constitute American society or any very large or influential part of it. Decency, morality, a seeking for culture and the "higher life" the Bishop may find if he looks for them. But his Fourth of July oration was welcome as a novelty, and a stern rebuke now and then is wholesome enough.

A GUIDE TO THE WEST.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

They want men in the wheat fields of the West. I am willing to go, but how shall I manage it? A. C. R.

New York, July 3, 1909.

Until recently the Department of Commerce and Labor concerned itself but little with inter-State immigration. It was satisfied with enforcing the law relating to the immigration and exclusion of foreigners. Of course, that was a great mistake, since it resulted in the immigrants' forming frightened and congested colonies in the cities. Besides, naturalized and native-born citizens who wished to better their condition had no more knowledge of economic conditions in other States than our present inquirer, and they had not his present facilities for gaining it.

Presumably he has no relatives out West, or he would have written to them instead of sending his query to a newspaper. No doubt he wants something more than a season's occupation in the wheat fields—he wants to enter a neighborhood that is growing up, that will need his labor continually, and will give him a chance to become a thrifty and independent landowner. It is for his benefit that the Government has placed Mr. T. V. POWDERLY at the head of the Division of Information in the Bureau of Immigration at Washington. We advise our correspondent to write to Mr. POWDERLY forthwith, who will send him full directions for reaching the Western wheat fields, and the parts of them in which he is most likely to prosper.

Although the Division of Information is not yet well started in its work, Mr. POWDERLY has already received over 80,000 letters from labor organizations and individuals needing help, and he has sent 2,268 applicants to positions on farms. If they like the country, they will become missionaries of immigration to their relatives and friends.

GENTLEWOMEN IN SERVICE.

The ladies are bustling about these days in England, as may have been noticed. Ladies are invading the territory of domestic service, and threatening, we should judge, to change its relative place in the social fabric. In one number of a London newspaper we note seven appeals of "ladies" or "gentlewomen" for domestic employment, and some demands for the service of such in kitchen or nursery. One "thoroughly domesticated gentlewoman" who is looking for a job as "lady housekeeper" suggests, by her graphic description of herself, that many gentlewomen in search of such positions still measurably lack "domestication" and are apt to carry with them to the housekeeper's room lingering traces of the savagery of the modern London drawing room. "Lady housekeepers" needing employment, however, are plentiful. A "lady who has for nine years managed a widower's household and his daughters," and is now looking for a fresh widower with household and daughters, remotely suggests Mrs. General in "Little Dorrit," while a "lady nurse" turns out to be only the familiar nursery governess of this side of the ocean.

A lady who owns a small house on the seashore, and keeps "no servants," advertises for a gentlewoman who can cook. "Lady cook-housekeepers" are in great demand. Amid this array of social distinction in those columns of a newspaper which used to be considered humble, the eye is arrested by this frank appeal: "Parlourmaid; tall, superior, 27." That seems appropriate and certainly ought to be effective.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Permitted to Fight Consumption. Thanks to a recent change in the law, the Brooklyn Central Labor Union has at last obtained permission to spend a lot of hard-earned money in the construction and maintenance of a well-equipped country sanatorium for consumptive workingmen. That the carrying out of such a purpose necessitated the asking of anybody's consent, that it encountered opposition of the most determined sort in several towns where the necessary authorization under the old law was sought, only shows how imperfect is our civilization and the danger of a little knowledge. Most people have learned nowadays that every victim of tuberculosis is a potential centre of infection, but the old ignorance of its dangers has not yet been replaced by general realization of the fact that the disease, when proper and easy precautions are taken, is no more contagious than a broken leg, and that phthisiphobia is as brutal as the old indifference was stupid. As a result, while no sanatorium for the tuberculous could be built until the County Supervisors and the local government board had acquiesced in the selection of its site, the construction of these benevolent institutions almost ceased, for there was always somebody to raise the cry that it would endanger the public health and put down real estate values. That was decisive with these officials, and many a promising scheme fell through in consequence.

At last the Legislature had a lucid moment and so amended the law that the consent only of the State Commissioner of Health and the head of the local Board of Health was required. There was some fear that this would not solve the problem, for appointments or elections to rural Health Boards are not always determined by the possession of medical and sanitary knowledge, but it is highly reassuring to note that at Brookhaven, though there was the usual protest and all the fallacious arguments were used, the local Health Officer, Dr. C. A. BAKER, ignored benighted opposition among his neighbors and united with Commissioner PORTER in giving the necessary consent. This case will doubtless serve as a precedent. If it does the difficulties of other people who, like the Brooklyn unions, want to join in the good work of preventing and curing tuberculosis, will be so lessened that they can be overcome without much trouble. It has been the invariable experience that sanatoria for consumptives, not only do not spread the disease, but diminish it among the surrounding population, and help real estate values instead of hurting them.

A Scimitar in Need of Polishing. Most of the newspapers in the country have had something to say about the result of the Brandenburg trial. By far the greater part of this comment, of course, has been intelligent and therefore cordially appreciative of the fact that THE TIMES observed from the beginning to the end of the episode all the proprieties of journalism and all the obligations of morals. A few papers have misunderstood the facts and a few others have rather laboriously misinterpreted them, but none that we have seen has gone anything like as far in combining misunderstanding with misinterpretation as does The Memphis News Scimitar, which, through some mysterious abnormality of ratiocination, finds itself moved to say:

> The courts hold BRANDENBURG guiltless of having forged the name of the late GROVER CLEVELAND to an article published in THE NEW YORK TIMES during the late campaign. THE TIMES was as much on trial as was BRANDENBURG, but traitorously turned State's evidence, and all to no purpose.

Something very much like anger was the first result of reading that remarkable production, but the malice or the ignorance which inspired the lines is so grotesquely absurd that indignation gives place to amusement—with a substratum of pity. "The courts," as everybody knows who followed the trial, did not "hold" BRANDENBURG guiltless of forgery, but of grand larceny, the wholly different crime for which he was indicted. The question of forgery was raised during the proceedings, but the jury was formally told that it was irrelevant to the charge and not to be considered in reaching a verdict.

In a way, THE TIMES was on trial, but by its own request and procurement, and the completeness of its vindication has been doubted, so far as we are aware, only by The Scimitar. What that paper means by "traitorously turned State's evidence" we cannot even guess. Probably it doesn't know itself, and just wanted to be—but what's the use? We will limit our revenge to the expression of the hope that The Scimitar may soon recover its sanity.

More British Than the British. One of our correspondents is troubled—happy man!—because the American who happens to be in London on the Fourth of July remembers the associations of the day and celebrates them. We exclaim "Happy man!" because he who can worry over a thing like that and work himself up to the point of amazement at the American impertinence which makes such a celebration possible in such a place must be without any other causes of woe or anxiety, and, therefore, fortunate, indeed, in that he has to imagine a grievance in order to share the common mortal lot.

The impertinence of which he complains does not seem to have struck the Londoners themselves or Britishers in general. They attend Fourth of July dinners with what seems to be great willingness, listen to speeches, and make them with a fine semblance of equanimity, and when the inevitable double toast to "The King and the President" comes they rise and cheer without a thought, apparently, that anybody is exulting over the discomfiture, a many years ago, of their fathers by the fathers of their hosts.

Our disturbed correspondent forgets that the Revolution occurred at a time somewhat remote, and that now Great Britain is no more hostile than York and Lancaster or the North and South.

Evolution of "Cuss" Words.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I quite agree with you that the use of "cuss" words is not intended as a sign of irreverence, but rather to emphasize a remark, and also that their use is a sign of illiteracy, a lack of fitting words to convey the idea. Still, this weakness is lamentably prevalent. Walk behind any group of boys for a block or two, and note the remarks about the weather: "Gee, isn't it hot!" "Gee, isn't it cold!" "Gee, didn't he catch it!" (the ball.) "Gee, didn't he soak him!" (the "cop.") That same initial word, I regret to say, I hear used over and over by ladies, old and young, who may be supposed to be more choice in their use of words than the reporters who decorate jokes and murders impartially with the same monosyllable. Time was when the gamin, astonished, said: "Holy Jesus!" But that had a faint accent of reverence, and reverence is one of the qualities foreign to the gamin make-up, and so it was abbreviated to "Hully Jee," and became increasingly popular. Now, the first syllable dropped, it has become as common as "the" or "of." More's the pity and the shame. A. O. B.

HUMANITY OF WOMEN.

A Quality, Long Fostered, Is Revealed in the Servant Problem.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mrs. Annie Nathan Meyer charges me with claiming "sex superiority" for women. My words were "Men are superior to women along certain lines, and women superior to men along certain others." Mrs. Meyer might just as well have taken the first half of the sentence and have accused me of asserting the superiority of men. The Suffragists' doctrine is simply that men and women working together can bring about results superior to what either sex can accomplish alone. When the advocates of equal rights are accused of claiming a boastful superiority it suggests the dialogue overheard between two small boys. One said, "Girls are the most conceited creatures in the world!" "Yes," answered the other with conviction. "They are. They think they are just as good as boys!"

Mrs. Meyer denies that humanity is one of the strong points of women. How can it be otherwise, if there be any truth in the theory advanced by several of your correspondents that the characters of men and women have been modified by their different pursuits during many generations? For ages men devoted themselves mainly to hunting and fighting and women to mothering the children. The natural result would be a greater development of courage in men and of kindness and tender-heartedness in women. We see this every day. If a stray kitten falls into the hands of a group of little girls they want to pet it; if into the hands of a group of boys they generally stone it. There is really no need to argue a point so generally known and recognized.

But Mrs. Meyer says the failure of women to solve the servant question is due to their lack of conscience and humanity. Has any one yet fully solved the problem of the relations between employer and employe? Have even the captains of industry evolved a satisfactory solution? Look at the strikes on every hand! Men, as well as women, have trouble with their help, and trouble of a much more violent and dangerous kind. The cook and her mistress now and then blow each other up verbally, but I never heard of their trying to blow each other up with dynamite. The milder character of the labor troubles between women is an illustration of women's greater gentleness and humanity, perhaps also to some extent of their greater timidity.

Mrs. Meyer charges American women with being very bad mothers. I think she draws too dark a picture. Human nature is imperfect, and American mothers are not all they should be. But in every country the mothers are more solicitous about the children than the fathers are, and where they have the ballot they use it with a keener eye to the children's benefit.

ALICE STONE BLACKWELL.

What the University Stands For.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a university logic trains the mind for intellectual research, in pursuit of truth, as well as for combat. It eliminates irrelevant matter with the stern severity of a just Judge. It points out the pitfalls of fallacy. It gives warning against subtle sophistry sneaking like a snake in the grass through the pages of many books. It is a time and labor saving apparatus, not unlike a guillotine, (with due respect to Matthew Arnold,) which cuts off all irrelevant rubbish at once. Philosophy should have an honored place, and a university without the study of natural and positive theology is absurd. The religions and the philosophies and the languages of ancients and moderns should be profoundly studied in a university, as well as the ancient classics, mathematics, physical sciences, law and literature, sociology, and political economy.

A university properly understood, not degraded to the mere level of a business college, should be a powerful means to help in the elevation of public life, to guard against the groveling slavery of Mammon worship, as well as the waste of public resources, to protect society against the domination of the demagogue and the plutocrat, to uphold the executive authority of the Nation in the enforcement of law against the richest as well as the poorest offenders, to sternly oppose the corruption of public life, to stand foremost for truth and right, and to guard and uphold the flag we love, the glorious Stars and Stripes, that thus we may advance ever onward and upward for God and country.

A Difference in Management.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During 1907 the writer purchased of the City of New York 4 per cent. bonds, paying 100%. The same year he purchased 4 per cent. bonds of the Union Pacific Railroad Company at 90. The former bonds are worth no more now than two years ago; the latter have risen 21 points. The Union Pacific is presided over by what a prominent demagogue chose to call a "malefactor of great wealth," an "undesirable citizen," &c. The aforesaid "malefactor" said that if the City of New York and the Federal Government were managed as the Union Pacific is there would not be a deficit in the revenues of the one nor an issue of bonds to pay the running expenses of the other. Such is the difference in the management of demagogue politicians and "a malefactor of great wealth." It is a pity we have not less of the former and a great deal more of the latter. C. W.

Slandered North Carolina.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In Sunday's paper "Paul Howard" states that nothing grows on the hillsides of North Carolina save "scrub oak," "scrapple," and a few other such words. Where does he get his information? Is he a native North Carolinian or only a New Yorker? For from my porch to-day I can see the tops and two sides of the mountains close by covered with a splendid crop of oats now ripening to the harvest, while on others one can see splendid crops of corn planted and grown on almost perpendicular hillsides. A trip across one of these "barren" mountains will discover magnificent roads, bordered on all sides with a luxuriant growth of lovely rhododendron, the beautiful mountain laurel, gorgeous ferns, and a profusion of flowers of all sorts, almost tropical in their luxuriance. Does Mr. Howard get his information from first hand, or is he only displaying the superior and well-known ignorance of the New York City native?

Our Free Institutions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One day, swelling with pride, as Americans are so apt to do in other countries, I boasted to a certain Italian political economist that we Americans had no Government monopolies. We were free!

"Yes," said the economist; "you have no Government monopolies, which, by the way, pay taxes for everybody equally, but you have private monopolies in more things necessary to life than all Europe combined, and your trusts are enriching individuals at the cost of the masses. You have a pitiless aristocracy of money. Your postal service, cheaper for letters, is outrageous for parcels, and your express companies have no certain tariff except it be for the trusts."

Is this opinion just? G. HAUSHALTER.

Capitation Tax for Aliens.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I quite agree with your correspondent who suggests that foreigners who come to this country for residence or for business purposes, who do not become naturalized, should after a reasonable time pay a capitation tax annually. There are lots of such men—many of them well to do and wealthy—who use this country of ours for wealth getting and who avoid all duties of citizenship. They abound in the Wall Street districts, and are in many cases members of the various exchanges and boards of trade in the various boroughs of our fair City of New York.

THE CANADIANS.

An Invidious Distinction Between the Eastern and Western Provincials.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter in to-day's TIMES signed by J. S. Robinson is so typically Canadian, expressing as it so admirably does their provincial, dog-in-the-manger attitude toward everything American, that I for one was really delighted to read it. It is reminiscent of a whiff from their primy wildernesses, snappy, refreshing, invigorating. One who has traveled in the eastern parts of the Dominion always associates the natural beauties of the country with the unparalleled envy and obstinacy of its inhabitants.

But after all, is not our friend in a measure imposing on our good nature when he points to the number of battles won or lost on either side during "the Rebellion" and the war of 1812? He must have come from Montreal or Toronto, where they have baseball teams. In our great National game the number of engagements won and lost means much, but it has always been my understanding that in the game of war the final outcome is not decided by a summary and recapitulation of the actual encounters between opposing armies. The fact is our fathers fought for political independence; the outcome of that "rebellion" seems sufficiently evident. In 1812 they rose against Great Britain's tyranny on the sea; our cousins over the water have never, since 1815, presumed to do what before 1812 they had done with impunity. Are not these truths, brother Robinson?

Now, in all kindness and fraternal love, I wish to record my conviction that our northern neighbors are invincibly envious of us; that is, in the eastern provinces. They magnify all our faults, (and we have many;) they see few virtues in us. But one brilliant exception covers a multitude of defects—our money. Go where we will, morning, noon, and night, always, everywhere, their hand is stretched out still.

I say this of the eastern provinces only; in the Far West they are a splendid race, openhearted, open-handed, generous; almost American. The envy is all in the East, and in spite of my opening remarks I must admit a painful sensation as a result of having read Mr. Robinson's letter.

I do not think that as a Nation we resent these exhibitions of ill-temper and (must I add?) these palpable misrepresentations. But why will our little brothers persist in this line of conduct? Do they not realize that they would be much happier themselves and more agreeable to their neighbors if they would but manfully strive to exorcise these devils of spite, envy, and jealousy? YANKEE.

TEDDY'S EXAMPLE.

Thinks It More Pernicious Than That of Dime Novel Heroes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I be allowed to call attention to a very important matter which seems to have slipped the minds of our overworked moral censors?

Has any one noticed any allusion in any quarter in re the pernicious influence of the Wild West story since the Teddy-in-the-Jungle stories began to be published?

For many years there arose semi-occasional spasmodic hullabaloos against both the writer and disseminator of the Shotgun Thrillers, and the clarion cry of Save the Boy from the Deadly Desire to Emulate the Hero of the Dime Novel rang in our ears until we actually petitioned the Legislature to help us save the innocent. In these so-called delectable stories we had dates that proved to our boy readers that they were merely rehashes of ancient yarns, and our episodes were so exaggerated as to convince any but a hopeless idiot that the tales were greatly augmented by the author's imagination. In the Teddy-in-the-Jungle stories our reports are made with a respectful accuracy which convinces the boys that it is right to shoot, maim, and kill innocent creatures and that the ready manipulation of firearms is a manly accomplishment. We hold a monkey-shooting ex-President of the United States up as a shining example of bravery and mention Kermit's name as second only to his father in gun-play prowess.

In the future crop of juvenile pistol carriers and animal maimers who will be prepared to name the example followed—whether it be Jesse James or Theodore Roosevelt—the hero (?) of the Wild West Thriller or Teddy-in-the-Jungle? LURANA W. SHELDON.

The Path of True Love on the Merrick Road.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you not take yourself for a brief moment out of the maelstrom of business and politics, and the latest murder, and the eternal battle of the various schools of art, science, and philosophy, to hear a word on a less pretentious theme? I refer simply and sincerely to the unspeakable condition of that erstwhile paradise of Long Island motorists—the Merrick Road.

Time was when the approaches to the long highway from Long Island City to Jamaica, as well as the famous roadway itself, were smooth and even as the proverbial billiard table, and now, alas, we cannot travel over the Merrick Road without having the everlasting daylights bumped out of our spirit in the course of an hour's spin.

It seems cruel to the fortunate youth beside whom in his "harmless necessary" motorcar a fair creature may be riding—it seems cruel, we repeat, that, at the very moment when the gliding progress has consummated the smooth flow of spirit to spirit, to have a sudden, prosaic, mundane, wordly, obstreperous, ubiquitous bump, jar all the romance out of the speeding pair. But thus it is ever.

Won't some one do something to smooth the much-perturbed surface of the old Merrick Road?

It needs it sadly. Yes indeedy!

City's Swamp Pests.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will THE TIMES use its good offices to help correct the "swamp evils" found in too many places in this city? Swarms of mosquitos now infest many residential sections but for these pests very desirable. One such swamp or stagnant pool is located on Jerome Avenue at 167th Street, which gives all residents, east and west, a very great variety of insect pests. Another such breeding ground is located near 100th Street in Central Park, on the Central Park West side. These are two widely separate instances of "swamp evils."

SENATE NEAR END OF TARIFF LABORS

Aldrich Expects Bill to be Reported This Morning—Income Tax Plan Passed.

ATTACK ON CUSTOMS COURT

Rayner Declares Measure Is Unconstitutional—Salaries of Government Attorneys of Court Reduced.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Such rapid progress was made with the Administrative clauses to-day that Mr. Aldrich announced this afternoon that he confidently expected the Tariff bill to be voted on in the Committee of the Whole and reported to the open Senate to-morrow morning. The resolution to submit to State Legislatures a proposed amendment to the Constitution, permitting Congress to levy an income tax, was voted unanimously by the seventy Senators present.

To-day's work leaves before the Senate only those paragraphs of the bill relating to the increases in the tobacco tax suggested by Senator Beveridge and the tax on foreign vessels, which is in charge of Senator Lodge. Both these matters will be taken up to-morrow, said Mr. Aldrich, and he expressed himself as confident of the immediate adoption of the committee recommendations.

Mr. Aldrich announced that several matters like the proposed increased authorization of Federal bond issues, which were treated of in the House provisions, will be left out of the bill for further consideration at the next session if circumstances seem then to warrant. For the last two months, said Mr. Aldrich, the receipts of the Treasury had equaled disbursements, and he was sure that there would be no need for the extraordinary provisions of the House bill before the convening of the next Congress in December.

The salary of the Assistant Attorney General to be placed in charge of the customs cases of the country was reduced from $10,000 to $6,500. At the same time the salary of the Deputy Assistant Attorney General was reduced from $7,500 to $5,500. The salaries of the four attorneys were all reduced $1,000, one of them from $6,000 to $5,000, and the others from $5,000 to $4,000.

The most important single change in the administrative clauses was the restriction of the provisions for the assessment of imported goods at the price prevailing in the American market at the time. Where the original Senate provisions put all imported consigned articles under this clause, to-day's amendment limited the working of the clause to such consigned articles "for which no foreign market value is established." The insertion of that limitation puts consigned goods on the same footing with goods purchased abroad when there is no open market abroad for such articles.

Root's Modifications Adopted.

Senator Root suggested two modifications, which were adopted by the Senate with the approval of Mr. Aldrich. One of them provided an 8 per cent. estimate for handling expenses to be deducted from the American price in assessing the valuation on the goods mentioned above, and the other allowed for a 5 per cent. error in invoicing without putting punitive or penalizing rates in operation.

The other was a long constitutional attack by Senator Rayner of Maryland on the Customs Court and the great power given it. Criminal cases arising under Customs litigation were eliminated from the jurisdiction of the court.

Mr. Bailey of Texas offered two amendments to the resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution. One of them directed that it be referred to the State Conventions instead of to the State Legislatures for ratification, and that amendment was defeated by a vote of 30 to 46.

His other amendment provided simply for the graduation of the proposed income tax. This amendment Mr. Bailey withdrew after the defeat of his first proposal.

Mr. Bristow tried to attach to the Constitutional amendment a provision for the popular election of Senators, but it was ruled out of order.

Unconstitutional, Says Rayner.

Mr. Rayner's attack on the Customs Court provisions was based chiefly on the fact that no jury trial is provided, as is required by the Constitution in all cases where the value of disputed property exceeds $20.

"The measure is unconstitutional, too," he declared, "in that the ex parte affidavits of the appraisers are to be taken in court as prima facie evidence of fraud." That last provision, asserted Mr. Rayner, means that a man can be thrown into prison for two years unless he can establish his innocence without ever having his opposing witnesses before him.

Mr. Aldrich replied that similar provision in regard to decisions of Collectors, so far as classifications were concerned, had been in force for twenty years without any contest of the right of Congress to dispense with jury trials in these particular cases. Mr. Rayner replied that the dispensation had always been by mutual consent of the contending attorneys, and that, at any rate, Mr. Aldrich, who is not a lawyer, knew nothing about the matter.

In referring to the House drawback clauses which the Senate Committee will report against to-morrow, Mr. Aldrich said that the loose provisions of the House measure would probably cost the Treasury in refunds from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 a year.

When Mr. Aldrich expressed the committee's determination not to go into the question of bond issues this year he announced for the first time that the proposed changes in the country's currency system, which will occupy most of Congress' time next session, will involve many modifications in the classes of bonds issued. In view of that fact, he said, he thought it well to postpone the whole question until then. Meanwhile, he said, the delay can occasion no harm to the Treasury.

Conference Committee Fixed.

It is learned to-night that in view of the Senate's near approach to the end of its tariff labors the Conference Committee has been about fixed up. It is understood that Senator Smoot, who has done a great deal of technical work on the various schedules, will be included in the Senate managers instead of some other member of the committee, probably Senator Burrows, who has not been particularly active this session.

On the House side, in an effort to avoid a second fight for revision, it seems certain that Mr. Hill of Connecticut, the financial expert of the House, will be forced to give place to Mr. McCall of Massachusetts. With Mr. Hill out of the committee, the Senate leaders believe that the duration of the conference may be reduced to one week instead of the two weeks generally expected.

LONG BRANCH RACES DRAW BIG CROWD

Leaders of Society Enjoy Good Day's Sport at Elkwood Park Meeting.

EVENTS WELL CONTESTED

Jockey Turnburke Thrown at Jump, but Escapes with Slight Sprain—Favorites Get Money.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., July 5.—Over 2,000 persons witnessed the closing day's racing of the Monmouth County Pony and Steeplechase Association yesterday at Elkwood Park. All the resorts on the Jersey coast contributed their quota of visitors to the event, which was the leading social function in the vicinity. The meeting has been a pronounced success, and the management will run another two days' meeting in the Fall. The weather and track conditions were excellent and the finishes close enough to create plenty of interest and excitement.

Only one mishap marred the day's sport, but this was not of a very serious nature. In the final event, a steeplechase for hunters, Jay O'Brien's Meddlesome Boy fell at one of the jumps and threw his rider, Turnburke. The latter was assisted to his feet, but escaped with a sprained wrist. A slight fire in the grand stand caused a mild excitement, but it was quickly extinguished and no damage was done.

The promoters of the meet spent considerable money to make the affair attractive, and their efforts were well rewarded, both from an attendance and financial standpoint. The grand stand was filled with leaders of society and fashion, while the parking space was packed with automobiles and vehicles of every description.

Many New York society and racing folk were on hand, while more than 100 automobiles were parked in the grounds. The display presented an attractive appearance. Among the prominent persons who witnessed the races were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Batjer, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lewisohn, Miss Minna Pach, J. E. J. Rothschild, Theodore Offerman, Mrs. Estella Oettinger, Miss Henrietta Oettinger, Mr. and Mrs. A. Schwartz, Andrew Albright, Jr., Montefiore G. Kahn, Moesel C. Flynn, Herbert Scheftel, L. Gallagher, Col. Hugh O'Donoghue, A. J. Seligman, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Greenwald, Edward Heindler, Miss Renee Wasserman, Miss May Zietz, Miss Elsie Young, Maurice S. Hart, Miss Cathleen Russell, Edward Wasserman, Jr., Miss Cummings, Mrs. Helen Lloyd, Miss Maud Gutteridge, and R. G. Tower.

H. A. Bourne's Claudeboyne was a hot favorite in the first race, which was for Galloways, but the second choice, Meadow Brook Stables' Tas, had the foot of the party the whole distance and won somewhat handily. Peter Hauck, Jr's., Essex B. duplicated his performance of Saturday, and, starting at prohibitive odds, galloped home an easy winner in the steeplechase for bona-fide hunters. H. Gormley's Harry Baylor threatened trouble for the leader at the half distance, but dropped back beaten and left Essex B. to finish alone.

The biggest field of the day was a seven-furlong dash, in which C. N. Williams's President Monroe and Meadow Brook Stables' Punch made the running to the stretch, where R. G. Tower's Killochan came through and won driving by a couple of lengths. The open steeplechase attracted but three entries, but Double O., which had fenced so well on the first day of the meeting, was a 1 to 3 favorite, but justified the odds by winning in hollow fashion. The six-furlong dash was another easy victory for the winner, Meadow Brook Stables' James N., which was well ridden by H. Tucker. The closing event, a steeplechase at three miles, went to P. A. Clark's Flying Machine after Meddlesome Boy fell and threw his jockey, Turnburke. The summaries:

First Race—For galloways, fifteen hands and under; about five furlongs.—Won by Meadow Brook Stables. Tas, 143, (J. Tucker;) John H. Mulcahey's Marie Delaney, 143, (Mr. Clapp,) second; H. A. Bourne's Claudeboyne, 143, (F. Alpers,) third. Elkwood Park Stables' Nugget, 148, (Mr. Casey,) also ran. Time—1:04 1-5.

Second Race—Steeplechase for bona-fide hunters that have been regularly hunted during the season of 1908; about three and one-half miles.—Won by Peter Hauck, Jr.'s, Essex B., 168, (owner;) H. Gormley's Harry Baylor, 167, (owner,) second; Charles Pfizer's General D'Arme, 153, (Mr. Harper,) third. Time—6:38.

Third Race—For three-year-olds and upward, open race; seven furlongs.—Won by R. G. Tower's Killochan, 155, (F. Alpers;) James Smith's Ardenia, 125, (J. Reynolds,) second; Kingsley Swan's Guatematzin, 130, (T. Monahan,) third. Meadow Brook Stables' Punch, 148, (J. Meaney;) H. W. Warner's Mr. Jorrocks, 127, (Turnburke;) J. E. Davis's St. Croix, 130, (Sullivan;) Mrs. Minnie W. Sexton's Uncle Oliver, 132, (Mr. H. Tucker;) C. N. Williams's President Monroe, 151, (E. Tucker,) and Kingsley Swan's Trouveur, 143 (A. Waller,) also ran. Time—1:30.

Fourth Race—Open steeplechase, for four-year-olds and upward: about two and one-half miles.—Won by H. A. Bourne's Double O., 168, (Mr. Alpers;) Jay O'Brien's Meno, 142, (Turnburke,) second; J. E. Davis's Helen Shea, 157, (Mr. Wilde.) third. Time—4:22.

Fifth Race—Hacks and hunters according to the rules of the National Hunt and Steeplechase Association; six furlongs.—Won by Meadow Brook Stables' James N., 123, (H. Tucker;) R. G. Tower's Paddy, 15, (Mr. Alpers,) second; J. E. Davis's Al. H. Woods, 150, (Mr. Casey,) third. P. A. Clark's Clover Croft, 150, (E. Tucker,) and Chelsea Stables' Recruit, 150, (J. Tucker,) also ran. Time—1:17 2-5.

Sixth Race—Steeplechase for hunters duly qualified under the rules of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association; about three miles.—Won by P. A. Clark's Flying Machine, 159, (L. Yorke;) J. E. Davis's Warrenton, 158, (J. Tucker,) second; Jay O'Brien's Meddlesome Boy, 149, (Turnburke,) fell. Time—6:37 4-5.

MISS WHITRIDGE TO WED.

Her Engagement to Charles Edward Greenough Just Announced.

The engagement is announced of Miss Eleanor Whitridge, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Whitridge of 16 East Eleventh Street, to Charles Edward Greenough, a son of the late Charles Greenough.

Miss Whitridge is one of the best-known young women in society, is highly accomplished, and has taken part in several amateur productions of French plays. Through her mother she is a granddaughter of the late Matthew Arnold, the English essayist and poet, and a niece of Miss Ethel Arnold. Miss Joan Whitridge is her sister.

Mr. Greenough was graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School in 1902 as a mining engineer. He rowed in the Yale crew. He is prominent in Newport and New York society. He is interested in mines in Mexico.

No date has been set for the wedding, but it will probably take place next November in this city.

Miss Whitridge is booked to sail to-day for England, where she will join her mother and sister at their English home, just outside of London. Mr. Greenough will sail on the Carmania, to be a guest of Mrs. Whitridge.

Later Mr. Whitridge will join his family, and they will leave London for their estate in Scotland, where they have for some years spent the late Summer and early Autumn.

Social Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Courtland Penfield, who are traveling in Germany, were at Baden-Baden last week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Hammond are the guests at Elm Court, Lenox, of Mr. and Mrs. William Douglas Sloane. Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard and Mrs. Ernesto G. Fabbri are also guests at Elm Court.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dunlop Disston (Miss Dorothea Dundas Pratt) are making a honeymoon motor trip through New England.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Steinbrugge are sailing to-day for Europe on the Kronprinz Wilhelm.

ACTORS STRANDED IN SOUTH AMERICA

"Merry Widow" Had to Quit in Buenos Ayres After a Disastrous Season.

HARD TIME GETTING HOME

Gendarmes Attempted to Hold Up the Company, but Miss Virgie Foltz Drove by Them.

To the members of the Broadway Musical Comedy Company lower Broadway never looked as good as when seen yesterday morning from the deck of the Lamport & Holt liner Verdi when they returned after a disastrous season in South America. After the show went on the financial rocks they had hard work getting back to Broadway and a still more narrow escape in getting away with their effects. They did, however, bring back numberless cockatoos and marmosettes.

The players were full of their troubles. H. L. Jackson and his wife, Julia Atkinson, told the story of their journeying south.

"At first we had success," he said. "We had been engaged to go to South America by R. H. Morgan, the executive in a syndicate headed by Signor de Rossi, the impresario. It was to Morgan that we lay our troubles. We left New York in May thirty-five strong. We were delighted with our prospects, for we had contracts to play in the syndicate's string of houses.

"We opened in Rio Janeiro in 'The Merry Widow.' We met with success and things went finely during our two weeks' stay there. De Rossi paid us our salaries and everything was on the square. From Rio we moved on to Buenos Ayres and opened in the Avenida Theatre. Then the trouble began. We drew good houses. On the first pay day it was a very small ghost that walked. We got 10 pesos, about $4.50 each, and a promise. None of us had been saving and it was hard work getting enough to live on.

"Then we learned that the Verdi was in port and ready to sail at the end of our second week. We had return tickets, but on going to the steamer found that about $5,000 had not been paid on them. We appealed to the steamship people and they agreed after some hesitation to take us and look to the syndicate for pay. Morgan pleaded with us not to sail, and assured us that there was money to pay us. Our answer was to either make good and so we prepared to sail. He did not pay an dso we prepared to sail. Some one tried to attach our belongings, but we loaded our belongings on mule carts and started to the steamship.

"At the pier some gendarmes attempted to hold us up, but Miss Foltz jumped on the wagon and drove on. The chivalrous Spaniard let us go. Well, we are back again and mighty glad we will be to see dear old Broadway again."

The company included Miss Virgie Foltz, who played here in Henry Savage's "Merry Widow" company; August Barrett, musical director for Savage; Billy Wolf, the comedian, and others known in musical comedy.

MANY AT SPECIAL MATINEES.

Holiday Throngs at All the Theatres Remaining Open.

Most of the theatres still open gave special Fourth of July matinees yesterday. Enough people stayed in town to fill them, and the evening performances were also well attended. "The Motor Girl," at the Lyric, was the only one of the Shubert shows that didn't give an extra afternoon performance, Frank Hennessy, the manager, deciding that the players should have the holiday to themselves.

After the evening performances some of the principals of "Havana" and "The Midnight Sons" made an automobile trip to Blanche Ring's new Summer home at Larchmont. An unusually large holiday crowd attended the performances of "The Follies of 1909" at the Jardin de Paris. Marion Whitney, one of the principals of the cast, caused some excitement after the night performance by setting off a large amount of fireworks. She explained that she had spent her entire week's salary for firecrackers and Roman candles.

The Shuberts announce that there will be no more mid-week matinees of "Havana" at the Casino, or of "The Midnight Sons," at the Broadway.

MLLE. DAZIE APPLAUDED.

Her Pantomimic Playlet Wins the Audience at Keith & Proctor's.

A pantomimic production, entitled "L'Amour de l'Artist," was given last night by Mlle. Dazie, the American dancer, and a company of ten, at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre. The playlet in two scenes, without words, is intensely dramatic, and Mlle. Dazie's portrayal of the principal character, Nana Mignon, the flower girl, captivated the audience. She had to respond to a dozen curtain calls, and received several bunches of flowers from her admirers over the footlights.

The pantomime is given under the personal direction of the author, Giuseppe Molasso, and Frederic Chapon wrote the music for it. The playlet tells the story of the love of a flower girl of the Paris Latin quarter for a famous artist.

During a scene in the artist's studio, where the artist declares his love for Nana, another woman enters and stabs the girl. The artist, in his turn, strangles the woman. The tragedy is told entirely in pantomime, but with such fidelity that the audience has no trouble in following the complete thread of the story. Mlle. Dazie also introduced several dances which she performed with consummate grace.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

As a special feature, fireworks will be given each night at 11 o'clock over the wistaria-shaded lagoon at Dreamland, Coney Island. Manager Gumpertz has introduced a new free feature called "The Lovers' Whirl." In the three days that made up the Fourth of July holidays Dreamland broke all its records for large attendance.

The management of Palisades Amusement Park has selected the week beginning Monday, July 12, as Children's Carnival Week. For six days, including Monday, all children under 12 years of age, when accompanied by a guardian, will be admitted to the park free.

Arthur Maitland has been engaged by Brady & Grismer to play the Mayor in the Eastern "Man of the Hour" company next season.

A satire on the recent police shake-up has been introduced into "The Follies of 1909" at the Jardin de Paris. Lillian Lorraine and Arthur Deagon also sing a new song entitled "I Love My Wife, So On Your Way."

The Empire Theatre, Providence, R. I., has been leased by the Empire Circuit to the J. B. Sparrow Theatrical and Amusement Company, and beginning Sept. 1 it will be booked by Klaw & Erlanger with the attractions playing the syndicate theatres. The syndicate attractions have not been booked recently in Providence, and the acquisition of the Empire gives Klaw & Erlanger a complete New England circuit.

Senor Alexander, who has been ballet master at the Empire Theatre, London, for the last fifteen years, has been engaged by Klaw & Erlanger to arrange the ballets for the new play which is being written for Mlle. Genee by Harry B. Smith, and which will be produced at the New Amsterdam Theatre early in November.

Swift & Company's sales of Fresh Beef in New York City for the week ending Saturday, July 3, averaged 8.97 cents per pound.—Adv.

BREAD LINE TO BE RESTORED.

Fire at Fleischmann's Restaurant Stops It Only Temporarily.

It is not a bread line that gathers nightly now around the door of Fleischmann's restaurant at Broadway and Eleventh Street, where fire and water ruined the place on Saturday afternoon. The men who usually make up this line now stand in loose groups and want for bread.

Though the word went quickly through the ranks Saturday night saying that the bread-giving restaurant had been burned out, still about 11 o'clock that night the soldiers of this army began to assemble; by midnight, the time for the giving of bread and coffee, there were perhaps 200 on hand. At this season of the year there are usually about 250.

On Sunday night another fifty had dropped out, and last night the 250 were cut down to less than a hundred. They were disappointed because they didn't get any bread, but they found encouragement in the watchman's assurance that the bread line would be revived.

This will be done in a day or so, after the insurance matters have been adjusted and the plans for remaking the restaurant and cafe have been agreed upon. Then a blackboard will be put out on the street side telling the members of the bread line when they can again get bread and coffee.

Robert L. Trange, manager of the restaurant, said yesterday that the fire had not interfered with the Fleischmann bakery as the bread is baked in a building in another part of the city.

OUR GOVERNMENT DENOUNCED

Socialists Say We've Been Too Harsh in Helping Crush Mexican Rebels.

The delegates to the Municipal Convention of the Socialist Party, which at midnight on Sunday nominated candidates for Mayor, Controller, and other city officers, held a supplementary session early yesterday morning and passed resolutions extending the sympathy of the Socialist Party to President Gompers, Vice President Mitchell, and Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, who are under sentence to terms of imprisonment for contempt of court, and condemning the action of the court.

A second resolution is one of sympathy for the Mexican revolutionists who escaped into United States territory. In this resolution the National Government is denounced because, it is charged, it assisted President Diaz in persecuting the Mexican Liberals. It says that they only wanted to establish a really democratic form of government in place of "a despotism thinly disguised under the form of a republic." It charges that capitalists and place hunters are responsible for what it calls "the subservient attitude of our Government" in these cases. A fourth resolution denounces the Travis-Robinson bill for construction of subways by private capital.

SPLIT OVER NEGRO OPTICIAN.

Optometric Society Doesn't Know Whether He's In or Out.

Members of the Optometric Society of this city are discussing the application of a colored man who wishes to join the society. He says he is being kept out because of his color, although a number of the members have championed his cause.

Robert Gordon A. A. Adams of 16 West 134th Street is the colored optometrist who wishes to join the society. He sent in his application last October and action on it has been deferred from time to time. A ballot was taken at the June meeting and three of the votes were unfavorable.

Subsequently a reconsideration of the ballot was demanded by P. A. Dilworth, one of the members of the society, who is also Secretary of the New York State Optical Society. A rising vote was taken, and, as nobody voted against the candidate, Mr. Adams was declared a member.

Since then the claim has been made that his election was invalid, because the by-laws require a secret ballot on applications for membership, and do not permit any reconsideration if the ballot is unfavorable.

This question has been referred to the Executive Committee, which is to report at the September meeting of the society.

SUICIDE IN OBSERVATORY.

Caretaker Ends Life After Partially Burning Prof. Loud's Instruments.

COLORADO SPRINGS, July 5.—Lew H. Warriner, caretaker of the Stellar Observatory for Prof. Frank H. Loud of Colorado College, committed suicide early to-day by shooting himself, after having first soaked the floors of the observatory with coal oil and fired it in three places.

Prof. Loud was asleep in the residence portion of the house when he discovered the flames. He was making a vain attempt to extinguish them when he heard the shot which ended the caretaker's life. Despondency is said to have caused Warriner's act.

An examination of the burned structure shows that great damage was done to the scientific instruments, but the exact loss cannot be estimated. Special work for Harvard University was being conducted at the time of the fire.

WENDELL A PROFESSIONAL.

Well-Known Amateur to Play with the New Theatre Company.

Jacob Wendell, well known in New York society as an amateur actor, will appear next season as a professional with the dramatic company at the New Theatre. He is a Harvard graduate and a brother of Evert Jansen Wendell, also an amateur.

Both are members of the Amateur Comedy Club and have frequently appeared at its performances. Mr. Wendell is a member of the University Club and several years ago married Miss Marian Fendall of Baltimore.

Just what part he is to have in the New Theatre company has not yet been announced.

NEW ACTOR MONKEY HERE.

One of the Consuls Dines in Style at the American.

"Consul the Great," said by his press agent to be the most manlike chimpanzee in the world, was greeted with a demonstration which might well have pleased any human performer at the American Music Hall last night. He is the headline feature at the music hall this week. His actions are extremely human and provocative of laughter.

Dressed in evening clothes, even to a high hat, he made his entrance and then sat down to dinner. He ate with a knife and fork, drank his coffee from a cup, poured out his wine and recorked the bottle, deftly used a toothpick and finally lighted and smoked a cigarette with such evident gusto that the audience was convulsed.

Consul undressed, went to bed carrying a lighted candle, got up and donned a gymnasium suit without any assistance, and performed several tricks on a bicycle without falling off. Finally he took seven curtain calls with all the insouciance of a veteran actor.

Robinson Beats Travis's Golf.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 5.—Richmond F. Robinson of St. Catharines, Ont., a comparatively unknown player, won the gold medal in the qualifying round of the Western New York golf championship at the Buffalo Country Club this afternoon, defeating a field of nearly 100 entrants from many cities in this country and Canada, including Walter J. Travis, former National amateur champion. Robinson's card was 76, one stroke better than that of Travis. The latter had an excellent chance to win or halve the match on the eighteenth greene, which he reached in two strokes, but weak putting lost him the hole and the gold medal.

In the afternoon play of eighteen holes medal score, Travis beat Curtis 3 up and 2 to play; Bowman beat Murray 1 up, Robinson beat Moss 1 up; Wright beat Orr 6 up, Rose beat Kirschner 2 up, Reekie beat Morgan 2 up, and W. A. Gardner beat Ransom 1 up in 19 holes.

To-morrow forenoon Travis will play against Wright, Bowman against Robinson, Ross against Ellis, and Reekie against Gardner, 18 holes medal play.

JANITOR DIES IN NASSAU TRUST FIRE

Body Found on the Fifth Floor After His Wife Had Said He Had Escaped.

RESTAURANT GUESTS FLEE

Firemen Rescue Wife and Child of the Victim—Two Floors Are Destroyed.

A fire which burned out the fourth and fifth floors of the five-story brick and stone Nassau Trust Company Building, at Fulton Street and Red Hook Lane, Brooklyn, last night at 11:30 o'clock caused the death of Theodore Burkess, the janitor, whose body was found on the fifth floor after the fire had been extinguished. His wife had thought that he got out of the building. The building was damaged $25,000, and some 150 guests in the Imperial Restaurant, which adjoins the Nassau Trust Building, were routed out in a panic.

The fire started on the fifth floor in the neighborhood of the elevator shaft. It burned quickly up through the roof, and the glare of the flames was seen by operators in the Brooklyn Fire Headquarters Building, only two blocks away. They ordered fire apparatus to the scene at once. Two alarms were turned in immediately.

The glare of the flames was also seen on the street below about the same time by Policemen Ringleman, Waddell, and McIntyre of the Adams Street Station. They knew that the family of Burkess lived somewhere in the building, but they did not know on what floor.

Kicking in the plate glass windows on the ground floor the policemen rushed up through the five floors, smashing in the door and calling out that the place was on fire. They penetrated to the top floor, and then, seeing that they were in a dangerous position themselves, rushed back downstairs. They had hardly reached the third floor when the stairs leading from the fourth to the top floor fell in.

The men of Truck and Ladder Company 61 when they arrived on the scene saw a woman holding a child in her arms standing at a window on the third floor facing out on Red Hook Lane. The firemen ran a ladder up to the window and brought down Mrs. Burkess and her 5-year-old son Paul.

Mrs. Burkess told the firemen that the family had been asleep on the fourth floor when they heard the shouting of the policemen. She had seized her child and had rushed out in the hallway, going on down to the third floor. She had thought, she said, that her husband had run on down the stairs after the policemen.

As a matter of fact, he ran upstairs while she ran down. He had reached the top floor, had been cut off from retreat by the falling of the stairs, and had then been cut off from escape through the roof by the flames, which had enveloped everything on the fifth floor. After the fire his body was found near the elevator shaft.

FIRE DRIVES OUT 150 PEOPLE.

$25,000 Blaze in Yonkers Probably Started by Smoldering Fireworks.

Thirty families, numbering 150 people, were made homeless by a fire which destroyed the three-story frame buildings at 27, 29, and 31 Garfield Street, Yonkers, yesterday morning, and damaged 33 and 35 Garfield Street. From each of these houses five families were driven. All the furniture and other contents of the houses were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

The fire is supposed to have been caused by the smoldering remains of fireworks, which were set off Sunday night and early yesterday morning, in the house at 29 Garfield Street, where some of the tenants in that house were celebrating the Fourth.

Firecracker Starts $80,000 Maine Fire.

RUMFORD FALLS, Me., July 5.—A fire here to-day destroyed the cutting-up mill of the Oxford Paper Company, involving a loss estimated at $80,000. The blaze is supposed to have been started by a firecracker. The paper company carried an insurance of about $75,000.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The French Ambassador, who left to-day for Lake Champlain, accompanied by Mme. Jusserand and members of his staff, will return to Washington on Thursday, to remain until the adjournment of Congress.

Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth have gone to Beverly, Mass., for a short visit to Mrs. Longworth, Sr., who has a Summer home there. Mrs. Nicholas Longworth expects to return with her husband to Washington before going to their home in Cincinnati for the Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Algernon Burnaby of England, will in a few days go to York Harbor, Me., to pass the Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward Theron have taken a cottage at Beverly, Mass., for the Summer.

RISKS LIFE TO RAISE FLAG.

Bridge Painter Crosses Cable 300 Feet High to Repair Halyard.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., July 5.—Michael Munro, a young bridge painter, gave here to-day 20,000 people a lesson in patriotism not down on the regular programme. The new city flag, 180 by 90 feet, the largest in the world, could not be formally unfurled and dedicated at noon, as had been intended, because a rope had given way. To repair the break Munro hauled himself hand over hand along the steel two-inch cable from the seventeenth story window of the Frick Building to the tower of the Court House, about 150 feet distant, and at least 300 feet from the street below.

Hundreds in the crowd of 20,000 observers stampeded, and not a few fainted at the sight of the man so high in the air. Munro did not ask the advice of any one connected with the ceremony, but placing a rope about his shoulders, slipped out of the seventeenth-story window and began to make his way, hand over hand across the great chasm.

Once, when he was about half way, his strength seemed leaving him, but he hooked one leg over the steel cable and after resting a few seconds, proceeded on his way to the end.

Mayor Magee was overcome when he saw Munro dangling in the air, and had to be taken away.

McCLELLAN ON AVERAGE MAN.

Makes a Plea for Him in Independence Day Address at Schenectady.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 5.—Mayor George B. McClellan of New York was the Independence Day orator in Schenectady. His address was patriotic in nature and touched only in a general way upon politics. He made a strong plea for the recognition of the rights of the average man in government, and in closing said:

"As long as the average men in this country continue to use their hardheaded common sense and innate conservation in dealing with public questions, just so long will our nation be safe. And our country will be happy as long as her average sons remember that the greatest glory of a free people is in its honor and its righteousness as a nation; that there is only one rule of conduct for the individual and for government."

RIOT IN "CORCORAN'S ROOST."

Two Men Probably Mortally Wounded—Detectives Also Attacked.

"Corcoran's Roost," in Fortieth Street, near Second Avenue, was the scene of a riotous outbreak last night between the Finns and the Russians who have displaced the Irish in that centre, and resulted in the probably mortal stabbing of two and the arrest of two more, who were locked up in the East Thirty-fifth Street Station. This is the second double stabbing in the "Roost" within two days.

In the renewal of a fight that started yesterday morning August Lille, 26 years old, of 332 East Fortieth Street, received six stab wounds and Thomas Popp of Somerville, N. J., was gashed on the scalp and chest and all but lost his left ear. Martin Frigt, 21, of 338 East Fortieth Street, was charged with felonious assault and Jacob Menck of 330 East Thirty-fifth Street was held on suspicion. There are countercharges of assault against the two wounded men, who are now lying in the prison ward of Bellevue at the point of death. None of the men concerned will tell what the fight was about.

Detectives Lee, Stevens, and Donahue of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station were passing through Fortieth Street when they saw a fight in progress at 338. They attempted to stop the struggle and were thrown back into the street. They were forced to draw blackjacks and revolvers to defend themselves against the mob that suddenly gathered at the entrance of the house. After driving away the crowd, the detectives saw Lille on top of Popp and Frigt on top of the pair. The two men underneath were bleeding profusely. Frigt is said by the detectives to have thrown away a knife when he saw them.

DON'T WANT EPISCOPALIAN.

Fifth Ave. Presbyterian Church Won't Call a Rector of That Denomination.

Edwin J. Gillies, a member of the Session of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, said at his home, 32 West Fifty-first Street, last night, that there was no truth in the report that the Session of the Church was considering the calling of an Episcopalian minister to its pastorate.

"In the first place," said Mr. Gillies, "there has been no committee appointed on the subject, and secondly, it is perfectly absurd to think that a Presbyterian church would select an Episcopalian minister as its pastor."

ORDER ARRESTS IN TRAGEDY.

Hanford and Whittemore Assert That Mrs. De La Montanya Shot Herself.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 5.—The Chief of Police has ordered the arrest of Hanford and Whittemore and Mrs. Patten, the three persons in Mrs. Lorena De La Montanya's rooms when she was shot last Friday night.

Hanford and Whittemore made statements to-day that Mrs. De La Montanya shot herself while fooling with Mrs. Patten's revolver. They assert that they told the Coroner all the facts Saturday, and that Mrs. Patten has lied about the case from the outset, asserting it was a suicide.

GIANTS WIN TWICE; 15-INNING BATTLE

Whirlwind Play Takes New York Almost Into Second Place.

SCORES: 3 TO 0, 3 TO 2

Wiltse Shuts Out Quakers, Having Clean Support—McGraw Works Three in Second Game.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—McGraw's men to-day celebrated the Nation's nativity with a duplex victory. They took another long stride toward the lead of the league by trouncing the Phillies 3 to 0 in the morning and 3 to 2 in the afternoon, the latter event being decided with an earned run in the fifteenth round, which is the season's record for the number of innings played in a National League game. By their double success the Giants have gone within two points of tieing Chicago for second place. If they win to-morrow and the Cubs lose the McGrawites will be in that position. They already are less than 100 points behind Pittsburg, and when they cross bats with the Pirates it probably will be with confidence that may lower the crest of those going-some travelers.

The morning game was cleanly, snappily and quickly played, but it was dimmed by the afternoon battle. It was all Wiltse in the morning, the Giants' left-handed star having the Phillies on the hip from beginning to end.

Three singles, one a scratch, told the sad tale of the Quakers' weakness at bat. Not a man reached second base, and only three perched on first. Wiltse had errorless support.

Covaleskie was hit frequently, but in only one inning did New York succeed in scoring. Then the Giants bunched three singles and a pass with an error in the fifth.

The afternoon battle was a melange of all that makes baseball the pre-eminent sport of America. Crashing hits, marvelous catches, wonderful stops, remarkable throws, damaging errors, daring steals, and stupid play all intermingled in fifteen innings of nerve racking hostility.

The ninth inning of the second contest will live long in the memory of the 10,270 persons present. Magee performed the miraculous when he pulled down Schlei's terrific clout with his gloved hand, just as the sphere was sailing over his left shoulder for a triple. Not only was the big outfielder running at top speed, but just as the ball was flying beyond his reach he made a high leap to intercept its flight. When he landed with the ball securely covered in his glove, the big crowd hardly could realize the wonder of the performance. Such a volcanic ovation that greeted him as he walked to the bench rarely is accorded to the average player in an entire baseball career.

From the field, Magee walked to the bench, picked up his wagon tongue and sauntered to the plate, wild cheers encouraging him. The enthusiasm broke out with even more rampant force when Big Mac singled over Tenney's head. Bransfield's sacrifice advanced him to second. Osborne smashed a safety to left, but Magee pulled up at third. Then the Phillies pulled off a clever "squeeze" play. Doolin bunted midway between pitcher and catcher, Magee reaching the plate ere Mathewson picked up the ball. Tenney dropped Matty's throw, and Osborne raced to third.

The battle proceeded through succeeding innings until the fifteenth, with neither side scoring again, but in the fifteenth Doyle and Murray broke the tie, each making a slashing two-bagger, Doyle scoring the winning run. The scores:

Kramer Wins Pursuit Race.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., July 5.—Frank L. Kramer, the East Orange cycling champion, lowered the colors of his chief rival, A. J. Clarke of Australia to-night in an Australian pursuit race. Though Clarke's punctured tire was the immediate cause of his defeat at five miles, Kramer had closed the gap between himself and his opponent within thirty yards when Clarke met with his misfortune. Kramer rode his best race this year in spite of the fact that he was not in good physical condition. The victory was popular among 7,500 spectators. Frank J. Cadwell of Hartford won the two-mile professional handicap and W. S. Fenn of Bristol, Conn., the three-mile open professional. Jacob Magin took the ten-mile open.

BASEBALL To-day, 4 P. M.—American League Park, N. Y. Americans vs. Athletics.—Adv.

Back to business to-day, and as a strictly business proposition, a serge is the suit.

No suit gives greater value in wear per dollar, no suit is so sure to be good style next year, no suit is wearable on so many occasions.

Next time you exercise hard, put on a suit of Schlichten Ramie underwear; and you'll see why it's so comfortable.

Ramie linen has three times the absorbent power of flax linen.

The reduced prices of all our youths' mixture and serge suits, sizes 32 to 35, will put a few extra vacation dollars into many a youth's pocket.

All $15, $18 and $20 now.

Among the "Arrow" Summer collars there's sure to be one which will hit you right in the neck.

ATHLETICS TAKE TWO MORE FROM YANKEES

Win Morning Game by 7 to 2, Afternoon Struggle by 4 to 3, on Hilltop.

LUCK HELPS GOOD PLAY

Everything Breaks for the Visitors—Doyle Pitches Excellently in the Second Contest.

"Which I rise to remark," said the Star Rooter as he sagged out of American League Park after Connie Mack's men for the second time in yesterday's course got the decision over the Yankees, "that it may be good medicine to call Detroit 'the class of the league,' but if those same Tigers has anything on these here Ath-a-letics for getting all the breaks it ain't perceptible to the Salome eye. Talk about sporting luck—why, if ary one of these Scrappieville hombres got a cinder in his eye he'd come out of the doctor's office with the Coal Trust in his clothes."

"What do you mean?" asked the Near Fan with a what's-the-score inflection.

"Mean?" sneered the Star Rooter. "What do I mean? Oh, nothing at all! What do I—say, bo, did you see that Palisades squall list Engle's fling to starboard in the very first inning of the morning game, and did you notice the dab of creamery on Elberfeld's mitt when he tried to take Brockett's flip in the third round, and did you spot the reverse English on the ball when Baker's Pommern settled to earth through Demmitt's grapnels in the same chapter—not to speak of Chase's annual error that perched Baker in the eighth? Also, did you observe the way Oldring saved himself from a bad mark by whipping Claudius out at second after muffing Demmitt's raise in the sixth?"

"Why, yes," answered the Near Fan, "but—"

"Butt your grandmother!" the Star Rooter fairly snorted. "And how about the afternoon meet? What do you know about that extry-altitudinous bound Oldring's seeming one-bagger took over Dem's dome for a scratch homer in the third? Whatcher got to say about those battery errors that give the Ath-a-letics the cut-the-grass count in the lucky? Did you hear Connie Mack say 'Thank you!' for that bonehead foul of Engle's that spoiled Chase's steal in the getaway? Hughey Jennings's Bar-D outfit may be the class, but Mack's men sure has the luck of the league."

And the veteran fan's scowl became so prominent he had to duck to get into the Subway.

Four thousand holiday-makers in the forenoon and 14,000 at the second game shared the old man's grouch. Not that they didn't see good ball. There was enough high-class play on both sides to win a minor league championship. But the fans did think things might break for the Hilltoppers once in a while. They saw no reason why the luck of the game shouldn't lean Yankeeward just for one little minute. On such a glorious day especially it would have been gratifying for New York to capture at least one battle, instead of which the second crowd saw the Athletics make it four straight from the Toppers. Philadelphia won by scores of 7 to 2 and 4 to 3.

Lake's softness and wildness gave Mack's men three jots in the first game's lid-lifter. Oldring jogged and was safe at second on a choice by Chase in handling Ganley's grasser. Collins's hitlet stocked the triangle. Oldring and Ganley carded when Engle's wide heave of Murphy's sacrificial fly let Collins take third. The third runner registered on Davis's one-time drill through second. Baker pranced, but a gingery double play by Elberfeld, Knight, Chase, and Sweeney retired the visitors, and Manager Stallings promptly sent Twirler Joe to the mourners' seat.

Brockett was equally easy for the Scrapplers in the third. Ganley singled and Elberfeld dropped the boxman's assist for a force on Collins's roll. Ganley recorded on Murphy's two-bagger that looked foul from the press box. Davis died at first, but Collins scored when Demmitt missed Baker's high one, the batter making the midway. Murphy got in from third on Barry's out at first.

The chapter in which New York evaded a shutout was promising, for Elberfeld roosted on Thomas's muffle. He was forced by Chase, who went to third on Engle's safety. Oldring dropped Demmitt's hoist, Chase scoring, but the outfielder recovered the sphere in time to whip Engle out at second, and Knight couldn't reach first. Chase's muff of Brockett's throw on Baker's bounce, Barry's sacrifice, a passed ball, and Thomas's tap accounted for Philadelphia's seventh tally. Hits by Knight, Blair, and Cree, and Brockett's sacrifice fly gave New York only one more count in the ninth, as the Toppers couldn't keep the ball near the ground.

The Athletics tallied twice in the second game's third round on Thomas's toddle and Oldring's lucky four-bagger. They repeated the performance in the seventh on Baker's two-sacker, Barry's hike, and Bender's long single. The Yankees got to the blackboard in the middle frame on Austin's sensational slash for the circuit, but their ninth-inning rally of two one-timers, a double, and a jaunt fell just short of a tie, because only one of the pinch hitters made good. The scores:

KING'S DAUGHTER WAS NEVER HEADED

Kentucky Mare Led from Start to Finish in Record Race for the Commonwealth.

BEAUCLERE WON IN A ROMP

Hill Top Beat Lawton Wiggins in a Head-and-Head Contest for Last Event at Sheepshead Bay Track.

In front from start to finish, King's Daughter, with a fame of several years' standing as a sprinter, ran the best race of her life, and set a new record for the Suburban renewal, properly the Commonwealth Handicap, as the first mare that ever won the fixture, at Sheepshead Bay yesterday. The race was the first triumph of the Eastern season for Thomas C. McDowell, who brought King's Daughter to New York especially intended for the Suburban, and, though there were doubts as to King's Daughter's ability to stay a mile and a quarter, the Kentucky mare started as a warm favorite with the biggest crowd that has assembled on a race course this season, and galloped out in front every foot of the way, covering the half mile in 0:47 1-5, the mile in 1:38 2-5, and the full distance of a mile and a quarter in 2:04, a second and a fifth faster than the former best time for the stakes.

The race for the mile and a furlong on the turf course produced a singular demonstration after Beauclere, the horse whose running in recent races is the subject of an investigation by the Sheepshead Bay Stewards of owner T. W. Coulter and Jockey G. Lynch in their management of the horse. Pending the final decision on Coulter and Lynch, the licenses of both were suspended, and the entries of Coulter were ordered refused, but Beauclere had been entered and handicapped for the mile and a furlong before the Stewards' order was issued, and Coulter surprised horsemen by asserting his right to start the horse, though he put up another jockey, Scoville. Montgomery was the favorite at odds on and galloped in front to the last turn, where Beauclere, which had been last and far behind the leader to the middle of the turn, went forward with hardly an effort, and, running over the favorite before they were in the stretch, won in a romp by four lengths, The Squire beating Montgomery for the place. The result was received with a terrific outburst of applause, and the air was filled with high-tossed hats as the horses went past the winning post. His winning race proved that Beauclere was fast, and his winning again did not throw any light on how the sudden improvement over his earlier races was made in Beauclere, but Coulter's victory was hailed with great enthusiasm, and so sincerely regarded as vindication of the owner that it rather appears as if the burden of the investigation will fall on Jockey Lynch.

For the last race the three-year-olds Hill Top and Lawton Wiggins fought out through the full length of the stretch in a whipping head and head finish, Hill Top winning by a matter of an inch or two. The summaries:

Ardsley Golf Links Popular.

Holiday sports kept things busy yesterday at the Ardsley Club, near Dobbs Ferry, and the golf links were particularly popular. The contest was an eighteen-hole match for a cup given by Herbert S. Carpenter. It was won after a close finish by C. L. Dana, with a card of 89, 20—69, just two strokes better than A. S. Robinson turned in, 85, 14—71. Daniel Bacon made the best gross score of the day, 83. The others who turned in cards were E. M. Johnson, 88, 16—72; Daniel Bacon, 83, 11—72; G. Woolsey, 89, 15—74; C. W. Clark, 93, 17—76; D. Dallan, 91, 15—76; S. H. McAdoo, 84, 7—77; A. K. Wood, 98, 20—78; J. S. Shaw, 98, 19—79; G. Johnson, 99, 20—79; G. H. Breed, 97, 17—80; T. M. Taylor, 92, 12—80; I. B. Johnson, 96, 18—82, and G. H. Johnson, 100, 17—83.

134 Golfers Play at Fox Hills.

One of the largest fields that has ever taken part in golf competitions at the Fox Hills Golf Club participated in the different events yesterday, over 134 members taking part. The Tournament Committee decided in the competition for the Lowery Medal to consider all those who had a net score of 73 or under were tied, and as there were quite a few who were tied there will be a play-off. The following are the best scores: G. E. Armstrong, 78, 10—68; H. I. Gee, 79, 6—73; A. H. Pogson, 83, 12—71; J. M. Ayers, 85, 14—71; J. R. Percival, 87, 14—73; I. W. Dern, 84, 12—72.

CARR FIRST IN LONG RUN.

Xavier Athlete Captures 15-Mile Road Race at Ulmer Park.

Independence Day was celebrated at Bensonhurst and Bath Beach yesterday with a series of aquatic, field, and track sports under the auspices of the United Spanish War Veterans, New Utrecht Camp, No. 77, at Ulmer Park, when the feature of an interesting programme was a 15-mile road race, in which 125 of the best long-distance performers in the metropolitan district Amateur Athletic Union competed. Eddie Carr, Xavier Athletic Association, scored an easy victory over the big field, winning by over 100 yards from T. Hogan, Holy Cross Lyceum, with J. Hanley, Dragon Athletic Club, 200 yards away. Twenty-five prizes were distributed in this event.

The race started from the park, the contestants running twice around the track. The route was by way of Twenty-second Avenue to Forty-seventh Street, to Cropsey Avenue and Bay Parkway, the contestants covering the road course twice and finishing six laps on the Ulmer Park track. Carr took the lead at the first turn on the road and held it throughout. Several of the contestants were caught riding over the course and were disqualified.

The Twenty-second Regiment won the Military Athletic League relay, and W. Schruber, Young Men's Christian Association, turned up the winner in the five-mile handicap. The winner received 300 yards handicap. The swimming races were decided in the morning opposite the Brooklyn Yacht Club mooring. The summaries:

FAR AHEAD LOOK FOR TURF.

Coney Island Jockey Club Decides to Open Stakes for Three Years to Come.

In an announcement that the Coney Island Jockey Club would renew the most famous and valuable fixtures of the Sheepshead Bay track, with provisions for stakes to be run as late as 1912, the Directors of the club caused some surprise and general satisfaction to horsemen.

The decision to reopen the stakes was reached at a meeting of the Board of Governors held at the race course yesterday.

The stakes which thus will be reestablished are all races which should have had their regular closing last season, after the change in the turf law, and because of the omission, the entries will be open to horses practically a year older than in the original conditions of the stakes. The stakes are:

For the June Meeting, 1911.—The Lawrence Realization, for three-year-olds, (now yearling.)

For the Autumn Meeting, 1911.—The Futurity, for two-year-olds, (now weanlings;) The Great Filly, for fillies two years old, (now weanlings.)

For the June Meeting, 1912.—The Lawrence Realization, for three-year-olds, (now weanlings.)

For the Autumn Meeting, 1912.—The Futurity, for two-year-olds, (foals of 1910.)

Yearlings Sold Well.

The most successful sale of yearling thoroughbred horses held this season took place at the Fasig-Tipton Company's paddock at Sheepshead Bay yesterday, when the yearlings of E. C. Cowdin's Maplehurst and Miller & Co.'s Millstream studs in Kentucky and H. T. Oxnard's Blue Ridge Stud in Virginia were offered in combination sale.

The best sales were as follows:

KETCHEL'S VICTORY, REFEREE'S VERDICT

Spectators Disagree with Decision After Twenty Rounds of Fierce Fighting at Frisco.

PAPKE SHOWS GAMENESS

Middleweight Wins on Aggressive Work and Cleaner Blows—"Thunderbolt" in Rally.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Stanley Ketchel, the present middleweight champion to-day defeated Billy Papke, the Illinois "Thunderbolt," after twenty rounds of hard milling. Referee Roche gave the decision to Ketchel on his aggressive work and the fact that he landed cleaner and oftener. It was reported that Ketchel broke his right hand in the sixth round. The decision was not received favorably by many in the crowd. The general impression among the spectators was that a draw would have been a good decision.

The men fought at Croffoth's arena, and attracted a good crowd. The contest was not by any means a scientific one, and the referee frequently experienced great difficulty in separating the men in clinches. Most of the fighting was done at close range, and many of the blows were vicious. The two fighters spent their energy before the the last round, in which neither man appeared capable of landing a knockout blow. Ketchel cut Papke's mouth in the third round and brought blood from his opponent's nose in the fourth.

There was little to choose between the pair during the early stages of the fight, but in the ninth Ketchel took a decided lead and continued it for three rounds, when Papke came back strong and in the judgment of many spectators evened matters before the end of the twentieth round.

The men fought bitterly every inch of the way. Papke did considerable execution with his body punches, while Ketchel reached his opponent's jaw and head many times. In the sixth round the men fought so fiercely that they fell to the floor exhausted. Ketchel sought to get in the vital punch, but Papke's physical condition and stamina stood him in good stead, and he was able to withstand the blows Ketchel landed on his jaw with merciless precision.

In the twelfth Papke staggered Ketchel with right and left swings on the jaw, but the champion was not to be stopped, and he exchanged punch for punch, but received considerably the worst of it in this round. Papke seemed to gain confidence in the latter stages of the game, but the efforts of both were futile, although they hammered away incessantly. When Referee Roche announced his decision it was received with mingled cheers and derisive shouts.

Swords Wins Baltusrol Golf Cup.

Three holiday competitions gave the members of the Baltusrol Golf Club plenty of sport yesterday on their club links near Short Hills, N. J. The big feature was a thirty-six-hole handicap for a Holiday Cup, and it was won by W. V. Swords, with a score of 175, 26—149. The other leaders were F. A. Wright, 173, 22—151; S. O. Vander Poel, Jr., 164, 12—152; E. A. O'Connor, 170, 16—54. Vander Poel won the prize for the best gross score, his two rounds being made in 83 and 81 respectively. The eighteen-hole handicap was won by C. A. Saber, with 91, 20—71, while F. A. Wright, 84, 11—73, and E. F. Miller, 86, 13—73, tied for second place. The ball sweepstakes went to Mr. Wright, with a card of 84, 11—73, E. Adams, Jr., being second, with 94, 15—79.

AMERICANS WIN POLO CUP EASILY

Meadow Brook Takes Great Trophy in Straight Matches.

SCORE IS 8 GOALS TO 2

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 5.—Lawrence Waterbury, J. M. Waterbury, Jr., Harry Payne Whitney, and Devereux Milburn, comprising the Meadow Brook polo team of Westbury, L. I., won the second and deciding match for the American Polo Cup here to-day.

The score was 8 to 2.

When Harry Payne Whitney as Captain of the team received from the Princess of Wales the trophy emblematic of the polo championship of the world no heartier congratulations were ever given to stranger by Englishmen.

Never were compliments better deserved, as the challengers eclipsed everything in polo that has ever been seen here before. Experts all admit that England was beaten fairly and squarely and by a superior team.

Walter Buckmaster, England's greatest player, who refereed the match, said to THE NEW YORK TIMES's correspondent after the game:

"The Americans gave a great exhibition. It was the best polo I have ever seen. They beat our men for dash, they were quicker on the ball, and knew what to do with it when they got to it. Harry Payne Whitney is one of the best sportsmen in the world. In fact, the whole team is made up of good fellows, and they richly deserve the success which I attribute to the thoroughness with which they mastered every detail of the game."

Whitney was wild with delight after the game, and was overwhelmed by congratulations by both American and English friends. Monte Waterbury, who again played brilliantly, said: "Our game in America is much faster than England's, and we seem able to get hold of the ball better when it is on the move. We are better mounted than we were in 1902, but I think the improvement of our game over that year is largely due to the fact that the team is all so friendly. Then we live together and are on the very best terms with each other, while in 1902 we were worried about one thing and another. Besides, it is so different with Whitney as Captain. He never troubles the team unnecessarily."

BRITISH TEAM OUTCLASSED.

American Polo Players Were Never Hard Pressed During Match.

LONDON, July 5.—The first game for the international polo championship was won by the Americans June 23, and as the cup was to go to the side winning two out of three matches, the visitors, by their victory of to-day, have secured the trophy for America.

The British players were outclassed, both in hitting and manoeuvring, just as much to-day as they were when the first match was played. The Americans never were really hard pressed at any stage of the game, and their brilliant combinations, daring galloping, and accurate hitting were a revelation to the onlookers and drew forth enthusiastic cheering.

The crowd, which numbered close to 6,000 and was composed largely of prominent members of society, watched the game throughout with great interest and heartily cheered the Americans when the final result was proclaimed, and again when the quartet of players, who have carried everything before them since they arrived in England, went up to the royal stand to receive the cup, which has been in England's possession for so many years.

During the match, however, there was little enthusiasm, because from the start it was plain that the visitors were far superior to the defenders.

Many American ladies were present, among them the Duchess of Marlborough, who was the first to offer congratulations. Mr. Whitney and his fellow-players naturally were highly elated at their success. All of them declared that it was one of the best games ever played, and, while the score was uneven, it was far from a walkover. Mr. Whitney said: "Every member of the team had to play his hardest. We could not afford to take any chances, as our opponents have been steadily improving, and they made us work for every goal scored."

Mr. Whitney started scoring for America in the first period, then Capt. Lloyd equalized for England in the second, but after this the Meadow Brook players had matters all their own way. J. M. Waterbury, Jr., hit three successive goals, and Lawrence Waterbury, Mr. Milburn, and J. M. Waterbury, Jr., then followed up with one more each. In the fifth period the English players rallied and pressed hard, and Mr. Nickalls scored their second and last goal. Just before the finish Mr. Whitney scored the eighth goal for America.

After the match the Meadow Brook players all were presented to the Prince and Princess of Wales. The latter presented the cup and congratulated the Americans upon their brilliant play. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught also witnessed the game.

The English players made two changes in their teams since the first game with the Americans for the cup, and the English line-up to-day was F. M. Freake, P. W. Nickalls, Harry Rich, and Capt. Hardress Lloyd. The two last mentioned players were substituted for Capt. Herbert Wilson and Lord Wodehouse, who played in the first match.

The polo cup was first given in 1886, on the occasion of a visit to the United States of a strong English team. The best of the American teams was quite incapable of defeating the Englishmen, and thus the trophy went to England, where it has remained ever since. Fourteen years later America made a first attempt to win it back, but without success. Another attempt was made in 1902, when the American players were R. L. Agassiz, J. M. Cowden, L. Waterbury, and J. M. Waterbury, Jr. On this occasion the Americans won one of the three matches. The present is consequently the third challenge in twenty-three years, and the Hurlingham committee selected the strongest possible team of contenders.

Polo Under American Rules.

LONDON, July 5.—The Ranelagh Polo Club has accepted the challenge of the Meadow Brook, Long Island, team to play a game of polo under the American rules, which do not permit of offsides. The Meadow Brook men are giving a silver trophy for the game, which will come off July 10.

Shrubb, Handicapped, Beats Nebrich.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 5.—Alf Shrubb, the English middle-distance runner, to-night defeated Frank Nebrich of Buffalo in a handicap race. Shrubb gave Nebrich a quarter of a mile in a ten-mile race, and won by 300 yards in 52:10.

Philadelphia Oarsmen Win Chief Honors in People's Day Regatta.

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—In what was virtually a dual regatta between Philadelphia and New York crews the Quaker City oarsmen got revenge for previous defeats by winning eight races to New York's four in the annual People's Day regatta this afternoon on the Schuylkill. Baltimore was the only other winner outside of New York and Philadelphia, the Southerners finishing first in one event.

The Quaker City oarsmen won the junior, intermediate, and senior eight-oared shells, the junior and intermediate single sculls, the junior and intermediate four-oared gigs, and the intermediate double sculls. New York's share of the first prizes consisted of the senior doubles, the senior single sculls, the senior four-oared shells, and the senior centipedes. Baltimore, represented by the Arundel B. C., won the junior double sculls. A tremendous crowd lined both sides of the river and filled hundreds of craft of all sorts about the finish line.

The feature race was for senior eights in which the New York A. C. met defeat for the first time in many years. The fight for first place was between the Vesper B. C. and the West Philadelphia B. C., both of this city, and the New York A. C. The three crews were lapped for almost the entire distance. Two hundred yards from the finish the two Philadelphia eights began to draw away from the wearers of the winged foot. It was only by a matter of a few feet that the Vespers rowed out the West Philadelphia crew, the New York A. C. being a good boat length in the rear.

In the senior four-oared shells for the Downing Cup the New York A. C. won a fairly easy victory with the Arundel B. C. of Baltimore in second place. Durando Miller of the New York A. C. had little trouble winning the race for senior singles. Due to the large number of competitors there was considerable jockeying by the crews and two upsets occurred. The summaries:

Junior Eight-Oared Shells—Won by Malta B. C., Philadelphia; Crescent Boat Club, Philadelphia, second; Ariel Rowing Club, Baltimore, third. Time—7:32.

Intermediate Single Sculls—Won by G. W. Allison, West Philadelphia B. C.; J. Kerman, Ariel R. C., second. Time—7:58.

Senior Double Sculls—Won by Harlem R. C., New York; New York A. C. second; Crescent B. C., Philadelphia, third. Time—7:22.

Intermediate Eight-Oared Shells—Won by West Philadelphia B. C.; Quaker City B. C., Philadelphia, second; Ariel R. C., Baltimore, third. Time—6:52.

Junior Single Sculls—Won by G. L. Belcher, Malta B. C., Philadelphia; J. Hughes, Harlem R. C., New York, second; R. L. Quinn, Pennsylvania B. C., Philadelphia, third. Time—8:22.

Senior Single Sculls—Won by Durando Miller, New York A. C.; Frank Shea, Sheepshead Bay R. C., second; Samuel Gordon, Vesper B. C., Philadelphia, third. Time—8:14.

Junior Four-Oared Gigs—Won by Manyuank B. C., Philadelphia; Fairmount B. C., Philadelphia, second; Montrose B. C., Philadelphia, third. Time—7:06.

Intermediate Double Sculls—Won by West Philadelphia Boat Club; Sheepshead Bay R. C., New York, second; Undine B. C., Philadelphia, third. Time—8:06.

Senior Four-Oared Shells—Won by New York A. C.; Arundel B. C., Baltimore, second; Harlem R. C., New York, third. Time—7:04.

Senior Centipede—Won by Nassau B. C., New York; New York A. C. second. Time—6:49 4-5.

Intermediate Four-Oared Gigs—Won by Pennsylvania B. C., Philadelphia; Vesper B. C., Philadelphia, second; Undine B. C., Philadelphia, third. No time taken.

Junior Double Sculls—Won by Arundel B. C., Baltimore; Quaker City B. C., Philadelphia, second; Philadelphia B. C., Philadelphia, third. Time—7:33.

Senior Eight-Oared Shells—Won by Vesper B. C., Philadelphia; West Philadelphia B. C. second; New York A. C., third. Time—6:45.

PRACTICE FOR HILL-CLIMB.

Cars Entered in Plainfield Event Try Out the Course.

A number of the cars entered in the charter day hill climb, which is to be held to-day on Johnston's Drive, Plainfield N. J., were out yesterday to try the course. Expert road builders have put the seven-tenths of a mile grade in splendid shape for the contests to-day, and fast time is expected.

There are four classes and two free-for-all events to be contested. Fred J. Titus, who has the climb in charge, says that all of the events will be filled. Mail entries closed last night, but post entries may be made. The contests are open to all comers, including amateurs, professionals, private owners, and dealers.

It is announced that if the hill climb is a success this year it will become an annual event. The local and county authorities have arranged to have the course carefully policed so as to avoid accidents to spectators.

WORLD'S RECORD FOR MARTIN SHERIDAN

Takes All-Around Championship with a Total of 7285 Points at Celtic Park Games.

T. L. MATSUKES IS SECOND

Irish-American Athlete Victor in All but One of the Ten Events—Half-Mile Walk Close.

Martin J. Sheridan of the Irish-American Athletic Club yesterday afternoon made a new world's record for the National all-around championship of the Amateur Athletic Union by recording a total of 7,285 points in the annual event which was run off at the games of the United Scottish Clans at Celtic Park. He exceeded the old figures of 7,130½ points made by himself by 154½ points and captured first place by a margin of nearly 2,500 points over Theodore L. Matsukes of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association, who finished second. The latter's score was 3,798½.

Four entries were scheduled for the all-around championship, but when the time came for the first event only two were on hand. E. L. Farrell of the South Boston A. C. failed to put in an appearance and E. Payne of the Mohegan A. C. was nearly three-quarters of an hour late, and was not allowed to compete. William McLead of the Irish-American A. C. also wanted to compete in the event, but as he was also late the contest simmered down to a dual struggle between Sheridan and Matsukes.

The championship brought out one race which excelled anything of the afternoon. Sheridan felt confident of winning the one-mile walk and as a matter of fact did turn the trick, but only after the hardest kind of a race.

In all of the weight events, and in the running broad jump, Sheridan proved to be the absolute master of the situation, but when it came to the 1-mile run, which was the last of the ten events for the all-around championship, Matsukes came into his own. Sheridan was plainly tired, and the West Side Y. M. C. A. man cut loose with a fast pace, which left Sheridan far behind. More than 100 yards separated the two when Matsukes crossed the line a winner. Sheridan tottered across the finish in practically a state of collapse, due to his efforts to better his own figures for the event. After running the final distance to the tape he fell into the arms of those at the finish in the greatest distress. He recovered quickly, however, and a short time later appeared on the field again in civilian costume.

Aside from the feature event, the all-around championship, there were a number of other competitions which furnished the liveliest sort of sport to the 8,000 people in the park.

Not the least interesting feature was a series of dances by the boys and girls of Scotch parentage. The bagpipes, too, were in evidence, and the wheezy tunes floated across the field for the greater part of the afternoon. The summary:

Porter Wins High Jump.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 5.—Albert C. Gilbert of New York, the former Yale athlete and holder of the world's record for pole vaulting, was the star of the Knights of Columbus games at Agricultural Park to-day. Harry F. Porter of the New York A. C. and Emil Erickson of the Mott Haven team were also much in evidence. The San Salvador Council relay team from New York landed their event in handy fashion from the South Boston and Stamford (Conn.) Council teams in 3 minutes 36 3-5 seconds. E. Spitzer and F. H. Wright of San Salvador Council ran second and third, respectively, to "Ike" Sheehan of Boston in the quarter mile in 50¼ seconds. William Keating and Ed Spitzer of San Salvador Council landed first and second places respectively in the 100-yard dash. Gilbert made 11 feet in an exhibition pole vault. Porter won the high jump, with Erickson second and Gidney third.

Three A. A. U. Records in West.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 5.—Three Western records were broken to-day in the annual running of the championship games of the Western Division of the American Athletic Union of America. Don Stophlet, a Chicago University runner, carrying the colors of the Kansas City Y. M. C. A., ran the mile in 4:30 1-5, winning, and setting a new mark. In the five-mile run, George Dunning, an English runner, who went under the K. C. A. C. colors, made a mark of 28:12 2-5. In the discus throw, H. Kanatzer, a local High School boy, entered for K. C. A. C., hurled the oval 121 feet 10 inches, shattering the Western record held by Hans Wulff of the Missouri Athletic Club of St. Louis for seven years. In points, the team of the Kansas City Athletic Club led, scoring 60; Missouri Athletic Club of St. Louis was second, with 38; Y. M. C. A., third, 18; the other points were scattered.

New York Athletes Show Form.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., July 5.—New York athletes made a good showing in the Clan-Na-Gael sports held at Oak Island Grove, Revere, this afternoon. James Rosenberger of the Irish-American Athletic Club took first place in the 100-yard dash in 0:10, after starting from the one-yard mark, and Archer came home in third place. Robbins took second place in the 440-yard dash, being beaten to the tape by only a matter of inches in the time of 0:52 3-5. In the half-mile, Louis Bradford, with a handicap of 30 yards, took the event in the mediocre time of 2:03 3-5.

Jimmy Lee of the Mercury Athletic Club of Yonkers also showed as a winner, with a victory in the five-mile run, after he had failed to get placed in two three-mile races in which he participated this morning. His time for the five-mile distance was 27:39.

Rosenberger, Robbins, Bradford, and Archer were to have competed in a relay race against some of the New England cracks, but the latter were wary, and refused to enter the event against the men of the metropolitan district.

L. ZENGLE DRIVES IN FASTEST MILE

Chadwick Car Covers Wildwood Course in Record Time, 41 Seconds.

PARADE PRIZE FOR BONNELL

East Orange Autoist Had Best Appearing Car in Line, Winning with a Maxwell Touring Car.

Special to The New York Times.

WILDWOOD, N. J., July 5.—The greatest automobile performance that has ever been seen on this island was that of to-day, when Lew Zengle drove his great sixty horse power Chadwick thundering down the one mile speedway course in 41 seconds and broke the track record of 42 3-5 seconds made by Paul Schill in his 120 horse power Fiat car just one year ago.

Time trials in which each driver was allowed two trials, had been run by several different cars, and in this the Chadwick also made the best time by covering the mile in 44 seconds, with its nearest opponent, a big 48-horsepower Knox, driven by Al Dennison, coming in in 49 seconds, but this was in the face of a stiff southeast wind, which greatly retarded the speed of the car and after proving the superiority of his machine, by making the best time in the kilometer time trials and finishing this event in 26 seconds, Zengle decided to try a mile against time in the opposite direction from which the other events had been run, and with the consent of Referee W. Clyde Crosby and Judges H. W. Sharp, H. A. Bonnell, and A. Woolson, he drove his car in the direction the wind was blowing and ran from the lower to the upper end of the course, and made a new track record that is likely to stand for some time to come.

A Boardwalk parade had been planned, but the throng of visitors was so great it was decided that it would be dangerous to attempt to hold the parade on the promenade, and this plan was abandoned and the parade held on the avenue, where quite a large number of handsomely decorated cars participated.

A handsome mounted silver shield had been donated by Charles E. Epler, to be presented to the most beautifully decorated and best appearing automobile in the line of parade, and this was won by H. A. Bonnell of East Orange, a member of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club of Newark and the Treasurer and a member of the Board of Governors of the American Automobile Association. Mr. Bonnell drove a Maxwell touring car. The racing summaries:

Event No. 1; Open to Gasoline Cars Only; Handicap of One Second for Each $200 in Value.—Started with a Knox, driven by A. Dennison; Marion, by Charles Stutz; Overland, by Charles E. Reis; Mitchell, by Walter Cram; Buick, by Eddie Wilkie, in which the Knox and Marion tied on the finish and the heat was declared a dead one. In the second heat of this event the Knox landed first honors, with the Overland second and the Marion in the third place. Time—1:10 1-5. The third heat was also won by the Knox, followed by the Overland, with the Marion again in third place. Time—1:08.

Event No. 2 had no entrants.

Event No. 4; Free for All; Open to All Makes and Types of Cars.—Won by the Chadwick, driven by Lew Zengle; Knox, driven by Charles Stutz, second; Knox, driven by A. Dennison, third; Atlas, driven by Elmer Knox, fourth. Time—0:48 2-5.

Event No. 5 had no entries.

Event No. 6; Handicap for Gasoline Cars Costing from $2,000 to $3,000.—Won by the Knox, driven by W. A. Bourque; Chalmers-Detroit, driven by C. J. Rogers, second; Knox, driven by J. V. W. Westervelt, third. Time—1:08.

Event No. 7; Handicap for Gasoline Cars Costing $3,000 to $4,000, with One Second for Each $200 in Value.—Won by Allan Kingston, driven by Hugh Hughes, followed by Knox, driven by Al Dennison. Time—0:58.

Event No. 8; Special event for Gasoline Cars Only, All Makes and Prices.—First Heat—Won by the Knox, driven by Al Dennison, in 1:15; Mitchell, driven by Walter Cram in 1:25 2-5, second; Allan Kingston, driven by Hugh Hughes in 1:17 3-5, third.

Second Heat—Won by Knox, driven by Al Dennison, 1:13; second, Marion, Charles Stutz, 1:16 4-5; third, Overland, Charles L. Reiss; fourth, Chalmers Detroit, C. J. Rogers.

Final Heat—Won by the Marion, driven by Charles Stutz, in 1:11 2-5; second, Knox, driven by Al Dennison, in 1:16 1-5; third, Knox, driven by W. A. Bourque, in 1:16 2-5.

Auto Racing at Tuxedo Park.

Special to The New York Times.

TUXEDO PARK, July 5.—The automobile race from the Association Building to the Rockland County line and return, a distance of two and one-third miles, was won by John Rutherford, driving a Stearns car, in 2 minutes and 50 1-5 seconds, eclipsing the record made in former years. In addition, there was a prize offered for two-cylinder cars, which was won by C. S. Patterson, driving a two-cylinder Maxwell. Among others who finished were A. L. Kellogg, (Locomobile,) time, 3:56; F. F. Carey, (Packard,) driven by Foster, 3:06 2-5; Pierre Lorillard, (Maxwell,) 4:41; Ernest Meyer, (Maxwell,) 4:03½; Richmond Talbot, (Isotta,) 3:42½; B. R. Rodgers, (Stearns,) 2:58; William Weygant, (Locomobile,) 5:19½; William Weygant, (Mercedes,) 3:14½.

Autoist Fractures Two Ribs.

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—While practicing for the Santa Monica automobile road race to-day, Bruno Seibel's car, going seventy miles an hour, broke two wheels and turned over on a sharp turn, pinning Seibel beneath the machine and fracturing two ribs.

Dineen Beats Hayes in Marathon.

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 5.—Pat Dineen, the Boston baker, won a Marathon race held at Centennial Field here to-day in connection with the Champlain celebration. Johnny Hayes of New York, the Shepherd's Bush Olympic winner of a year ago, was second and nearly a mile behind. Teddy Crooks of Fall River was third, and Black Hawk, a Canadian Indian, fourth. Dineen's time was 3 hours.

Great Neck Second Team Beats First.

Special to The New York Times.

CEDARHURST, L. I., July 5.—The second polo team of Great Neck beat the first team of that club here this afternoon by a score of 8 goals to 5¼ in the final match for the Independence Cup. The game was played on the polo field of the Rockaway Hunt Club, and was witnessed by a large holiday and society crowd. The line-up and summary:

LOZIER

ANNOUNCEMENT 1910

LOZIER Agents in the principal cities throughout the United States have contracted for a majority of the cars which will be built in our factories during the next twelve months, thereby restricting the number of LOZIER cars available for New York City to a smaller number for 1910 than were sold in 1909.

1910 LOZIER CARS are now offered for sale in New York City, and deliveries will be made in the order in which orders are placed.

The LOZIER has always been a leader, never a mere imitator—more original features in design and construction appearing first on the LOZIER cars than on any other make—features since adopted as standard practice by all makers.

The 1910 Shaft Driven LOZIER cars as usual show real and original improvements, which will later be found on other standard high-class cars. Our reputation commands recognition of the truth of this statement.

LARCHMONT YACHTS IN HOLIDAY TRIM

Big Boats Decorated with Flags and Fleet of Eighty-six in Regatta.

VANDERBILT OFF TOO SOON

Beaten in Long Race by Istalena—Maxwell Boys Make Exciting Finish in Glen Cove Jewel Class.

"Larchmont luck" was very much in evidence yesterday at the Larchmont Yacht Club. The large number of sailing boats in the harbor early in the morning, most of them preparing for the thirtieth annual club regatta, furnished an interesting sight to the members of the land brigade. Anchored here and there amid the fluttering sails were a score or more of big steam yachts and power launches, every one, with scarcely an exception, gayly decorated from stem to stern with colored flags in honor of the day.

Cornelius Vanderbilt's North Star came over from Glen Cove with a party of New York Yacht Club members anxious to see Mr. Vanderbilt sail his big sloop Aurora. J. Rogers Maxwell's Celt was in full dress, Mr. Maxwell watching the start of his two sons in the Glen Cove one-design class, and he had the satisfaction of seeing Harry W. Maxwell lead his opponents with the Emerald. Among the other big boats in the harbor that added to the attractiveness of the day were Commodore Wilson Marshall's Atlantic, R. A. C. Smith's Privateer, Dallas B. Pratt's Sea Fox, the Elsa II., Felicia, Florence, Carmina, Taniwha, Ailsa Craig, Sea Shell, and Whim.

Boats from nearly all the neighboring yacht clubs began to arrive early near the committee boat, and promptly at 11:40 the regatta was started. The racing fleet was the largest that has been seen this season, eighty-six boats starting, divided into twenty-three classes. The results, with elapsed time:

Schooners, Class E; Course, 23 Miles.—Miladi, George Scott, 4:30:43.

Sloops, Class K; Course, 30½ Miles.—Istalena, George M. Pynchon, 4:40:11; Aurora, Cornelius Vanderbilt, 5:17:31; Winsome, Henry F. Lippitt, 5:18:34.

Sloops, Class N; Course, 23 Miles.—Dorello, George L. Batchelder, 3:11:11.

Yawls, Class N; Course, 23 Miles.—Zaloma II., W. W. Wood, 4:29:39; Memory, R. H. Nexson, 4:47:15.

New York Thirties; Course, 15¼ Miles.—Alera, E. P. Alker, 3:24:14; Nepsi, Johnston De Forest, 3:28:44; Atair, George G. Meyer, 3:29:50; Phryne, J. F. O'Rourke, 3:33:08; Dahinda, G. E. Roosevelt, 3:38:19; Ibis, J. P. Morgan, Jr., 3:40:38.

Sloops, Class P; Course, 11 Miles.—Red Rover, T. B. Bleecker, 3:06:13; Dolly, Richard Webber, Jr., 3:20:33; Nadiahka, J. M. McDonough, 3:01:55; Mimosa III., Edmund Reskes, 3:04:19.

Larchmont One-Design Class; Course, 11 Miles.—Houri, D. S. Dealey, 3:15:15; Dorothy, L. G. Spence, 3:17:48; Vaquero, John McCarthy, 3:19:07.

Sloops, Class Q; Course, 11 Miles.—Eleanor, F. T. Bedford, 2:56:38; Quest, F. L. Vulte, 3:10:27; Edmie, R. J. Schaeffer, 3:05:46; Princess, F. G. Stewart, 3:02:46.

TAMMANY WINS CROKER CUP.

Beats Eclipse in Ocean Race by 41 Minutes—Victory Wins Challenge Cup.

With the victory yesterday by Commodore William C. Towen's schooner Tammany of the Croker Cup for the Cape May ocean race, and Commodore Harry A. Jackson, Jr.'s, capture of the Brooklyn Yacht Club Challenge Cup with his sloop Victory, the two big ocean races started last Saturday came to a successful end at the Brooklyn Yacht Club. Both were the club's races, for while the Challenge Cup event started from the Harlem Yacht Club, due to the fact that the Mopsa of that club was the cup holder, the conditions imply that the contests for the trophy shall finish at the club offering the prize.

The keenest interest, of course, was centred in the finish of the Cape May ocean race, a 325-nautical-mile contest, the finish being off the Scotland Lightship. The news brought early the preceding evening that one of the boats had been sighted off Fire Island caused a number of the early rising yachtsmen to go down the bay to meet the early comers. L. J. Callanan's schooner Eclipse was the first to arrive, passing the Lightship at 3:13 o'clock in the morning, and followed 41 minutes later, at 3:54, by the Tammany. The Vigil was the last boat to arrive, coming in at 5:20 o'clock.

The times of the five boats are:

In the Brooklyn Challenge Cup race Victory was the challenging boat, Mopsa having held the trophy since 1906. Victory allowed Mopsa 58 minutes and 52 seconds and beat her on corrected time by 1:56:03. The third boat to start, G. P. Granbery's Intrepid, broke her steering gear when off New London and put back, but was in shape to compete in the Larchmont regatta yesterday. The race was around Long Island, 285 nautical miles, coming back by the ocean route. The crews of all the boats reported excellent sailing conditions. The summary of the Challenge Cup race:

Brooklyn Challenge Cup Race; 285 miles; start, 10 A. M., July 3, from Harlem Y. C.

Special to The New York Times.

PARRAN, Nev., via Reno, Nev., July 5.—The heat yesterday afternoon made sleep and rest impossible. Later in the evening it grew cooler, and I got some rest. At 1 A. M. I started for Hazen, the night being cool and I feeling like taking a good walk. About 7 A. M. a heavy wind blew the sand so hard that I could not see 100 feet before me. For this emergency I am somewhat protected with sand glasses. The wind brought a cool breeze and made it possible to walk. I arrived at Parran, 33 miles, without a rest. Expect to arrive at Hazen, 57 miles, at 10 P. M.

MOONLIGHT GOLF SCORE.

A. J. Watson Qualifies for Dunwoodie Cup in Novel Manner.

The Dunwoodie Golf Club was recently rendered locally famous by having one of its holes made in a single stroke, but this achievement has given way to the moonlight score of 92, made by A. J. Watson between 8 and 11 o'clock last Saturday night. Not only was the score admirable, but the fact that it enabled Watson to qualify in the first sixteen for the July tournament cup, occasioned interesting comment among the holiday players yesterday.

Watson's first nine holes were made in 45 and the second nine in 47. Watson did not have a 7 in his moonlight score, 6 being the highest for any one hole, which was taken on eight greens. The links were thronged with members and a putting match for women in the afternoon brought out thirty-six contestants, the prizes being won by Mrs. Bird, with 24 for 12 holes, Mrs. Waldman, second, 25, and Mrs. Gardner, third, 27.

The class A handicap in the morning was won by M. Parish Watson, 85, 12, 73. The class B event went to George E. Hall, 88, 24, 64, and the class C event to W. L. Wemple, 104, 36, 65. In the afternoon there was a best ball foursome handicap. The class A winners were W. W. Babcock and B. Torance, 76, 9½, 66½. In class B the victors were R. W. Graham and J. B. Wildman, 85, 19½, 65½, and the winners in class C were W. A. Millikin and R. M. Bartholomew, 97, 28, 69.

Golf Handicaps at Montclair.

Golf competitions were in progress from early morning until late at night yesterday on the Montclair Golf Club links. There were two eighteen-hole handicaps, while an extra competition was made by selecting the best score for each hole of the two handicaps and merging them into a best score thirty-six-hole handicap. Paul Harrison walked off with the cup in this event, the leading scores being:

Paul Harrison, 67, 3—64; H. E. Aborn, 71, 5—66; W. B. Perley 77, 8—69; E. F. Hurd, 77, 8—69; J. C. Pratt, 78, 8—70; C. J. Turner, 77, 7—70; F. H. Lockett, 72, 2—70; E. B. Lyford, 74, 4—70; F. M. Harrison, 78, 8—70; E. F. Miller, 79, 7—72; Oscar Woodward, 74, 2—72; A. L. Brown 80, 8—72; F. M. Ramsey, 77, 5—72; Hayden Dudley, 78, 5—73.

The Class A handicap in the morning was won by A. C. Aborn, 73, 7—66, and R. P. Neff won the Class B event with 89, 16—73. In the afternoon the Class A match was taken by C. J. Turner, 79, 9—70, and W. R. Hulbert won the Class B handicap with 81, 13—68.

Callan Wins Golf Championship.

Dr. L. W. Callan won the championship of the Englewood Golf Club yesterday by defeating Roy Webb in the final thirty-six-hole round by 3 up and 1 to play. The second cup went to H. M. Coxe, who beat G. L. Matson by 3 up and 2 to play, and the third trophy was taken by W. W. White, who defeated N. E. D. Huggins by 4 up and 3 to play. Other cups for the defeated eights in the second and third divisions were won respectively by H. V. Keep, who beat F. Starbuck by 5 up and 4 to play, and G. C. Austen, who beat M. W. Peters by 3 up and 2 to play.

Ties for Apawamis Golf Cups.

Over fifty golfers played over the links of the Apawamis Golf Club yesterday at Rye for a cup given by W. R. Thurston. The contest was thirty-six holes, and it resulted in a tie between B. C. Fuller, 163, 14—149, and M. W. Laidlaw, 187, 38—149. There was also a triple tie for the other leading places between F. S. Wheeler, 171, 14—157; H. C. Light, 195, 38—157, and H. N. Cowperthwaite, 187, 30—157.

Independence Cup at Nassau.

An Independence Cup handicap brought out a big field of golfers to the Nassau Club links, near Glen Cove, yesterday. The trophy was won by H. W. Warner, with a card of 84, 20—64, and Herbert L. Pratt was second, with 82, 10—72.

Capital to Coast Race.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 5.—Ten boats started from the Albany Yacht Club house at 4 o'clock this afternoon in "The Capital to Coast Race," down the Hudson River to the Colonial Yacht Club house, New York. The course, estimated at 135 miles, is expected to be covered in about twenty hours.

Six boats represent the Albany Yacht Club, three the Colonial Yacht Club, and one the Toledo Yacht Club of Toledo, Ohio.

Martha Wins Motor Boat Race.

The motor boats that started at 7 o'clock Saturday night from the New York Motor Boat Club, foot of West 147th Street and the Hudson River, in their long-distance race of 270 miles to Albany and back, began finishing early yesterday morning, the first boat to arrive being F. Gilse's Elmo II., which, although being beaten on time allowance by Paul Kossek's Martha, won the prize for the best elapsed time. Elmo II. arrived off the clubhouse at 1:50 A. M. and Martha came in at 3:45. By time allowance Martha won the cup by fifteen minutes. Nine of the fourteen boats that started finished early in the day. A. Sauer's Plow Boy won the third prize. The summaries:

Soya Beaten in Bensonhurst Regatta.

Thirty-one boats, the pick of the racing fleet in Gravesend Bay, started in a special handicap race under the auspices of the Bensonhurst Yacht Club yesterday morning. W. A. Barstow's Soya was the first yacht to finish. On corrected time, however, first prize went to Trio, owned by C. H. Clayton. The boats all raced in one class under a handicap figured by Alfred Mackay. The race was once around a four-mile triangle in Gravesend Bay. Pester was the first across the line, but [illegible] was leading [illegible]

ACCIDENTS IN YACHT RACE.

Sailor Washed Overboard from Sakana in Brooklyn Club Regatta.

Spirited racing was witnessed in the midsummer regatta of the Brooklyn Yacht Club, sailed on Gravesend Bay yesterday afternoon. The boats started in a fresh breeze from the south, which grew considerably stronger as the afternoon advanced. Thirty-three yachts started. The winners in the different divisions were the sloop Peri, J. S. Bradley, in the P class; W. A. Barstow's Soya, among the Q boats; J. H. Ives's La Cubana, in the first division of the handicap class; Richard Moore's Papillon, in the second division of the same class; the fifteen-footer Gunda, owned by F. C. Noble; F. L. Billingham's Gravesend Bay knockabout Queen, and the New York Canoe Club dinghy Midget, owned by W. B. Schuyler.

Several accidents were reported during the afternoon. While trying to set a ballooner off Sea Gate a sailor was washed overboard from the yawl Sakana, which belongs to John and Walter Haviland of the Brooklyn Yacht Club. The sailor clung to a rope and was hauled on board. Just as she was crossing the finish line the knockabout Mouse rammed the committee boat, the yawl Albicore, the property of William Campbell. Mouse carried away a part of her rigging on the bowsprit of the yawl. The knockabout Bobs was responsible for the accident, as she failed to give Mouse room to clear the committee boat.

Imp Leads Seawanhaka Yachts.

Seven of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian fifteen-footers had an interesting race yesterday over the usual Oyster Bay course in their cup series. S. L. Landon's Imp won the contest, beating L. C. Tiffany's Water Baby by 45 seconds. The boats, with elapsed times, are: Imp, S. L. Landon, 1:28:35; Water Baby, L. C. Tiffany, 1:29:10; Grilse, G. E. Roosevelt, 1:34:21; Cicada, A. D. Weeks Jr., 1:34:52; Grayling, H. W. Warner, 1:36:50; Marjorie, William R. Peters, 1:37:21, and Hen, George Nicholls, 1:44:12.

Lucia Wins Newman Cup.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 5.—The Newman Cup race for motor boats, over a ten-mile course on Saratoga Lake, was won to-day from a field of eight power boats by the Lucia, owned by A. H. Ameden of Schenectady.

The Washington Terminal Co. was incorporated pursuant to Act of Congress for the purpose of building a Union Terminal Passenger Station in the City of Washington, D. C. It has an authorized capital stock of $5,000,000, of which $4,122,000 has been issued and fully paid in cash, one-half by The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. and one-half by the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington Railroad Company.

The bonds are secured by a first mortgage upon the monumental Union Passenger Station in Washington, D. C., opened October 27, 1907, and upon the real estate occupied, and the tunnels, tracks, and approaches leading thereto. The construction has cost to May 31, 1909, $15,912,000. This Station, constructed with the approval of Congress, which appropriated $1,500,000 towards this terminal improvement, is now, and will be the only passenger terminal in the National Capital. The following railroads have made permanent contracts to use it, the rentals being sufficient to fully provide for the interest upon the bonds and for a fair return upon the additional capital invested therein by the guaranteeing companies:

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company,
Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington Railroad Company,
Southern Railway Company,
Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company,
Richmond-Washington Company,
The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co., and Seaboard Air Line Railway Company.

THEY ARE GUARANTEED PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST BY ENDORSEMENT, JOINTLY AND SEVERALLY, BY THE BALTIMORE & OHIO AND THE PHILADELPHIA, BALTIMORE & WASHINGTON RAILROAD COMPANIES, WHICH OWN THE ENTIRE CAPITAL STOCK.

Having sold a large amount of this issue, we offer the unsold balance at 102½ and interest and recommend the bonds as an investment of the highest character and of unquestioned security.

Temporary receipts will be issued pending the delivery of the engraved bonds on or about August 3rd, 1909.

WHY 1st mortgage Bonds issued against first class real estate is the safest kind of investment possible.
WHY The Mortgage Bonds of Europe are classed ahead of Government Bonds and only bear 3% interest.
WHY The Savings Banks and Individuals in this country do the business of the mortgage Banks of Europe.
WHY Mortgage bonds are safer in this country than in Europe.
WHY Real Estate Bonds, including a 50 per cent. stock bonus that will give you a handsome profit, is a rare opportunity, as Real Estate Bonds are becoming very popular in this country, which will bring the interest rate nearer the rate obtained in Europe and ahead of first class railroad bonds as they are in France and Germany.
WHY The smaller the amount of your capital for investment the more reason for you to obtain the greatest amount of safe earning capacity. These and several other reasons why this is a splendid opportunity for conservative investors.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Trading in London Quietly Cheerful—Prices in Berlin and Paris Firm.

LONDON, July 5.—Money was in superabundant supply on the market to-day owing to further dividend distributions, and discounts were easy. The Bank of England secured the $2,000,000 in gold available.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was quietly cheerful. The reinvestment of dividends improved gilt-edged securities, and home rails and Kaffirs advanced in anticipation of broadening public support, but diamond shares were easy on Paris selling.

American securities were quiet because of the holiday on Wall Street, but the good New York bank return and crop news induced a few buying orders and caused a steady close at prices unchanged to ½ higher than Saturday's New York closing.

Bar silver steady; 23 11-16d. per ounce.

Money, ½@¾ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 1¼@5-16 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 1 5-16@⅜ per cent.

PARIS, July 5.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were firm. The private rate of discount is quoted ⅛ lower at 1¼ per cent.

At closing 3 per cent. rentes were 97 francs 65 centimes for the account.

Exchange on London, 25 francs 18 centimes for checks.

BERLIN, July 5.—Prices generally on the Boerse to-day were firm.

Cheap Metal Compasses for Children Are Held Not to be in "Toy" Class.

Cheap metal compasses with extra pieces of graphite, designed for use as drawing instruments for children, are not toys within the meaning of the Dingley tariff, according to a decision of the Board of United States General Appraisers.

Duty was assessed on the articles at 45 per cent. under the metal schedule, whereas Illfelder & Co., the importers, set up the contention that the classification should be as "toys," with a tax of 35 per cent. In his decision for the board, General Appraiser Fisher says that the compasses or dividers are not in fact toys, nor have the importers shown that they are dealt in and known in the trade as "toys." The board holds that the goods are susceptible of practical use, and are readily distinguishable from the articles previously decided by the board to be toys.

A protest filed by the Goldschmidt Thermit Company, asking for lower duty on a material for welding, composed of titanium and iron oxide, was denied. The assessment of duty at 45 per cent. under the metal paragraph is affirmed. Decisions were handed down in the cases of Ralph Pierson & Co. and O. G. Hempstead & Son, regarding the classification of fish hooks, and in the case of Hermann Boker & Co., regarding strip steel.

"July 1, 1909.

"The $12,500,000 of first mortgage 4½% gold bonds of this company sold you are part of an authorized issue of $25,000,000, the remainder of the bonds, however, can only be issued to an amount equal to seventy-five per cent. of the cost of new improvements or additional property coming under this mortgage, and in case such additional bonds are issued the sinking fund, hereinafter referred to, will be proportionately increased.

"The bonds are to be secured by a first mortgage of the real estate, plants, and fixed property of the company at Chicago, East St. Louis, St. Joseph and Kansas City, and the company covenants that in addition to the property mortgaged it will not incumber by way of any lien during the life of these bonds its distributing stations, consisting of real estate and buildings, at over one hundred points; and its railroad cars, the cost of which is approximately $2,000,000.

Under the terms of the trust deed a yearly sinking fund is provided sufficient to retire $200,000 of the bonds in each and every year, and in case of additional bonds being issued under the mortgage the sinking fund shall be proportionately increased.

"The Company also obligates itself that its net quick assets will always be equal to or in excess of the amount of its outstanding bonds, and the company covenants it will pay dividends only from the earnings of the present and succeeding fiscal year.

This business has been in successful operation for thirty years and dividends have been regularly paid to its owners or shareholders. The property of the company is carried on its books at $41,280,844.68, which on account of its policy of returning to the property yearly large sums for additions and betterments and not increasing the value of its real estate, some of which was bought many years ago, represents a very conservative and inadequate measure of its value to-day.

The average yearly earnings of the company for the last eight years have been in excess of four and one-half times the interest on these bonds and for the last four years have averaged over five times such interest.

"The proceeds of the present issue of bonds will be used to retire outstanding debts of the company.

The quick assets of the Company as of May 29th, 1909, consisting of packing house products, supplies, accounts receivable and cash, after deducting current accounts payable, were $21,835,570.53, against which the present issue of $12,500,000 would be the only debt.

"Pending the engraving of the definitive bonds, interim certificates of Messrs. Morris and Company, will be delivered, which certificates will be exchanged for the engraved bonds, when the same are ready for delivery, and will be secured by the deposit of the proceeds of the bonds with the First Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago, Ill., which is to be trustee under the mortgage, pending the creation of the mortgage, and the delivery of temporary or permanent bonds to the trustee.

"Application will be made for the listing upon the New York and Chicago Stock Exchanges of the $12,500,000 of bonds sold you."

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF New York.—MOSES M. VALENTINE, plaintiff, against ELIZABETH R. HEYZER and others, defendants.

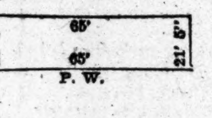
In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly entered in the above entitled action, bearing date the 19th day of May, 1909, I, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the New York Real Estate Salesrooms, Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey Street, in the City of New York, Borough of Manhattan, on the 6th day of July, 1909, at twelve o'clock noon on that day, by Samuel Marx, Esq., auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot of land, with the building thereon, situate in the Eighteenth Ward of said City of New York, lying on the easterly side of the Sixth Avenue between Sixteenth and Seventeenth Streets, and bounded and described as follows, viz.:

Commencing at a point in the easterly line of the Sixth Avenue, and which is the centre of a wall used as a party wall in common with the building on the southerly adjoining lot of land, and which point is distant 70 feet 7 inches northerly from the corner formed by the intersection of the easterly line of the Sixth Avenue with the northerly line of Sixteenth Street; thence running easterly, and parallel with Sixteenth Street, and for a part of the distance through the centre of said wall, 65 feet; thence northerly, parallel with the Sixth Avenue, 21 feet 5 inches to the centre line of the block; thence westerly, along said centre line of the block and parallel with Sixteenth Street, 65 feet to the easterly line of the Sixth Avenue; and thence running southerly, along the said easterly line of the Sixth Avenue, 21 feet 5 inches to the point or place of beginning.

Dated New York, June 14th, 1909.
FRANK C. AVERY, Referee.
LACHMAN & GOLDSMITH,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
No. 35 Nassau Street, New York City, Borough of Manhattan.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above described property is to be sold, is $9,071.39, with interest thereon from the 5th day of May, 1909, together with costs and allowances amounting to $369.88, with interest from the 19th day of May, 1909. The approximate amount of the taxes, water rates, assessments or other liens which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is $8.30, with interest.

The said premises will be sold subject to water meter charges since April 3d, 1909. The said premises will be sold subject to a lease of the entire building, expiring May 1st, 1914, at a rental of $6,600.00 per annum from February 1st, 1909, to February 1st, 1910; of $6,750.00 per annum from February 1st, 1910, to February 1st, 1912, and of $6,850.00 per annum from February 1st, 1912, to May 1st, 1914; such lease bearing date December 7th, 1903, and recorded in the office of the Register of the County of New York on December 22d, 1903, in Section 3, Liber 97 of Conveyances, Page 251; also subject to an encroachment of the northerly wall of said building erected on said premises of one (1) inch on the land adjoining on the north, and to an encroachment of the northerly wall of the rear building erected on said premises of from one (1) inch to four (4) inches on the land adjoining on the north.

Dated New York, June 14th, 1909.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW York, County of New York.—WILLIAM S. BLACK, plaintiff, against MARY B. YOUNG, individually and in her capacity as the person appointed by the Supreme Court of the State of New York to execute a certain trust, &c., and others, defendants.

In pursuance of an interlocutory judgment in partition, directing a sale of the premises hereinafter mentioned, duly made in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 8th day of June, 1909, and filed in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York on the 9th day of June, 1909, I, the undersigned, referee in said judgment named, will sell, pursuant to the terms of said judgment, at the New York Real Estate Exchange Salesrooms, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, at public auction, on the 18th day of July, 1909, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described, as follows:

Beginning at a point on the northwesterly side of Varick Street, distant southwesterly sixty-eight (68) feet from the southwesterly corner of Varick Street and Vestry Street, at the centre of the party wall of the house known as number sixty-seven (67) Varick Street and of the said house known as number sixty-five (65) Varick Street, and running northwesterly along the centre of said party wall to the rear of said houses and thence continuing in the same direction to the southeasterly side of the brick wall standing on the land now or late of Rufus L. Lord, sixty-two (62) feet three (3) inches more or less, thence southwesterly along the southeasterly side of said brick wall on a line parallel to Varick Street twenty-two (22) feet more or less, to the land now or formerly of the Laight Street Church; thence southeasterly along the land of the Laight Street Church to Varick Street, thence northeasterly along the northwesterly side of Varick Street twenty-two (22) feet more or less to the place of beginning.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The minimum temperature at Washington Monday morning, 5[illegible] degrees, was within one degree of the lowest July temperature on record for that station. Temperature was also low generally from the Missouri Valley to the Atlantic Coast. This evening the barometer is lowest over Utah and Idaho.

During Tuesday temperature will rise in the central valleys and plains States, and over the eastern portion of the country Wednesday.

Steamships departing Tuesday for European ports will have light, variable winds, shifting to moderate southeast, and partly cloudy weather to the Grand Banks.

Winds along the Atlantic Coast will be moderate south to southeast.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and New England—Increasing cloudiness Tuesday; showers Tuesday night and Wednesday; winds shifting to moderate east.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Local rains Tuesday and Wednesday; warmer Wednesday; moderate south to southeast winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1908.	1909.		1908.	1909.
3 A. M......	75	59	4 P. M......	88	80
6 A. M......	75	59	6 P. M......	85	74
9 A. M......	76	68	9 P. M......	81	7[illegible]
12 M.........	83	75	12 P. M......	77	70

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 69; for the corresponding date last year it was 82; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 73.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 62; at 8 P. M. it was 71. Maximum temperature, 80 degrees at 4 P. M.; minimum, 58 degrees at 4:25 A. M.

Humidity, 52 per cent. at 8 A. M. and 56 per cent. at 8 P. M.

SAYS LING ESCAPED IN COUSIN'S WAGON

Missionary Declares Ling Told Clifton, S. I., Relative Elsie Died of Drug She Took.

HE FLED TO PHILADELPHIA

Police Hunt for New Witness—Heavy Force of Police in Chinatown to Prevent a War of the Tongs.

A new suggestion as to the flight of Leon Ling, after the murder of Elsie Sigel in his room at 782 Eighth Avenue on June 9, was imparted to the police yesterday by Miss Rose Livingston of 316 West Thirtieth Street, who does missionary work among the women of Chinatown.

In a talk with Inspector McCafferty at Police Headquarters Miss Livingston said that a laundryman in Clifton, S. I., who is a cousin of Leon Ling, had told her that the fugitive Chinaman, about 3 o'clock the afternoon of the murder, appeared at his laundry in great agitation. The Chinaman, whose name Miss Livingston gave the police, told her, she said, that Leon Ling spoke of the death of Elsie Sigel, declaring that she had taken an overdose of some drug.

Leon Ling, finding her dead in his room, and becoming frightened, bundled her body in his trunk, according to the new version, and made hurried arrangements to get rid of it and then to escape. Ling borrowed a horse and wagon from his cousin, as the story told by Miss Livingston goes, and drove that afternoon to Tottenville, whence he took a train for Perth Amboy, N. J., from there going to Philadelphia.

Miss Livingston's recital created a stir at Police Headquarters. Inspector McCafferty sent two detectives out to find the Chinaman mentioned by Miss Livingston, but they reported late at night that the laundryman had left Clifton early in the day and that he would not be back until to-day. Inspector McCafferty was secretive concerning the information imparted by Miss Livingston, and refused to divulge the name of the Chinaman in Clifton.

The police had been led to believe that Leon Ling, after arranging, with the assistance of Chong Sing and four other Chinamen, to send the trunk holding Elsie Sigel's body to the Chinese laundry on West 126th Street, immediately after the murder, then called at the laundry and, late that night, rode out to Newark with the trunk in a red taxicab. If he called upon his cousin in Clifton, the police said last night, he could not have been the one who went with the trunk to Newark. This brings a new accomplice into the case, the police say, providing the information given to Miss Livingston by the Clifton Chinaman is substantiated. The suggestion that Miss Sigel killed herself with an overdose of poison the police do not believe.

After Miss Livingston had left Inspector McCafferty's office she was interviewed by reporters, and said:

The New Version of Sigel Murder.

"I have known Leon Ling's cousin in Clifton for some time, having met him in the course of my work as a mission worker. I saw him yesterday, and he told me of Leon Ling having called on him the afternoon of the murder. The Saturday before she was slain Elsie Sigel, according to what Leon Ling's cousin told me, visited Ling at the Clifton Chinaman's laundry. She found Ling smoking an opium pipe. Elsie Sigel was shocked at this revelation, as she had never known that Ling smoked an opium pipe. She tried to get him to go away with her, but Ling would not leave. So Elsie stayed that night in Clifton.

"On the afternoon of the murder, about 3 o'clock, Leon Ling, much frightened, rushed into his cousin's laundry and told him that Elsie Sigel had killed herself. Elsie had taken some drug, he said, and it had made her unconscious. While he was trying to restore her to her senses, he said, she died.

"'I must get away from here as soon as I can,' said Leon Ling to his cousin. 'I have sent Elsie Sigel's body away in a trunk, because I was afraid to leave it in my room. If I don't hurry away the police will get me.' Ling told his cousin that he must have a horse and carriage to take him to Tottenville. His cousin had his own horse and wagon hitched up, and Leon Ling was off toward Tottenville within half an hour after he had appeared at his cousin's.

"His cousin told me that Leon Ling shook from fear while he was being taken to Tottenville. He seemed afraid that any minute a policeman would step up and stop him. He told his cousin that he would go to Philadelphia, where he had friends, and hide there, at least for a few days.

"The police have asked me not to give the name of the Chinaman, and I have given my word. He will tell them exactly what I have said, of that I am sure. He does not want to shield his cousin. When Leon Ling called on him his cousin thought he was fooling about the death of Elsie Sigel. He thought they had had a quarrel, and that Leon Ling simply wanted to get away."

Chinatown was in a turmoil yesterday because of the invasion of an extra detachment of police in uniform and plain-clothes men. It was an outcome both of the agitation over the Sigel murder and the intense bitterness between the members of the On Leong Tong and the Hip Sing Tong, which for several days has threatened another outbreak. For three years the two tongs have been under a truce, but lately there have been rumblings of trouble.

The visits of police, with the constant interruption of trade, coupled with the quarrel of the tongs, have set Chinatown on edge, and the merchants sent envoys to Washington last Saturday, as told in THE TIMES, to ask the Chinese Minister to intervene. The Chinese Minister informed the State Department, and word was conveyed to Gov. Hughes, who in turn communicated with Police Commissioner Baker.

With this word to Commissioner Baker there came an intimation that war was likely to break out yesterday between the tongs. The Hip Sings, so the Commissioner was informed, were particularly wrought up over the sentence to death of six of their members in Boston last Saturday. The six members had been convicted of murdering one of their number, and there was a suspicion among the Hop Sings that their rivals, the On Leong Tongs, had given information to the police that made the convictions possible.

Police Feared a General War.

When he received the communication from Gov. Hughes, the Police Commissioner held a hurried conference with Inspector McCafferty, and before 10 o'clock twenty detectives and fifteen extra policemen in uniform were sent to Chinatown. Inspector McCafferty had reason to believe that the war of the tongs would be started in this city, and that it would spread to Boston and, perhaps, to other cities.

When the policemen and detectives arrived in Chinatown and began to station themselves at all points of vantage the Chinamen muttered to themselves and then huddled in groups, glancing menacingly toward the invaders. It soon became known that Tom Lee, the leader of the On Leong Tong, was in hiding in his business place at 19 Mott Street. Tom Lee did not want to see the detectives, but they insisted on talking with him. When the detectives were finally allowed to go into Lee's place he told them of a threat on his life which had been made last Friday at his home on East 145th Street, the Bronx.

Lee assured the detectives that he wanted peace, but that the Hip Sing Tong appeared to want war. He was asleep at his home, he said, when three Chinamen appeared on the stoop. His wife, who is a white woman, went to the door in response to vigorous taps, and found the barrels of three revolvers leveled at her head. When the visitors saw it was Tom Lee's wife, they lowered their revolvers, and asked for Tom Lee. His wife told them that Tom Lee was asleep, and that she would not call him.

"You tell him," said one of the callers, "that he has been talking too much about the Hip Sings. He must stop it. We will get $3,000 to kill him, and we will do it if he doesn't keep quiet."

Tom Lee told the detective that he did not know who his callers were, and added that he was not afraid of them.

On Leong Tong Leader in Hiding.

The detectives, who have the utmost confidence in Tom Lee's word, advised him that Chinatown is not a congenial place for him, and that he ought to stay away until the excitement cools down. Tom Lee thought about it, and then, slowly putting on his hat and coat, left his Mott Street place, going uptown.

The headquarters of the Hip Sing Tong on the Bowery, just above Doyers Street, were deserted yesterday, excepting for two Chinamen who sat in the Joss House on the top floor of the darkened building.

Mock Duck, the accredited leader of the Hip Sing Tong, who has had various clashes with the police and has been out of jail only a few months, did not wish to become embroiled in any trouble that might be impending, and when he saw all the police in Chinatown promptly went around to the Elizabeth Street Police Station. Mock Duck has been a handy Chinaman for the police to arrest. They had blamed him, in times gone by, for outbreaks of the tongs, and Mock Duck spent eight months in the Tombs three years ago, awaiting trial, as a result of the war of the tongs, in which half a dozen Chinamen were killed. At that time the Chinamen shot at each other from the housetops. Nothing was proved against Mock Duck, and he was released, after a promise to keep free from any tong fights.

When Mock Duck arrived at the Elizabeth Street Police Station Capt. Galvin asked him if he wanted to go back to the Tombs.

"No, me go to Coney Island," replied Mock Duck. "Me no want any fights."

Mock Duck insisted that if there was to be any fight of the tongs he proposed to keep out of it, but he furthermore admitted that he was powerless to keep individuals of his tong from battling against the other tong if they wanted to do so. To convince Capt. Galvin that he did not intend to mix with whatever trouble might develop in Chinatown Mock Duck asked the Captain to send a detective with him, to see that he went on his way to Coney Island. The Captain told Mock Duck that he would take his word for it if Duck promised to stay out of Chinatown for the next few days. The Chinaman gave the promise, and the last that was seen of him he was plodding along toward the Brooklyn Bridge, in the direction of Coney.

Yew Get, who was Secretary of the Hip Sing Tong at the time of the outbreak three years ago, kept out of sight of the police. Get was found by a reporter late in the day, sitting behind a high desk in the cellar of the laundry supply house of Yee Sang Lung, at 26 Pell Street. He vowed that he had given up his membership in the Hip Sing Tong, and that he was leading a serene life.

"I will not go into any tong fight," said Get, in very good English. "I have left the tong forever and am engaged in respectable business."

The detectives found a throng of Chinamen in front of the headquarters of the On Leong Tong, on Mott Street, but they were told that there was no one inside. The detectives went up to the third floor, where the tong meets, and found a few Chinamen playing cards. They all wore innocent smiles.

Inspector Schmittberger went to Chinatown during the afternoon and found Chinamen all standing around in front of their stores, talking in undertones. The detectives reported that there had been no sign of an outbreak, but that the Chinamen were constantly watching the police, and that the yellow man seemed ill at ease.

"You stay here," said the Inspector to his detectives. "If you leave you can't tell what might happen."

The Inspector told the newspaper men that the Chinamen appeared to be ready for war, but that they were probably afraid of the police.

The police were convinced, after their observation of the situation in Chinatown, that the hint of trouble which Commissioner Baker received was well founded, and that, had it not been for their invasion, bullets would have been flying around Chinatown before nightfall. With the tong leaders out of Chinatown and the Chinamen afraid, it looked to the police last night as though they had nipped the threatened warfare in its inception. They will remain in Chinatown for several days, or, at least, until things have swung back to normal conditions.

The police received information yesterday which convinced them that the murder of Ung Fow in his laundry on Stanton Street, last Wednesday, and the sudden death of Lee Hing Fang, in his chop suey restaurant at 583 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, the night following, were the work of Chinamen in the High Treason Society, to which Leon Ling belongs. It developed that Fang was killed with a blow upon the head with his own hatchet, which he kept under the pillow in his room back of his restaurant. The Coroner's autopsy showed that his skull had been fractured. The police report was that Fang had died of consumption.

Slain for Talking of Sigel Murder?

It is believed that both Fow and Fang held the secret of Elsie Sigel's death, and that, for indiscreet talking, they were put to death. The police regard it as possible that the two Chinamen were among those who witnessed the removal of the trunk containing Elsie Sigel's body from the chop suey house on Eighth Avenue.

Hom Hing, a Chinese laundryman, of 11 Pell Street, was arrested last night in the rear of his place for having a loaded revolver. Detective Miller of the Elizabeth Street Station, while passing the house, heard a revolver shot. He went through the long, narrow hallway and found Hing in the courtyard in the rear of his laundry, with a revolver in his hand. Hing shoved the revolver into his blouse when he saw the detective. It was of heavy calibre and was loaded with ball cartridges.

The courtyard where Hing was when arrested, according to the police, is one of the most notorious places in Chinatown, being flanked on all sides by opium dens. Hing said he was merely celebrating the Fourth.

Detectives Miller and Nammack raided an alleged gambling place at 17 Doyers Street, in Chinatown, last night, and arrested the alleged proprietor, Sing Ahm, and eight Chinese, the latter on a charge of being gamblers. Miller and Nammack suspected that a gambling place was being run over a mission in the building. Miller went up to the roof of a house next door, while Nammack went up the stairs of 17 Doyers Street. Miller went down the fire escape and entered, while Nammack burst in the door. They found the Chinamen playing the game known as pei gow, having dominoes and $19.75 in change on the table.

YOKOHAMA, July 6.—In response to cabled requests from New York the Yokohama police are watching every steamer arriving from the United States for Leon Ling, wanted for the murder of Elsie Sigel. The steamer China was searched to-day without result.

CHINESE ACCUSE POLICE.

Protest to State Department Against Alleged Persecution Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Three Chinese, delegated by their fellow-countrymen in New York, called on the Chinese Legation and afterward went to the State Department to-day to protest against the manner in which they say the Chinamen in New York, Philadelphia, and other of the large cities of the country are being persecuted by the police as a result of the murder of Elsie Sigel.

The residents of the various Chinese quarters in the big cities have been subjected to constant surveillance, the committee declared, and their homes and places of business have been searched by the authorities who are on the trail of Leon Ling.

The members of the committee were Charles Fon Foo, Fong Ching Tun, and Chu Sik Chee, who gave their addresses as 16, 18, and 20 Mott Street, New York. They called on Dr. Yen, Charge d'Affaires of the Chinese Legation, who accompanied them to the State Department, where the delegation conferred with Acting Secretary Huntington Wilson. Neither the members of the delegation nor Mr. Wilson would discuss the matter to-night.

Protests have been filed with Gov. Hughes, it developed in the course of the day, against the activities of the New York police in seeking for Leon Ling in that city's Chinese quarter.

As a result of this search, which the Chinese declare is sheer persecution, the Chinese quarter there is almost depopulated and many of its honest residents are on the verge of bankruptcy as a result. It is not known what action the State Department will take, if it takes any. The general belief is that the Government will permit the local authorities to pursue their investigations unhampered, as the affair scarcely can be interpreted as coming within the range of diplomacy.

BOY SAW MAN SHOOT PAGANO FROM ROOF

Police Arrest Four Young Men Who Were on the Housetop on Night of the Crime.

POLICE FIND A RIFLE

The Old Man Shot in the Heart—Capt. Carey Investigating Story Told by a Boy.

Capt. Arthur Carey of the Police Department's Homicide Bureau said yesterday afternoon that he would give the young detectives of the Eldridge Street Station the aid of his detective ability in the case of Joseph Pagano, the sick and aged Italian who was shot to death in his room at 228 Chrystie Street Sunday night by some person not known to the police.

Joseph Pagano occupied a small flat on the third floor of the tenement at 228 Chrystie Street, with his wife and three daughters. The flat was in the rear, and faced another tenement on Forsyth Street, across a court forty feet wide. Pagano was 55 years old, a laborer, had been ill several months, and was an inoffensive old man.

His wife and daughters were in the rooms Sunday night at 10:50 o'clock when Joseph Pagano prepared to go to bed. He had pulled down a wire bed in the kitchen, and was walking up and down under the gas jet, which comes down from the roof ceiling. He was talking to his women folk, who were in an adjoining room.

There was a good deal of shooting going on outside in celebration of the Fourth. Suddenly the old man's conversation stopped. His wife and daughters ran to him. A big bullet had come through the rear window and had entered his heart, killing him instantly. The screams of his wife and daughters brought in the policeman on post, and after him in time came more policemen from the Eldridge Street Station.

Early yesterday morning the police found a 38-40 Winchester rifle in a vacant room on the fifth floor of the tenement facing Pagano's kitchen, across the court, and later on they arrested four young men on the roof of the Forsyth Street Building.

They were arraigned in the Essex Market Court, remanded to the Coroner, and then paroled in the custody of their lawyer.

An imaginative boy of the neighborhood, it was said, went to the Eldridge Street Station and said he had seen a man shoot into the Chrystie Street tenement from the roof of the Forsyth Street house, across the court, and then go down into the vacant room of the house and hide the gun. He had seen this himself while standing on the roof of 226 Chrystie Street, so he said. He was hurried to the Homicide Bureau at Police Headquarters.

"Did a boy come over here to volunteer some information about the Pagano shooting?" Capt. Carey was asked.

He admitted, after some hesitation, that such was the truth.

"What was his name?" Capt. Carey was asked.

"We will not divulge that."

"Where did he live?"

"We will not disclose that. But we will say that we are on the trail."

Hence it will be seen that the shooting of Joseph Pagano will be cleared up in a short time.

CHINAMEN IN FIRE PANIC.

Some Are Rescued and Others Are Chased Down the Fire Escapes.

Somebody ordered some fried potatoes in "Cheap John's" restaurant, at 4 Chatham Square, early yesterday morning. The cook prepared them, and was about to serve them when his pan of boiling fat tumbled over on the floor and in an instant set the kitchen ablaze. The flames spread rapidly, darting up through the house. When firemen arrived the whole rear of the building was ablaze and the fire had spread to the rear of the tenement at 4 Mott Street.

From the latter house a score and more of Chinamen sought to escape down the stairs. The firemen were just in time to prevent their rushing headlong into the very thick of the fire, and to compel them to climb out on the fire escapes. They refused to climb down the iron ladders, however, and the firemen had to raise ladders for them, down which they also refused to go until driven to do so by firemen and police. Flames were issuing from the windows behind them before the last Chinaman closed his eyes and allowed himself to be led stumbling down the ladder.

Meantime the smoke had filled the upper floors of 6 Mott Street, in which is the Chinese Hospital, and from this the firemen took several blind men and a paralytic. Then Firemen Baker and McAvoy heard that a Chinaman and a white woman had been left on the top floor of 4. They ascended ladders and found the couple almost overcome by smoke. They rescued them. The fire spread to the rear of the Hotel Glenmore, a lodging house in Chatham Square, and the 125 occupants ran out, most of them with little clothing on. They were able to return and get their clothes, however.

The fire did about $10,000 damage before it was put out and gave the firemen a hard fight.

WIFE SHOT BY AN ADMIRER.

Discharged Farmhand Struck Down by Husband After First Shot.

Cyrn Weyf, a Holland farm laborer, was committed to the Hackensack, N. J., jail last night, charged with attempt to murder Mrs. Lena Franck, the pretty wife of William Franck, a farmer at Glen Rock, near Ridgewood.

Weyf shot Mrs. Franck through the neck with a revolver. He was about to fire a second shot when the woman's husband dealt him a blow on the jaw with a club that knocked him unconscious. Weyf was made a prisoner by the other farmhands until Constable Marschner arrived with a wagon and took him to jail.

"I shot the woman because she led me to it," said Weyf in explanation of his deed. "During her husband's absence she was friendly with me, and fearing her husband would learn the truth she discharged me a few weeks ago, after I had worked on the farm eighteen months. I went back a week ago Saturday, and when I was within 100 feet of the house Mrs. Franck deliberately shot at me. I called there to-day, and you know what happened. I have no excuses to make."

Weyf has been employed at Corkrey's Hotel at Arcola, the last few weeks. Justice Johnson committed him.

Mrs. Franck was removed to the General Hospital in Paterson. She is said to be dangerously wounded.

SCORES THE SUPREME COURT.

Prosecutor of Night Riders Says Its Decision Is a Travesty on Justice.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 5.—In a statement published to-day, Attorney General Caldwell, who prosecuted and convicted the night riders at Union City, Tenn., several months ago, and whose cases were reversed by the Supreme Court last Saturday, scores the members of that tribunal for their decision. Among other things, Gen. Caldwell says:

"I would not complain if they had gone into the facts of the case and had seen proper to say that the facts did not warrant a conviction, but for them to reverse so important a case on mere technicalities occurs to me as being a travesty on justice. They had a complete record before them. Were the defendants guilty? If not, go into the facts and say so, and I would be the last one to complain, but in the name of justice, let no guilty one escape because of fly specks.

"I may be wrong, but in my opinion these three Judges have committed a judicial blunder such as has not occurred for a hundred years in Tennessee jurisprudence. Of course I accord them honesty and sincerity, but the God of Justice pities their judgment."

It is probable that the trial of the fifty-six men under indictment charged with being members of the Reelfoot band of night riders, will not take place until next Fall. The cases were set for to-day, but after a conference with his associates late this afternoon Attorney General Caldwell said he had decided to ask the court to postpone the trial.

DIVIDED ON BUILDING CODE.

"Little Tim" Sullivan Said to Have Urged Murphy Not to Push It.

According to the statements made yesterday by officials of the cinder concrete interests, the members of Tammany Hall are divided over the attempt to pass the amended majority report of the Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen, which goes before the board at noon to-day.

One of the officials connected with the cinder concrete interests said yesterday that it was positively known that Alderman T. P. Sullivan, Democratic leader in the board, has repeatedly advised Mr. Murphy that it was bad politics to insist upon the adoption of Cohalan's amended majority report, but that Cohalan's influence with Murphy had been too strong, and Sullivan's advice had been disregarded.

John H. Brown, President of the Metallic Lathers' Union of New York, in speaking of the methods of the National Fireproofing Company yesterday, said: "Should the amended majority report pass the Board of Aldermen this act of injustice would mean that 600 mechanics belonging to our organization alone would be thrown out of employment in the city.

"Among the labor organizations, numbering over 20,000 men on their rosters, who have within the last few weeks passed resolutions supporting the Minority Code and opposing the Cohalan Code are the Metallic Lathers' Union, the Cement and Asphalt Workers' Union, the Fixture Workers' Union, the Brotherhood of Carpenters, the Ceramic, Mosaic and Encaustic Tile Layers' International Union, Local 52; the Compact Labor Club of Marble Cutters' Helpers, the Joint District Council of New York and vicinity, the Wood, Wire, and Metal Lathers' International Union; the United Cement Masons' Union 1 of Greater New York; the Consolidated Board of Business Agents of the Building Trades."

TRAIN HITS A FLOWER POT.

And It Smashes on the Heads of Miniature Railroad's Passengers.

The miniature railroad train, which runs around a small lake in Happyland Park, South Beach, S. I., collided yesterday with one of the big flower pots, in which are set decorative palms at intervals around the railroad line, and brought it tumbling down into the first of the train's two cars, in which were seated about ten passengers. The heavy pot smashed upon the heads of some of these and injured these three:

George C. Murphy of 124 East 108th Street, Manhattan, cut about the right eye and arm; Arthur Clifton of Barclay Street, Ansonia, L. I., left arm and leg cut, and four-year-old Louis Geninini of 1,364 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, cut about the head, face, and body.

There was quite a panic when the accident occurred. Dr. Jenkins was summoned from St. Vincent's Hospital, and he treated all the injured. They were able to go home.

Suffragists Elect Officers.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 5.—The National Woman Suffrage Association to-day elected the following officers: President—The Rev. Anna H. Shaw, Moylan, Penn.; First Vice President—Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery, Swarthmore, Penn.; Second Vice President—Mrs. Florence Kelley, New York; Corresponding Secretary—Miss Kate M. Gordon, New Orleans; Recording Secretary—Mrs. Ella S. Stewart, Chicago; Treasurer—Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, Warren, Ohio. The question of the next convention city was left to the general officers for decision. The candidates are Sioux Falls, S. D., and Washington, D. C.

Congressman Cushman Is Better.

Representative Frank W. Cushman of the State of Washington, who is in Roosevelt Hospital, ill with pneumonia, following an operation, was in much better condition last night than for several days. It was said in the morning at the hospital that he was very low and might die at any time. Last night, however, there was hope for the patient.

IN NEW JERSEY.

Frank Bradley, 26 years old of 102 Jackson Street, was instantly killed last night by falling from the third floor porch of his home. He complained to his mother of being ill, and went out on the porch. He fainted almost immediately and pitched forward over the railing to the stone flagging.

Mayor William Cardwell laid the cornerstone of the new Columbia clubhouse in East Orange yesterday. The building, which is situated at Roosevelt and Grant Avenues, occupies the entire block from Grant to Sherman Avenue, and when completed and furnished will represent an expenditure of $25,000. Addresses were delivered by Mayor Cardwell, Edward S. Pierson, Chairman of the Common Council, City Clerk Lincoln E. Rowley, and others. The exercises concluded in the evening with a display of fireworks and music.

Walter Spinning of Red Bank, was knocked down by an automobile owned by Horace C. Fisher of Asbury Park, at the corner of Martin Street and Broadway, Long Branch, and his shoulder blade fractured. Mr. Spinning was a passenger on a car of the Monmouth County Electric Company and got off at Martin Street and Broadway under the guard rail when he was struck by the Fisher machine. William Jones, the chauffeur, was held under $100 bail before Recorder Van Doren. Spinning had his shoulder set at the Monmouth Memorial Hospital.

A large forest fire which started in the dense woods about one mile east of the Atlantic Brick Works, near May's Landing, shortly after 12 o'clock yesterday, burned fiercely for several hours destroying much pine and oak timber. Fire Wardens and assistants after hard work succeeded in checking the flames by back firing. The origin of the fire is unknown.

OTHER LEPERS HERE, SAYS HOSPITAL HEAD

SCOFFS AT FEAR OF DISEASE

Sees Little Danger of It in This Country—John Early Hounded by Other Cities, She Asserts.

There are lepers on Blackwell's Island, and they are allowed to mingle freely with the other patients, according to Miss Sara Burns, Superintendent of the Skin and Cancer Hospital, 301 East Nineteenth Street. Miss Burns made this statement to a TIMES reporter yesterday, in commenting on the case of John S. Early, who arrived at the Skin and Cancer Hospital on Sunday after having been driven from pillar to post in several Southern States because the health authorities thought he was a leper, and finally isolated for a year by the officials of Washington, D. C. Early, who is an ex-private in the regular army, made the trip from Washington to Jersey City in a baggage car, accompanied by Capt. Seavey of the Salvation Army in the former city and another friend.

"It is perfectly natural to suppose," said Miss Burns, in answer to a question as to whether in her opinion New York held any lepers, "that such is the case. Why, we have had three—two men and one woman—call at our clinic within a year, and after examination it was found that they were afflicted with leprosy. Did we keep them? No, but it was only for the reason that we did not have a bed for them at the time, and had to send them to the island. They must be there now if they have not been discharged.

"I can't see why so many people have such a fear of leprosy—especially in this country, for here it is neither very contagious nor infectious."

Early had the finest sort of an Independence Day, according to Miss Burns. He spent most of it on the roof garden, and with the other patients in the ward, who, while they know that he is the man who has been suspected of having the disease, do not appear to show any aversion to him.

"Why should they, or any one else feel afraid of Mr. Early," commented Miss Burns. "He hasn't the leprosy at all, and it is a shame how some people have hounded—yes, that's the word—that man. Really, I don't see how he has stood up under it."

Asked how long he would be treated, she said that he probably would not be treated at all, for there was no reason for it.

Mrs. Early and her two children did not visit the hospital yesterday, and it was said that they had gone to the country for a much-needed rest.

Union Fund for Member's Freedom.

Progressive Lodge, No. 335, of the International Association of Machinists, a Socalist union, with headquarters in the Labor Temple, is raising a fund to begin proceedings to obtain a writ of error in the case of John Schrieber, a member of the union, who was sentenced in Newark on June 14 to three years in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $1,000 on a robbery charge. The union says he did not get a fair trial.

Come Up to The Times Building, Where It Is Cool

If this location hadn't been selected as the best place from which to publish The New York Times it would have been the ideal location for a summer hotel. This is not only a location and building to which credit for some of the business success of The Times is due, but, with every room an outside one, the building standing out by itself and towering above all other buildings in the vicinity, neither light nor breeze is sacrificed. Both are abundant.

There may be the same advertising benefit in this location and building for you, as there has proved to be for The Times. Come up to-day to Room 406 and ask for the Rental Agent. You can at least prove that it is cool, and he will enjoy proving that advantage to you, whether he rents you an office or not. Telephone 1000 Bryant.
